Looking back at events from 1990

-January-

Downtown Development Authority (DDA): DDA funds continued to be a frequent source of dispute at City Council meetings. In mid-January council and DDA members argued about funding a study for changes to Bridge Park. Initially, the council denied funding for the study by a 4-3 vote.

Park funding was part of an overall debate concerning how DDA funds may be spent. DDA members contended that the City Council placed the DDA in a financial bind by spending DDA funds on projects which should have been paid for by city electrical, sewer and infrastructure funds.

Eventually the city attorney was asked for an opinion. He said that legally, both the City Council and DDA board must approve DDA expenditures. The council approves when it approves the DDA project list. The DDA may then undertake projects on that list without further council approval.

Later in the year the council and DDA agreed to a compromise in which the DDA paid $34,385 rather than $165,500 for disputed projects. The council also allowed DDA funds to pay for a Bridge Park study. The resulting study listed alternatives for future changes to the park area. Some of those alternatives carry an estimated price tag as high as $1.6 million. So far no changes have been initiated.

Bandshell funding: The City Council and DDA agreed to spend $50,000 in DDA funds on the construction of a new bandshell in East Park. In 1989, the city secured a $40,000 state grant for the bandshell. During discussion regarding both the grant and DDA funds, people arguing in favor of the funds suggested the money might help construct public rest rooms in the bandshell. Ultimately, the grant and DDA funds accounted for $90,000 of the approximately $175,000 total cost and plans to include public rest rooms in the bandshell were dropped.

Ferry Beach grant: Charlevoix received word that a $215,000 grant from the state to help fund Ferry Beach improvements would be approved. The grant from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund is a 50 percent matching grant. The city's share will be paid from Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) funds. Project plans include improving boat launching ramps, constructing a walkway and picnic shelter, new concession stand, new parking lot and sewer lines to serve the park. Ferry Avenue has been moved away from the beach.

-February-

Swimming pool: People opposed to and people in favor of building an indoor swimming pool at the elementary school each submitted petitions to the school board. Opponents of a pool at the school contended that if the pool is at the school, taxpayers will be left holding the bag if pool committee funds fail to meet pool financial requirements. They added that the school should not become involved with pool plans without a vote of the people.

Pool proponents say they will raise money to build the pool and establish an endowment fund to pay for operational costs. They have asked the school to sponsor a grant request for the pool. They said they don't want an election until they have time to raise money.

The school board took no action.

City millage levy: In discussing the city's 1990-91 budget City Council members debated how many mills to levy. City administrators initially drafted a budget

Analysis

By L. Scott Swanson

Writer's note: Looking back is easy; but looking ahead is more interesting. The following story discusses some of the issues Charlevoix people may be affected by in 1991. It also speculates (and the key word here is speculates) about some things which may happen with these issues.

In 1990 the Charlevoix City Council often was split on controversial issues. Several times during 1990 council members Jim Potter, Butch Russell and Ken Whitley found themselves in a voting deadlock against council members Bill Haggard, Cheri Hoffman and Pat Gaskin. Mayor Gary Probert often found himself called upon to cast deciding votes.

1991 promises to be different. Whitley and Potter did not seek reelection and will be replaced by Ted Felter and Jackie Cross. Probert was defeated by Dave Novotny.

Changes on the council could mean changes on several issues.

Use of Downtown Development Authority (DDA) funds is an issue which certainly will be raised. Supporters of new downtown street lights will ask for the DDA project list to be reopened and revised to include new street lights.

Haggard, Hoffman, Gaskin and Felter are likely to support the new lights. Russell is likely to oppose them. Cross will be under pressure from both calling for a total levy of 15.1 mills. That broke down into 9.5 mills for general operations, 4 mills for infrastructure (i.e. street, sidewalk and sewer) improvements and 1.76 mills for debt retirement. The 15.1 mills would have been a 9 mill increase from 1989-90 when the millage break down was 9 mills for general operations 3 mills for infrastructure improvements and 2.38 mills for debt retirement.

...1990 review: city millage, street lights

After lengthy debate which went into March, the council redigged the 1990-91 levy back to 9 mills for general operations and 3 mills for infrastructure improvements. The decision to reduce the millage was made by a 3-2 vote. Council members Cheri Hoffman and Pat Gaskin wanted to levy 9.5 and 4 mills. They were outvoted by council members Butch Russell, Ken Whitley and Jim Potter.

Reducing the infrastructure millage from 4 to 3 mills means proposed infrastructure improvements will take longer to complete.

other counties will accept garbage from Charlevoix County if the Cedar-Ridge landfill in Charlevoix County closes. At the city level, a curb-side recycling pick-up program began, but few people have participated.

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Initiating a tax protest

Oil and water may not mix, but alcohol and politics provide a fascinating mix.

With the new year, additional federal taxes on alcohol went into effect. The way the government deals with alcohol says a lot about the differences in the philosophies of the Republican and Democratic parties when it comes to tampering with people's lives.

Earlier this century alcohol consumption met with the Republican legislative philosophy. That philosophy says that when someone else's behavior doesn't meet your own moral standards, pass a law against it.

With alcohol consumption, we called that law "Prohibition" and it didn't work out.

Now we're trying the Democratic legislative philosophy. That philosophy says that people can decide to spend their money on alcohol or whatever else they want. But if you tax enough money away from them, that decision won't be too much of a burden.

In the long run, that probably won't work out either.

There are two types of Democrats. One group doesn't feel people are capable of taking care of themselves. The other group feels capable of taking care of everybody. The latter group runs for office. The former votes for them.

Republicans are not so divided. They select a leader and stand by him. They support their leader's position. At least when they can figure out what their leader's position is they support it.

George Bush sat in his office one day pondering his two favorite phrases. On the one hand there was the phrase which got him elected, "Read my lips. No new taxes." On the other hand there was that press conference favorite, "Stay the course."

When it came to taxes, these two phrases were mutually exclusive. No new taxes would be a radical departure from the federal course which has been established for a number of years. In the end, Bush decided he liked one phrase better than the other. He chose to appease the Democrats in Congress and "Stay the course."

That other phrase would just have to be modified. Now that phrase is "Read my lips. No new taxes."

In the 1700s it was easier to protest tax increases. If you got miffed about taxes, you could just go down to the harbor and tear apart a tea boat.

It's not like that any more. To begin with, it's almost impossible to find a ship filled with tea. Even if you do find one, you can't throw tea around like they used to. You start throwing tea in the water these days and the Department of Natural Resources will be all over you like white on rice.

But there must be some kind of way to protest tax increases.

Come to think of it alcohol wasn't the only thing tagged with higher taxes. That budget agreement also stuck another nickel in federal taxes on every gallon of gas.

Just when the rest of society is making a concerted effort to get out the message that drinking and driving don't mix, Congress decides that drinking and driving mix just fine when it comes to increasing taxes.

Not only did Congress tie alcohol consumption and gas together, they tied them together in the wrong order. With the tax increase, the gas part came before the alcohol consumption. In real life, alcohol consumption precedes gas. Anybody other than a politician knows that.

But with tea picketing no longer an option, how do we protest? We must find a suitable protest, a protest which tells legislators that we don't want increased taxes on alcohol, gas or anything else.

It might not be the perfect form of protest, but this is the one I'm trying. The next time I drink a beer or can of pop, I'm going to rip off the pull tab and stick in an envelope. That envelope will not be sealed with a kiss, but with a belch. Then I'm sending that pull tab and envelope off to Washington.

...keeping career

by EDITH GILBERT

Lifestyles of the young and darling! continued from last week.

Francie Martin, flight attendant for United Airlines, lives in Charlevoix with her husband and two young children. Her four-day flights are based out of Chicago, which means she drives every week to Grand Rapids (3 hrs.) and catches a flight to Chicago (25 min.) and back.

"How come you don't fly out of Traverse City?" I ask.

"Because it's too stressful," she replies. "The flights out of Traverse City are too unpredictable. I find it mentally much easier to drive to Grand Rapids and take one of the five jet flights to Chicago. I haven't commuted out of Traverse City for four years. When Republic flew their DC9's, the planes used to be full. There's been a depressing decline in service."

"Today we who live in the north have no choices. There are no trains, no freeways and no jets."

She's right about that! If one wants to fly to Chicago out of Traverse City, the choice is to take a 35 passenger plane, ATR, or a 15 passenger plane, called Short. The latter has no reclining seats. To top it off, the price for a round trip per person is $251! Of course if you connect to a major city like San Francisco, New York or Phoenix, then the price of Chicago leg of the trip goes way down.

Another option is to fly Great Lakes Air out of Pellston to Chicago. Off season, they have three round trips a day in a turbo prop, twin engine, 19 passenger Beechcraft 1900. This has reclining seats and seat trays. Big deal! In the summer, they use a larger 45 passenger prop engine plane.

It's ironic that Francie's aunt, Ellen Williamson, described travelling during the 20's and 30's in her delightful book, "When We Went First Class." She reminisces about private Pullman cars—each one named the way they name yachts. It might have taken a little longer, but travel when even on the Resort Special trains was not as stressful as it is now on planes.

In spite of the long commute, Francie loves her job. As a senior flight attendant (19 years), her pay scale dates from 1968 and is therefore much higher than the poorly paid girls of today. Some of the new girls need to hold down two jobs to make ends meet. It's no wonder management would prefer to eliminate the senior flight attendants, if they could. Especially since retirement age is 65.

Many of my friends have been telling me for years that they do not choose to fly out of Traverse City. They, too, much prefer driving to either Midland or Grand Rapids to catch a connecting flight. And lately, retirees are telling me that they are staying put right here in the north woods. Travel is too uncertain, too stressful to go anywhere for pleasure, except to attend a wedding.

What a surprising trend!

In the very near future, Francie tells me that she will have a computer at home and it won't be necessary for her to check in at the terminal.

Bully for her! What about us? That we need is for someone's computer to reassure us that there is a plane for us on the runway ready for take-off, that there are alert traffic controllers in the tower, that there are no bombs aboard, that each passenger is assigned a robot/porter to carry our luggage, park the car, whisk us to a nearby gate, and bed us down in a comfortable, reclining position, preferably next to a congenial someone. And in soft, gentle tones the voice over the intercom would soothingly offer us a choice of delicacies. That's the stuff dreams are made of!

For the time being Francie and the rest of us will gladly settle for reliable jet service several times a day at a reasonable price out of Traverse City.

Charlevoix's high school ski team, particularly the girls team, fared well in 1990. The girls placed third in the state meet behind Cadillac and Traverse City.

People identified

Editor,

Regarding identification of some of the students of the Middle School class of 1924, (Scrapbook 12-5-90) I believe the little girl fourth from the left in Row 2 is Daisy Dutcher. There are, however, some corrections I am quite sure of. The girl 2nd (1st unidentified) is Ethel (not Ethal) Powers. Winifred Trimble and Gertrude Clark. Row 3: Helen Halverson, Germaine Atchison, Row 4: Sophia Matson. Row 1: Tom Finucan. These corrections in spelling may not be important except to the persons themselves. The class of 1924 was one class ahead of the and I knew some of these children very well. Sincerely, Byrnee Lamphear Greifenstein Little Rock, Ark.

Local veterans voice military support

Editor,

To: Our American Servicemen and Women
From: VFW Post 1153, Charlevoix, MI

We want you to know that we support you totally in the job you have been sent to do in the Middle East. We are only a few of many Americans who feel the same way.

Many of you are already veterans of overseas service, having been called upon to serve your country in either peaceful duties or combat. Even some of the peaceful duties turned out to be otherwise.

The courage, resourcefulness and determination of the American people to serve and defend both their homeland and overseas has been necessary from the earliest colonial times up to today. And, those people did whatever had to be done. Now, it's your turn to do a job under extremely difficult conditions, a long way from home, in a strange land. We have confidence in you to do whatever needs to be done, even if all hell breaks loose. We want you to have the confidence in us, that we back you up, all the way.

Granted, our governments of the past have made some mistakes in policies in the Middle East, but Saddam Hussein's unprovoked invasion of a nearly defenseless Kuwait is his mistake, not ours.

President Bush and leaders of most of the Middle East nations have sought and received world wide support for the very action you are a vital part of. Those of us who have been here before are heartened to see that President Bush is not indulging in half-way, half-hearted measures, but instead, is taking the necessary steps to be fully prepared for anything that comes. That is our best position to obtain either a peaceful solution or win a military conflict.

Since we believe that what our president is doing is necessary and proper, we believe you can and will do what needs to be done, just as many others have done before you. We will continue to do our part. God bless you.

FAMILY

Kelly - Montone

Kristine M. Kelly and Keith D. Montone exchanged marriage vows on Sept. 29, 1990 at the St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church in Petoskey before 200 guests. The altar was decorated with candles and white gladiolus as Father Andre Schludecker and Rev. Harold Kistler performed the double ring ceremony.

Delbert and Mary Ann Kelly of Charlevoix are parents of the bride. The groom is the son of Dennis and Elsie Montone of West Bloomfield.

Given in marriage by her parents the bride wore a traditional winter white satin and lace floor length gown with long sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. The bodice was encrusted with sequins and pearls. The softly gathered full skirt had jeweled hem and flowed to a cathedral length train with detailed tulle inserts etched in beading. The bride's chapel length bouffant veil was attached to a beaded crown. Her cascade bouquet featured white roses, red rose buds and green ivy, trimmed in white lace.

The couple selected special songs which were performed by Dave Bezotte, organist, Sandy Johnston, vocalist, and Jeff Lambert, trumpeter. Readings were done by Katy Schuster and Greta Montone.

Elizabeth Kelly attended her sister as maid-of-honor. Bridesmaids included Heidi Masterson, cousin of the bride, Michelle Montone, Celeste Montone, sisters of the groom, Phyllis VanOcker and Sherry Steehwyk. They wore red sashed taffeta floor length gowns. The off the shoulder sleeves were adorned with taffeta roses. The sweetheart necklines were accented with pearl necklaces. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of red and white roses and green ivy trimmed with red and white ribbon.

Catherine Masterson, Bridget Masterson and Amy Drew, cousins of the bride, served as flower girls. They wore white cotton and lace floor length dresses trimmed with red sashes. They carried petite straw baskets filled with rosebuds and baby's breath. Similar flowers were used for their wreaths which they wore in their hair. Brendon Kownack, cousin of the groom served as the ringbearer.

Mark Montone, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Dan Kelly, brother of the bride, Leon Karpinski, cousin of the groom, Jim Irvine, Paul Manning and Mike Steenwyk. Ushers were Gary Drew, Terry Drew, uncles of the bride, and Ken Brummel. Harry Masterson III served as altar boy.

The parents of the bride hosted a reception, following the ceremony, and the Holiday Inn in Petoskey. Attending the guest book were Margaret Masterson and Jami Drew. The rehearsal dinner, given by the groom's parents, was held at Stafford's Perry Hotel.

Following a honeymoon to Cancun, Mexico, the newlyweds are residing in West Bloomfield. The groom is a product design engineer for Ford Motor Co. and the bride is a microbiologist for Analytic and Biological Lab.

Wedding guests attended from London, England, California, Texas, Wisconsin, West Virginia, Tennessee, New Jersey, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusetts and several Michigan cities.

Pat Tinney, well known local artist and teacher in the Middle School of East Jordan and North Central Michigan College, will be the instructor. Classes will meet from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. The fee will be $40 for non-members and $36 for members of the Council. Registration and additional information about the classes may be obtained by calling 536-3447 or 536-7654.

The class is one of several that will be offered during the year as part of the education program of the Jordan River Arts Council. Formed just two years ago, the Council seeks to encourage and enrich the appreciation of the arts in the communities of Charlevoix County and Northern Antrim County.

...1990 review: track removal, lack of bids exciting game before a packed house at Harbor Springs.

Carey in Hall of Fame: The late Bob Carey, a Charlevoix native, was elected to the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame. Carey earned All-State honors in football, basketball and track at Charlevoix High School in the late 1940s. He then went on to Michigan State University where he was an All-American football player and earned nine athletic letters. He later played professional football for the Los Angeles Rams and Chicago Bears until a knee injury ended his athletic career.

Railroad track removal: The Charlevoix City Council voiced disapproval to Lansing legislators regarding a decision to tear up railroad tracks between Charlevoix and Petoskey. Later in the year, the council went as far as discussing legal action. In the end a group of state legislators attended a public hearing in Charlevoix.

Legislators attempted to smooth over the decision to tear out the tracks by saying a recreational trail would be constructed between the two communities. Later in the year the tracks were torn out and it now appears that if a recreational trail is ever constructed, much of it will be along the shoulder of U.S. 31.

Swimming pool debate: A crowd of people filled the high school study hall for a school board meeting and debated the merits of a swimming pool at the elementary school. Swimming pool proponents had planned to repeat a request for the school board to sponsor a grant application. However, after questions were raised the proponents chose not to make the request in 1990. Later in the year, pool proponents began a fund raising drive to create a pool endowment fund.

April

No bids on bandshell: When the city first advertised for bids to construct a new bandshell, the bids came back much higher than anticipated. After revising building plans, the city again advertised for bids. No bids were submitted. Although the lack of bids set the project back several months, the city worked out an arrangement with a Traverse City based construction firm to get the bandshell built by the end of 1990.

Elm Street shift: Following debate before both the Planning Commission and City Council, the council voted to shift the west end of Elm Street 125 feet to the south to allow the Community Reformed Church to remodel and expand.

Problem solvers win state title: A team of four Charlevoix seventh grade students won the Michigan State Future Problem Solvers open-class title. The Charlevoix team of Paul Henne, Ryan Smith, Mark Scharbaum and Chris LeButt competed against seventh, eighth and ninth grade teams from schools of all sizes from all across the state. The Charlevoix team was coached by Tom Sothard.

May

Speech team wins state title: Charlevoix High School's performing arts team captured the Class C-D Individual Events state title. The team last won the title in 1980.

April

City manager seeks pay raise: City manager Mike Wiesner sought to have his base salary increased from $39,000 per year to $52,000. That increase was blocked by councilmen Jim Potter, Butch Russell and Ken Whitley. Wiesner ended up receiving a four percent increase which was the same rate given to other city employees.

Second air charter service approved: The city council approved a contract allowing a second air charter service to be operated at the city airport.

Three candidates file for mayor: Former mayor Ken Staley and former planning commission chairman Dave Novak filed election petitions to challenge incumbent mayor Gary Probert.

June

1990 graduation: Commencement ceremonies for the Charlevoix High School Class of 1990 took place June 3. Detroit News columnist Nickie McWhirter served as guest speaker.

Track team third in state: Charlevoix's boys track team placed third among Class C schools at the state finals track meet. Participating from Charlevoix were Tony Warchol, Brian Livingston, Scott Miller, Matt Gibbons, Matt Smith, Luke LaBlance.

Mike Stargardt, Bill Crook and Tim Henne.

Tennis team fourth in state: Charlevoix's high school team finished fourth among Class C-D schools at the state finals meet. Earlier in the season the Rayders won their sixth straight regional title.

BUSINESS

Christmas wishes answered by many

Every October the Department of Social Services sends Holiday Gift Program forms to clients for completion. If they would like to participate in the food and gift program for Thanksgiving and Christmas. This year 196 families returned requests totaling 704 individuals.

How are these requests filled? Vasco Zucchiatti, volunteer Services Coordinator for the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services office said, "Without the community help, there would be no need to send the Gift Forms to our clients as the department does not have its own holiday program."

Every year there are three major groups who help in providing food and/or gifts for Thanksgiving and Christmas. Without the Boyne City group "Community Christmas"; the Charlevoix group "Charlevoix Christmas Project"; the East Jordan group "Care and Share Program"; and new this year, K-Mart of Charlevoix; the bulk of the 700 individuals would not have a very happy holiday season.

In addition to the major groups there were smaller groups such as dental offices, attorney groups, schools, work shops, Brownies, churches, sororities, community clubs/organizations, and many, many individuals and volunteers.

The large groups start planning months early.

The "Coats For Kids" by WJML and the "Canned Food Drive" by WKHQ and Oleson's Food Store added to the holiday season. Individuals donated used coats to new coats with price tags over $100. Canned goods were collected and added to other donated items to make up food baskets Think how you would feel without your car. If you're a kid, a bike is your wheels. These bikes were donated to a Charlevoix man who reconditioned them. They were then repaired by a local body shop and distributed for Christmas gifts to county children.

for Thanksgiving. Individual families have helped for various reasons such as having extra to give; wanting their children to understand helping their community; they have been helped in the past and now want to help someone else; and it's just something they want to do. One individual gathered more than 70 stuffed animals all year long and donated them for Christmas presents.

Zucchiatti: "On behalf of the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services staff, we want to thank those who helped, whether it was an hour of donated time helping in groups, to donating a coat or canned goods, to families helping families, to small and large groups helping several families. Without the small pieces the whole would not be possible. Thanks for the successful holiday season that made so many happy."

...1991: budget work begins

sides. Nobody will likely be in support of the new lights, but probably won't have to vote to break a tie.

Don't be surprised to see that voting pattern on several issues throughout the year.

The city budget and how many mills to levy is another issue the council will face early in the year. For the 1990-91 fiscal year, the city levied 9 mills for general operations and 3 mills for infrastructure repairs. (A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a property's state equalized value. State equalized value is half of a property's theoretical market value. Infrastructure is a big word for the city's street, sidewalk, sewer and water systems.)

Last year city manager Mike Wiesner submitted a proposed budget which called for higher operational and infrastructure levies. However the council reduced the levies to 9 and 3 mills.

This year Wiesner's proposed budget is likely to once again propose 4 mills for infrastructure repairs. In the first year of the program, the city did levy 4 mills. Later the council reduced the levy from 4 to 3 mills which meant the work would take longer to complete.

The same voting pattern mentioned above may result in the infrastructure millage being raised back up to 4 mills for the city's 1991-92 fiscal year. City operational millage may also be increased.

The city manager's salary is another issue likely to resurface early in 1991. Last year Wiesner sought an increase in base salary from $39,000 to $52,000. Russell, Potter, Whitley and Probert favored no more than a four percent increase which was what other city employees received. Haggard, Hoffman and Gaskin favored either an increase to $52,000 or at least an increase of more than four percent. Since the mayor can't vote on amending the city manager's contract, the council was deadlocked. When it became evident that no council action meant no increase at all, Gaskin and Hoffman changed their votes in favor of a four percent increase.

With Potter and Whitley no longer on the council, if a salary increase for the city manager is

Local skier places in CUSSA races

Katherine Campbell of Charlevoix finished third and fifth in two recent women's slalom races at Sugar Loaf Resort. The races were sponsored by the Central Division of the United States Ski Association (CUSSA).

Campbell was skiing for the Bahnhof Ski Team in the junior division race. She is also a member of the Charlevoix High School ski team which begins its season Jan. 3 with an invitational at Holiday Hills.

AAU girls' basketball team tryouts scheduled

Matthew Dixon of Charlevoix was named to the fall semester Dean's List at Michigan Technological University with a perfect 4.0 grade point average. Dixon is a senior in the Mechanical Engineering program. In addition to being named to the Dean's List, he was inducted into the Michigan Chapter of Tau Beta Pi Dec. 2, a national engineering honor society which recognizes distinguished scholarship and exemplary character in undergraduate engineering students.

Dixon is the son of John and Sue Dixon of Charlevoix.

James Martin of Charlevoix was among the mid-year graduates at Northern Michigan University. Martin received a Bachelor of Science degree with a major in History.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Michael D. Dohm, son of William R. Dohm and Reta A. Goldsmith, both of Charlevoix, is currently deployed to the Middle East in support of Operation Desert Shield while serving aboard the frigate USS Elmer Montgomery, homeported in Mayport, Fla.

Operation Desert Shield is the largest deployment of U.S. military forces since Vietnam. The operation is in response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and threat to Saudi Arabia.

A 1987 graduate of Charlevoix High School, he joined the Navy in December 1987.

Girls' basketball players between the ages of 11 and 18 are invited to try out for the Northern Michigan Athletics Association (AAU) basketball team. The area program is in its third year and is based in Gaylord although tryouts may take place in other locations. Players will be divided into seven age groups.

Players interested in the program should contact AAU Northern Region Director Jeff Krajniak by Jafi. 7. Krajniak may be reached by phoning (517) 732-7732.

300,000 deer killed

A estimated 300,000 white-tailed deer were harvested in Michigan by firearm deer hunters during 1990's Nov. 15-30 season.

This year's season was one of Michigan's best, second only to the 1989 harvest of 334,930 animals.

The deer harvest is estimated throughout the 16-day season by a southbound hunter traffic survey, which has provided an early, accurate estimate of the harvest for three decades.

Final harvest figures, which will be available in June, are based on a mail survey of this year's deer hunters.

Thirty-nine hunting accidents, including two fatalities, occurred during the 16-day firearm deer season. These figures compare to 35 accidents, including four fatalities, reported in 1989.

Michigan leads the nation in deer hunting recreation, with about 10 million hunter days annually spent afield.

discussed again this year. Felter and Criss are likely to cast deciding votes.

Newly-elected mayor Dave Novotny is a former planning commission chairman and has also been involved with updating the city's master plan. Adopting the new master plan and updating the city's zoning ordinance are likely to be given high priority by the council in 1991.

In December of 1990 the council reviewed a proposed airport improvement plan. Work on that plan will begin in 1991. The first major visible change will be a new paved ramp capable of holding 80 planes. The current ramp has room for only two or three planes.

Work on Bridge Street will continue. During the past two years, downtown sidewalks have been replaced. State workers are scheduled to come in during the spring of 1991 and repave Bridge Street.

Several improvements were made to the city softball

City Council voted to purchase two parcels of property on U.S. 31 south of town for a total of $103,000. The 6.3 acres of property will eventually serve as the site for a new Department of Public Works building. The council voted to purchase the property despite protests from former councilman Bob Timms and others.

St. Mary's celebrates 100 years: St. Mary's Catholic Church celebrated 100 years in Charlevoix.

County gathering exemption overruled: A federal judge struck down two exemptions in the county's mass gathering ordinance. The judge ruled that exemptions for governmental and nonprofit organizations are unconstitutional. Art Reibel of Castle Farms Music Theater filed the suit which resulted in the ruling.

Cruise ship dock discussed: The Star of Charlevoix cruise ship sat idle at the dock all summer long. In September, the city council discussed the possibility of buying back the remainder of the dock lease to make it easier to lease the dock to another cruise operation.

Ground broken for senior center: Charlevoix senior citizens broke ground for renovations to the senior citizen center at the corner of West Carpenter Street and Norwood Road. Fund raising and construction continued throughout the remainder of the year.

October

School joins suit against state: The Charlevoix School Board voted to join 40 other school districts in a class action suit against the State of Michigan. The suit sought an injunction to prevent the state from shifting the burden for employee FICA funding from the state to local school districts.

Five arrested for assault: Five young people were arrested and subsequently convicted for their involvement in assaulting and attempting to rob an elderly woman.

Industrial fair: Industries from throughout Charlevoix County set up exhibits at the Industrial Art Fair and gave the public an opportunity to see the variety of products produced in the area.

1990 Fall Homecoming: Dan Terryberry and Janice Leadabrand were elected 1990 Fall Homecoming King and Queen.

County tax revenue to exceed $27 million: According to the county apportionment report county taxpayers will more than $27 million in property taxes to local schools and governmental units in 1991.

...1990 review: new mayor, 4th x-country title

November

City elects new mayor: Former planning commission chairman Dave Novotny defeated incumbent mayor Gary Probert in the general election. Novotny received 772 votes while Probert received 593. Voters also elected Bill Haggard, Ted Felter and John Cross III to the city council.

County millage requests rejected: Voters turned down a half mill increase in the county's allocated millage for the second time. The vote was 3,614 opposed, 2,583 in favor. Voters also voted down a 2.5 mill levy for a new court house. That vote was 5,247 opposed, 1,147 in favor.

Cross-country team defends state title: The Charlevoix High School boys' cross country team proved that "dynasty" is not too strong a word. They won their fourth straight Class C state championship despite having one of their top runners collapse before reaching the finish line. Running for the team at the state meet were

School contracts ratified: After months of bargaining the school labor unions and the school board ratified new contracts. The teachers will receive a 5.75 percent salary increase this year and 6 percent increases during each of the next two years. Support workers will receive a 5.75 percent increase this year and 5.9 percent increases during each of the next two years.

Judge orders building removed: District Court Judge Harvey Varnum ordered builder Al Shindler to remove a building and restore a wetland area because he didn't get proper wetland permits for the building. The ruling drew statewide attention.

One-man grand jury sought: Local law enforcement officials have requested Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas to appoint a one-person grand jury to look into the disappearance of

Heather Kleiber of Charlevoix and Vickie Salisz of Boyne Falls. Kleiber disappeared in August of 1990 while Salisz has been missing for nearly three years. The cases are unrelated. The major advantage of a grand jury is that it would be able to compel testimony from people who otherwise might be unwilling to testify.

Council to have fewer meetings

In recent years Monday night city council or committee of the whole meetings have occurred on a more consistent basis than the Newhart show. Call it a New Year's resolution if you wish, but one of the first things the new city council did was to resolve not to have so many meetings in the coming year.

Novotny noted that for certain matters, such as upcoming budget discussions, committee of the whole work sessions will take place. For matters where a more limited discussion period is necessary committee of the whole meetings will take place immediately prior to regular council meetings.

At the prompting of new mayor Dave Novotny, the council voted to have regular meetings on the first and third Mondays of the month as has been past practice, but to make second and fourth Monday work sessions the exception rather than the norm. The action came at the council's 1991 organizational meeting Monday evening.

"I feel that we really do not need all the committee meetings that we've had in the past," Novotny said.

"I feel that we really do not need all the committee meetings that we've had in the past."

Mayor Dave Novotny

In the past the council has often discussed an issue at a committee of the whole meeting and then voted on it the following Monday in a regular meeting.

First ward council member Cheri Hoffman supported decreasing the number of committee meetings saying it will save the city money by reducing council expenses.

Novotny said fewer meetings will also save time for city staff members. Staff members prepare council and media information packets for each meeting. Novotny said reducing the number of meetings will free up time for staff members to do something more valuable.

At the opening of the organizational meeting, city clerk Arlene Staley swore in council members Ted Felten, Jackie Cross, Bill Haggard and Mayor Novotny. All were elected in November's election. Felten, Cross and Novotny are new to the council while Haggard is an incumbent. Other members of the council are Pat Gaskin, Butch Russell and Cheri Hoffman.

The council selected Haggard to serve as deputy mayor.

Council approves airport master plan

A five-year improvement plan for the city airport received the city council's blessings Monday evening.

The plan calls for approximately $3.7 million in improvements, the vast majority of which will be paid for by federal and state aviation funds. Estimated local costs are $293,341.

An airport engineer working under the direction of a local airport master plan committee drafted the plan. In explaining the plan, city manager Mike Wiesner indicated that estimated costs will probably err on the high side if they err. He explained that the way the funding program for airports works is that you include everything in the plan that you might want because while you can take things out later, you can't add things.

Plans for 1991 improvements include constructing a paved apron capable large enough to accommodate 50 parked planes and acquiring four parcels of land to establish an approach area for a new runway.

The parcels of land are on the west side and near the south end of State Street. The new runway, which is not scheduled to be built in the first year of the five year plan, will be parallel to the current runway.

Blood drive scheduled Jan. 17

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be making its first visit in 1991 Thursday, Jan. 17. As usual, the Bloodmobile will be set up in the American Legion hall from 1-6:45 p.m. Members of the Legion donate their hall for this purpose. The Charlevoix Lions Club will unload and reload the Red Cross van.

Volunteer workers for the day are being solicited by Andi Mathews. Marge Malone is scheduling registered nurses to assist the Red Cross nurses throughout the day. Nancy Fowler is organizing the callers and will keep the master appointment sheet. You can make an appointment by calling her at 547-9314.

The philosophy of the American Red Cross Blood Program is that it is the responsibility of the healthy individuals in our society to voluntarily donate blood in the amounts needed to permit optimum care of all patients who need it.

Blood as a human resource should be available to all who need it regardless of economic status, ability to donate, ability to replace, place of residence, or membership in a specific group. Individuals should receive blood because they need it. There should be no other criteria.

The only place to get this blood is from healthy individuals in the community. Red Cross cannot manufacture the blood—it can only collect, process it, and distribute it to the hospitals where it is transfused into the arm of those individuals needing it and thus it goes back into the community as part of the life stream of another one of its citizens. Anyone 17 years old, weighing at least 110 pounds and in good health can give blood.

It has been the experience of the American Red Cross that the people in the country will respond when there is a need, expecting nothing in return except the personal satisfaction of improving the quality of life in their community by being a "Good Neighbor."

Feel good about yourself and help someone in need—Give blood Thursday, Jan. 17, 1-6:45 p.m. at the American Legion in Charlevoix.

runway, but will be located 200 feet to the north and 200 feet to the west. When the new runway is completed, the current runway will be used as a parallel taxiway.

The city's share of 1991 projects (i.e. a paved apron and land acquisition) is estimated to be approximately $98,000 of an estimated total cost of $745,600. Wiesner said the city has $33,000 currently available. He proposed appropriating $40,000 from the fiscal year 1991-92 budget. $10,000 of that $40,000 would be paid for by a lease agreement the airport fixed based operator functions under. The city would have to take out a $25,000 state loan at 6 percent interest to finance the remainder of the project.

Wiesner also recommended taking out additional state loans in subsequent years to pay for other projects in the plan. He said the total of the loans in 1994 would be $100,000. The city would have a maximum of seven years to pay back the loans.

"Again, I stress that this is a worst-case scenario," Wiesner said. "I don't expect these figures to be this high."

After approving the improvement plan, the council also approved the grant application and hired Whitworth Borda, the engineering firm which wrote the plan, to oversee construction.

State and federal authorities will review the grant application and return it to the city for final approval. According to Wiesner, the grant information probably will be back to the city in February.

School board adds meetings to deal with special topics

by WENDI WRIGHT

At a special work session Monday evening, the Charlevoix Board of Education decided to double its meeting times, in order to resolve some of the tough issues the board will face in the coming months.

Board members felt that extra time was needed outside of regular meetings to examine and discuss these issues in depth. Therefore, the board will meet at 7 p.m. on the alternate Monday nights when regular meetings are not scheduled. Each of these "special" meetings will focus on one specific issue.

At this week's work session, board members and administration members took time to identify the issues requiring extra discussion time. They identified the following topics as priorities:

- Prioritization of spending.
- School improvement, including staffing, accreditation, and technology.
- Goal Setting.

The extra meetings will be open to the public. The first meeting will take place Jan. 14.

High school adding computers

by WENDI WRIGHT

At its regular meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix School Board voted to allow IBM to install a computer lab in the high school for a six-month free trial period.

According to David Smith, high school principal, the new computer network will be used to teach subjects other than basic programming. "It could be used to aid teaching in all facets of the curriculum," Smith said. "We're going to have to change our whole philosophy toward the way we use computers in our school. We have to get beyond the idea of using computers to teach computer literacy only. We can use this network as a teaching aid in English, business, etc."

The board is under no obligation to buy the computers or the software. If, after the six-month trial period has ended, the board decides against purchasing the computers, IBM will remove the entire system at no charge. If, on the other hand, the board decides to keep the computers, financing will have to be arranged. "We will find the money," Doris Pearl, board member, stated. "Even if we have to cut something else." The price for the total system is approximately $49,000.

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

He's 30: older than dirt

A college friend of mine, I'll call him Fred for reference purposes, has grown old.

How old?
Old. Old. Really old! His sneezes are accompanied by a cloud of dust.

He's turning 30.

Thirty? Thirty, you say? Shoot, thirty's just around the corner from having Willard Scott put your picture on TV.

Mutual friends have told me that Fred's not taking this well. He's let it be known that he's not happy about turning 30.

Letting his friends know about this was his mistake. If something bugs you, never let your friends know about it. They'll hassle you no end.

There was a time when Fred was spirited, athletic, constant and young. He lost three out of four of those qualities shortly after college when he got married. Like all married men, his spirit was broken, he no longer could get out of the house to go play sports with the fellows and his once expansive vocabulary was reduced to two words. "Yes dear."

Now, he's not even young anymore. He's 30. Ouch! Thirty.

If things keep going the way they're going, what will he have left? Not much. Not even the hair on his head.

And I've told that bothers him too. Although why it bothers him I do not know. The loss of one's hair is a sign of knowledge. That's why it so rarely affects women and children.

I recently showed a picture of Fred to an attractive young lady. She was maybe 18 or 19.

I asked her, "What's the first word that comes to your mind when you see a guy who looks like this?"

She paused for a few seconds and then said, "Old."

"Why did you have to wait before you replied?" I asked.

"Well, I thought about saying 'archaic,' but that word carries a certain sense of grace. This guy here, he's just old."

Of course I tried to say something in my friend's defense.

"You may find this hard to believe," I said. "But there was a time when the guy in this picture turned the heads of many a young lady such as yourself."

The girl took a second look at the picture. "I suppose you're right. I find that hard to believe."

Thirty boy. Thirty. The big three-oh. Oh. Oh. Oh.

You don't mind it so much when little tykes call you "Daddy," but when kids old enough to be in college call you "Mister," that cuts right to the bone. Young people can be so cruel.

It's not only what other people do, it's the things you do to yourself. When you're scanning the stations on your car radio and hit a country-western station, you don't switch stations right away. Worse, you get annoyed when they page someone on the grocery store intercom because they interrupted something you were listening to. Oh, what an ugly thought.

Thirty. Man, Fred's turning 30. Poor old Fred. Hang tough.

Fred. Keep it hush, but last I knew I was older than you. Contrary to popular belief, thirty ain't so bad.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Three Charlevoix High School graduates have been named to the fall quarter Dean's List at Michigan Technological University. The three are: Dawn J. Buckmaster, a senior in Business Administration; Matthew H. Dixon, a senior in Mechanical Engineering; and Neal R. Stangis, a freshman in Applied Physics. Dixon had a perfect 4 point grade point average. In order to be named to the Dean's List, students had to have a grade point average of 3.5 or better.

Letters to the Editor:

Community praised

Editor,

In case you haven't noticed, this is a pretty special community. We have yearly proof of that fact as we survey each January the beautiful way they have contributed so generously of their time, labor, and material resources to make Christmas brighter for fellow Charlevoixians who have been in need of a little TLC.

These people made it possible for 379 people from 160 households to be served on Dec. 22. Nearly all received the components of Christmas dinner with some extra staples. Four households received gifts only, 138 children and 63 senior citizens over the age of 75 received gifts also.

Financial contributions came from 44 community organizations including church groups, civic organizations, commercial establishments and a school. Ten other groups donated children's Sox, mittens, and other knit garments. Food was contributed by four other groups. One church's parishioners purchased two gifts apiece for 130 of the children. Forty individuals also contributed money and material items.

Over 130 workers, including 25 young people, donated countless hours of labor to make it all possible.

All of us, contributors and recipients alike, should feel a special warmth in our hearts because we have all joined hands. We hope and pray we haven't unintentionally missed a "hand" out there.

Thank you,
Lucy Martin for

Charlevoix's south pier and light house are active during the spring, summer and autumn, but they're cold and lonely amidst the wind and ice at this time of year.

Letters to the Editor:

Mideast merits concern

Editor,

In the "March of Folly," Barbara Tuchman records the recurring "pursuit by governments, of policies contrary to their own interests." If she could update that book she would surely include the present policy of the United States regarding the situation in the Middle East.

County Democrats to meet

Charlevoix County Democrats will elect State Conventions delegates and county officers Jan. 12. The county democrats will meet at 10 a.m. at the U.A.W. Hall at 112 Park Street in Boyne City.

County officers to be elected include the chairman, vice chairman, treasurer, and secretary.

George Bush talks about "going the extra mile" to negotiate a peaceful settlement of the Gulf crisis, but with the pre-conditions and non-negotiable ultimatums issuing daily from Washington it must be apparent to Saddam Hussein that there is nothing to negotiate. His choice is to concede or to fight and he is making it quite clear that he intends to fight rather than bow to terms laid down by the United States. Is he bluffing? Are they both bluffing?

As this game of "chicken" is being played out by these two national leaders, January 15 draws closer. Will our Congress and the American people actually support this bellicose rhetoric until war becomes unavoidable? Isn't it obvious that there has to be a better way to deal with the Mideast crisis? Isn't anyone willing to call a halt and look for that better way?

If you believe there is a better way, it's time to speak out and refuse to be a party to this "march of folly."

Health department adds vaccinations

In an effort to eliminate measles in Michigan, the State and Federal governments have purchased a second dose of a combined measles, mumps, and rubella (MMR) vaccine for seventh graders. The seventh grade population was chosen in response to the American Academy of Pediatrics recommendation to give a second dose of measles vaccine to this age group due to the high incidence of this disease in the upper grade levels.

District Health Department No. 5 and local schools have combined efforts and are pleased to be able to offer the MMR vaccine to students free of charge at the child's school. Information is being sent to parents and guardians of seventh graders about the MMR vaccination effort to include when it will be given, what permission forms must be signed, and possible adverse reactions and suggested treatment following MMR immunization. A schedule for the school immunization program is also included with this release as a reminder to parents and guardians.

The "Important Information Form" sent to parents must be read very carefully and signed by the PARENT OR GUARDIAN before the immunization can be administered by Health Department staff. If parents have any questions, concerns, or require further information, please call the local health department office. The signed form must be returned to the child's school office prior to the day of the clinic.

MADD to meet

Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) will host a general meeting at 7 p.m. Jan. 14 at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department. The public is welcome to attend.

Fourth grade study of Egypt goes bazaar

Fourth grade students recently capped off a study of Egypt with an Egyptian bazaar. Each student made a costume and created their own little booth at their desks. Students then went from booth to booth buying and trading small items.

One-man grand jury appointed

Circuit Court Judge Richard Fajtas has appointed a one-man grand jury to investigate two missing people from Charlevoix County.

Probate Judge Fred Mulhauser will serve as a one-man grand jury to look into the cases of Heather Kleiber of Charlevoix and Vickie Salisz of Boyne Falls. The cases are unrelated.

Kleiber, a 14-year-old Charlevoix girl, has been missing since mid August. Salisz was 69 when she disappeared in the spring of 1988.

Police have spent countless hours on both cases, but haven't been able to locate the people. In both cases, some people police have sought to question have been less than completely cooperative. The main advantage of a grand jury is that the grand jury may subpoena witnesses and compel them to testify under oath.

The grand jury investigation is not expected to take more than a few weeks.

Military families gather to cope with stress of waiting

By I. Scott Swanson

There are 134 people from Charlevoix and Emmet Counties stationed in the Mideast. Other people are here at home worrying about them.

About 60 concerned wives, parents and friends of local soldiers and sailors gathered at the Charlevoix VFW Post Sunday evening. They are part of Show Your Colors, a group formed to support the military personnel stationed in the Mideast.

Cliff Denay of North Central Michigan College spoke to the group Sunday evening. He offered them advice on how to handle the stress they are feeling as the deadline for Iraq to leave Kuwait grows near and war appears more and more imminent.

VFW member Ralph McRae was among those attending the meeting. He said Denay told people they not to sit around and worry, but to get involved with something, to take a walk when they feel down and to realize that worrying doesn't change anything.

Several people at the meeting expressed some of the things they are feeling.

"It was kind of like a confession," McRae said.

Adina Crain, whose son Scott is assigned to Operation Desert Shield, has been active in the Show Your Colors group. She said families of military people have been feeling a lot of stress.

"You could tell by the atmosphere there that everyone was having similar feelings," she said of Sunday evening's meeting.

Crain said listening to Denay and the other family members helped.

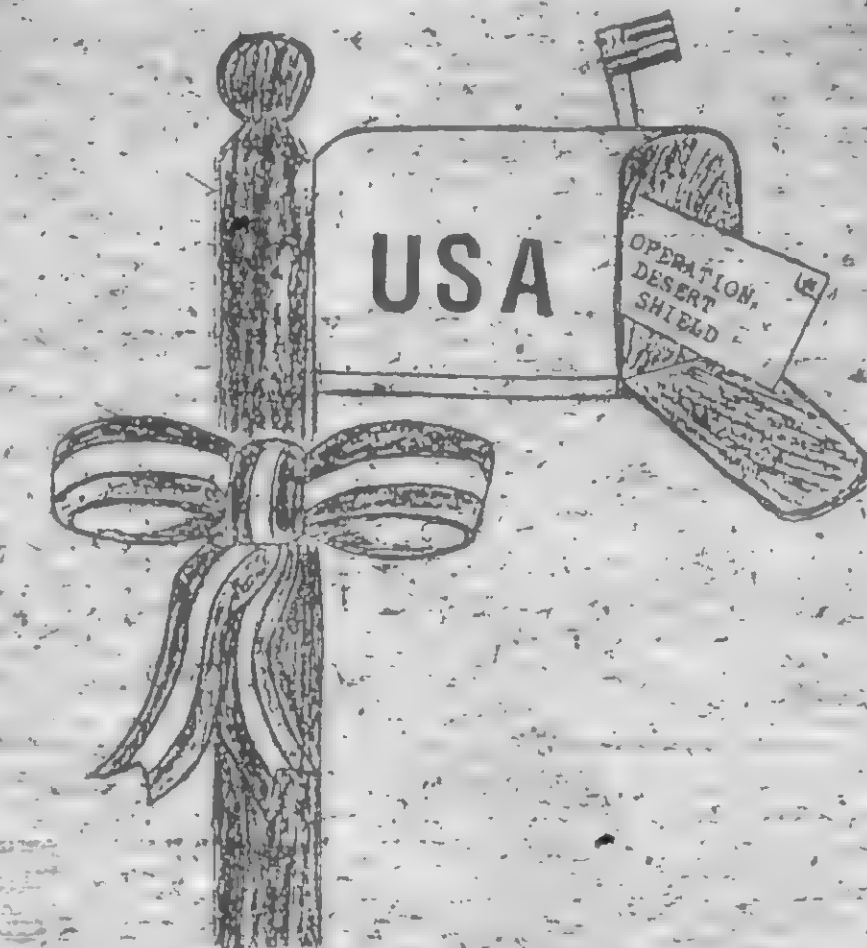

"Knowing there are people here that we can talk to helps," she said. "Knowing there are people in the same situation we are (helps)."

Crain talked to her son a week ago this past Saturday. At that time, he said that he probably wouldn't be able to call home again for a while. She said his morale seemed to be high.

"I think all of them just want to do what they have to do and then come home," Crain said.

At the end of Sunday's meeting the Show Your Colors group selected a design for a T-shirt they will be selling. (See accompanying design.) The design is meant to show support for the troops without being political. Proceeds from the sale will help pay shipping costs the group incurs when sending things to the troops.

SHOW YOUR COLORS

The Show Your Colors group selected the design above to be on T-shirts they will be selling to raise funds to send packages to soldiers in the Persian Gulf.

School board talks about spending goals

by WENDI WRIGHT

At a special meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education discussed many things concerning spending, including technology in the schools and curriculum.

To begin the meeting, Richard Kelly, school business manager gave the board a brief breakdown of the 1989-90 audit. According to Kelly, of $6 million spent last year, approximately 80% was spent on employee salaries and benefits, 2.8% on office supplies and teaching materials, 1.7% on athletics, 2.3% on utilities, 3.5% on capital outlay, including furniture, equipment and new buses.

Doris Pearl, board member, said she is interested in examining the budget closely in order to determine what would be eliminated in order to cover anticipated costs, including the school improvement program, and computers. "I want to see what we can get rid of without harming the overall school experience for our children," she said.

David Smith, high school principal, said he felt the curriculum had to be determined before the board would decide how to spend money. "We have to determine what we want our students to look like when they graduate," he said. "Then design a curriculum to meet those goals, and that will determine where money should be spent."

Scott Beatty, board member, said he is concerned about rushing in to cut

Give blood this Thursday

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be making its first visit in 1991 Thursday, Jan. 17. As usual, the Bloodmobile will be set up in the American Legion hall from 1 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. Members of the Legion donate their hall for this purpose. The Charlevoix Lions Club will unload and reload the Red Cross van.
The philosophy of the American Red Cross program is that it is the responsibility of the healthy individuals in our society to voluntarily donate blood in the amounts needed to permit optimum care of all patients who need it.
Blood as a human resource should be available to all who need it regardless of economic status, ability to donate, ability to replace, place of residence, or membership in a specific group. Individuals should receive blood because they need it. There should be no other criteria.
The only place to get this blood is from healthy individuals in the community. Red Cross cannot manufacture the blood. It can only collect, process it, and distribute it to the hospitals where it is transfused into the arms of those individuals needing it and thus it goes back into the community as part of the life stream of another one of its citizens. Anyone 17 years old, weighing at least 110 pounds and in good health can give blood.
It has been the experience of the American Red Cross that the people in the country will respond when there is a need, expecting nothing in return except the personal satisfaction of improving the quality of life in their community by being a good neighbor.
Feel good about yourself and help someone in need. Give blood Thursday, Jan. 17 at the American Legion in Charlevoix.

...spending goals

The budget. "I like a lot of things about our program and the educational things we offer our kids," he said.
The board discussed computers at length, and identified the whole issue of technology as one area in which Charlevoix schools are behind other school systems.
Before adjourning the meeting, the consensus of board members was that the teachers and former graduates should be surveyed to determine ways in which the school system could be improved.

County board names new road commissioner

Members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners made a surprise appointment last week when they named Robert Herrmann, Supervisor of Wilson Township, to the County Road Commission.

Herrmann was a late entrant into the race. He received the blessing of the County Republican Committee when John Kujawski, whom the committee had previously endorsed, withdrew from the race. This left retiring County Board Chairman Larry Matthew and Herrmann the only active candidates for the job, although former Road Commission employee Leonard Zakrzewski of Boyne Falls and Sean Ryan of Bay Township had also applied for the job.

Matthew, of Melrose Township, had received the endorsement of Townships Association members, who insisted that Road Commissioners should live outside the cities because their work was with county roads. However, Herrmann, with many township ties and the Republican endorsement, emerged as the strongest candidate for the job.

By statute, Road Commissioners serve six-year terms, which many, including local politicians, consider too long. The Michigan Townships Association at a recent meeting passed a resolution asking that Road Commissioners be appointed for shorter terms to "bring about greater accountability", that Road Commissions be expanded to five members serving staggered terms, and that they be appointed from established districts based on "the amount of road mileage under the jurisdiction of the County Road Commission."

Senior party organizes

An organizational meeting for the senior graduate party will take place at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 23 in the Charlevoix High School study hall. The all-night party is thrown by parents with the help of many others in the community on the night of commencement for the Charlevoix senior class. Anyone with questions may call JoAnne Patrick at 547-9842 or Sue Bush at 547-5154.

Medusa donates $50,000 for pool

Medusa Cement Corporation has pledged $50,000 toward a Charlevoix community indoor swimming pool. The friends of the Pool committee recently received the first installment of the contribution, which will be made over a five-year period.

According to a pool committee press release, the pledge makes the cement corporation the pool project's sixth patron. Patrons are parties pledging or contributing at least $25,000. Pool committee members expressed their gratitude to Medusa Corporation President Daniel Somes for hearing the committee's presentation and supporting the project. The committee also wished to thank Charlevoix Plant Manager Elbert Kaiser and his staff for their help.

EDITH

by EDITH GILBERT

The first time I saw Tommy Loeb, he was wearing an army officers' uniform. We were at the exclusive Koch's Gambling Casino in Charlevoix during the summer of '42. The tide of World War II was making everyone nervous. A dressy crowd had gathered around the spinning roulette wheels and we all eyed the uniformed young men with some apprehension. Tom stood out in the crowd. He was tall, trim, young and handsome and still married to wife number one, Bode.

Over the years our paths crossed frequently. While he was married to Joan, the Gilberts and Loeb gave large and memorable outdoor parties together with bands, bartenders and buffet barbecues. We also occasionally played tennis and bridge together.

Later, we saw a lot of Tommy when he lived year-round across the street with son, Tim. He was again between wives at this time. We on the other hand commuted from Detroit almost every week. On one trip, we arrived in front of our house on Michigan Avenue and there was a smiling Tom sitting on the curb waiting for us! Puzzled we wondered, how could this be? How long had he been sitting there? What was this mystery Charlevoix network?

Weeks later we unravelled the playful mystery. Our caretaker's brother ran the gas station on top of the hill. When he saw us drive by, he telephoned ahead to announce our arrival. Bingo! The Charlevoix network in those days was as good as any fax machine is today, and a lot cheaper.

These pleasant reminiscences leap to mind because I recently heard from his wife, Kay, that Tom had suffered a severe stroke in Florida. The law in that state demands that a feeding tube is required for all terminally ill people. It hurts me to think of Tom lying comatose in a nursing home being fed a bland liquid formula of proteins, vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates and fat, when what he really would appreciate is a shot of Connoisseur accompanied with a dollop of Romanoff Caviar. There are a lot of us who wish we could say "Bon Appetit" to him just one more time.

And I wish he could edit this column for me like he used to edit my early syndicated articles. Few people know what a skilled wordsmith Tommy was. He would have pointed out something, even if it only was a missing comma.

P.S. Tom Loeb passed away a few hours after this column was written.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

We're on the map now

Before we got up on our high horse and start boasting about Charlevoix's latest step toward modernization, let us bear in mind that Manecora has had them for years.

Charlevoix recently installed pedestrian crossing lights at the intersection of Bridge and Clinton Streets. Our first clue that we were on the map was when we got a MacDonald's. A Pizza Hut and a Burger King followed to confirm this position. And now this. Pedestrian lights. We now may sleep soundly at night knowing that our place in Western Civilization is forever secure.

Whether or not these pedestrian lights actually cut down on the number of pedestrians walking out in front of vehicles during the summer remains to be seen. But at least drivers will have additional evidence to support their outrage when some pedestrian with his head in the clouds drifts past the front bumper.

When I'm a pedestrian, I feel insulted by pedestrian lights. I want to know why the bureaucrats of the world feel pedestrians need to be told not to walk in front of a moving vehicle.

When I'm a driver, pedestrian lights don't bother me. When I'm a driver, I know why bureaucrats feel some pedestrians need to be told not to walk in front of a moving vehicle. Some pedestrians do indeed need to be told.

I consider deeper questions when I'm a driver. Why do some pedestrians need the guidance of a pedestrian light? Shouldn't the folly of a toe-to-bumper conflict be apparent? Should people who don't see the folly of such a conflict be allowed to walk the streets alone?

Apparently, the aforementioned bureaucrats have had some of the same questions go through their minds. Please note that the new lights do not contain the words "Walk" and "Don't Walk." No, they contain little symbols. One shows a person who appears to be walking. The other shows an upheld hand indicating that a person is better served by standing still.

The designers of pedestrian lights have correctly concluded that people who need to be told not to walk in front of moving vehicles probably can't read. Oh, maybe they read well enough to pick up a one-word instruction such as "Walk." But to doubt your expectations and expect them to read and comprehend a two-word directive such as "Don't Walk" would just be too much to ask.

And what about those of us who fully comprehend pedestrian lights, but still occasionally choose to disregard them?

There have been times when I have been standing at intersections in other communities and even though the pedestrian light said, or indicated, "Don't Walk," there was no traffic coming so I walked anyway.

Was I reckless in walking against the light? Was I living too close to the edge? Is this a form of civil disobedience which threatens the very fabric of our society?

I took my chances.

Beyond this, there have been times when I have walked up to an intersection and joined a small group of people who were waiting for the pedestrian light to change even though there was no traffic coming. I don't stand around with these groups for long. I cross the street.

Ironically, when you do something like this, normally the rest of the group follows. Civil disobedience is a slippery slope. You start out making a personal decision to cross against a pedestrian light and the next thing you know you're some kind of rebel leader.

As I said before, the effectiveness of the pedestrian lights remains to be seen. If they fail, what more can we do to insure the safety of pedestrians? A pedestrian overpass? I think not. Those are ugly and people might start dropping snow balls on cars below.

If the pedestrian lights aren't the complete answer, then I suggest the following:

Build a pedestrian tunnel half a block to the south of the traffic light, in line with the alley by the former hardware store building. The other end could open up in the park with a view of the waterfront and the new bandshell.

Any fool could cross the street in a tunnel like that without getting hit by a car.

Letters to the Editor:

Peace march planned

Editor,

In the past few weeks I have noticed a cooling off of opinions concerning our government's overzealous Middle East policy. Now is not the time to watch and wait. Now is the time to pour on the steam.

Ask yourselves:

- 1) Are our collective imaginations that far gone that we could not create a better way of life by terminating oil from the Middle East?
- 2) Is one illegal occupancy more unthinkable than another?
- 3) Have all diplomatic channels been exhausted?
- 4) Can a U.S. president alone declare war?
- 5) Is saving face more important than saving lives?
- 6) Can this war be justified?
- 7) Will our permanent presence in the Middle East be resented?
- 8) Will the death of thousands of humans, soldiers and civilians alike, solve anything?

For those of you feeling powerless in this situation, here is a real chance to stand up and be counted. The National Committee For Peace in the Mid-East has called for a march on Washington on Jan. 26. Buses will be leaving from Traverse City. One bus is full and a second bus is half full as of this writing. The cost is $75 per person. We will leave Friday night Jan. 25, and return Saturday night Jan. 26. Saturday we will take part in a massive peace march and rally with thousands of people from across the nation.

This is a Democracy. Your vote counts. Save a soldier's life. Stop the war before it begins. You can make a difference. March on Washington on Jan. 26.

If you have any questions concerning transportation to Washington call Stephen Little at 547-5143. If you cannot make the trip but want to help someone else get there, you can make a tax-deductible contribution to The Neahtawanta Research and Education Center, 1303 Neahtawanta Road, Traverse City, MI 49684.

County board appoints committees

Charlevoix County Commissioners are starting their new session with new assignments on county committees and as liaisons to public Commissions and Boards.

The County Board of Commissioners' duties are divided into two major committees: Personnel/Internal Government and Public Safety/Judicial/Building and Grounds. Each of these committees is sub-divided into areas of responsibility covering various departments of county government.

Under "Personnel," responsibilities include personnel matters, department operations, union matters, insurance, advertising, and printing.

Under "Internal Government," committee members are concerned with the Equalization Department, Public Transit, Clerk's office, Treasurer's office, Cooperative Extension, Register of Deeds office, Veterans Affairs, and Planning Department.

Under "Public Safety," committee members have responsibility for Law Enforcement and Emergency Services.

Under "Building and Grounds," committee responsibilities include the county's physical plants and grounds, construction codes, soil erosion, conservation, and Drain Commissioner's office.

County Commissioners serving on the Personnel/Internal Government Committee are Walter Hufford, chairman; James Behling; and Phillip Johnson. Those serving on the Public Safety/Judicial/Building and Grounds Committee are Phillip Johnson, chairman; Carl Price; and Howard Healer.

For the first time, the full six-man Board of Commissioners is serving as both the Budget Committee and the audit Committee.

There are 22 County Commissions and Boards which are largely made up of people from the general public. These Commissions and Boards assist with County operations and each one is assigned at least one member of the County Board as a liaison person between the two bodies. FAMILY

Way - Fryczynski

Judi Way and Gary Fryczynski were married Saturday, October 6, at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

The bride's uncle, Robert Way, a minister in West Germany, officiated at the double ring rites before approximately 200 guests.

Doug and Lorrie Way of Charlevoix are parents of the bride, and Francis and Jeanne Fryczynski of Petoskey are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride's wedding gown was of crystal organza fashioned with a fitted satin bodice embellished with hand-sewn pearls and sequins, a ruffled skirt, and a cathedral-length train layered in ruffles. She wore a headpiece of floral silk to which a veil was attached.

Peggy New Conner assisted the bride as matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Cindy Whiteley, Chris Way, cousin of the bride, Connie Way and Kris Way, sisters-in-law of the bride, and Angie Steynson. They wore pale pink Chantilly lace and satin gowns with fitted bodices and carried black fans with accents of pink and white flowers and pink pearls.

Heather Fryczynski, six-year-old daughter of the bridegroom, also served as a bridesmaid, wearing a tea-length gown similar to those of the other bridesmaids.

Henry Hankins served as best man. Groomsmen were Bobbie Fryczynski, brother of the bridegroom; Ernie Brosseau; Dave Moody; Rob Taylor, uncle of the bridegroom; and Jeremy Fryczynski, nephew of the bridegroom.

The parents of the bride hosted a buffet dinner at North Central Michigan College following the ceremony. The rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bridegroom's parents, was also held there.

The newlyweds spent their honeymoon in Florida and are now at home in Petoskey, where both are employed.

Martial arts class offered through adult education

By L. Scott Swanson

A Kuk Sool Won martial arts group will be part of this year's adult education program. The group will be under the direction of Kevin Janisse, who received his black belt while working with a similar group in Sault Ste. Marie.

Approximately a dozen members of the Sault Ste. Marie group traveled to Charlevoix last Thursday evening to give a Kuk Sool Won demonstration. More than 50 people watched the demonstration which took place in the high school gym following the freshman basketball game.

Kuk Sool Won is a Korean martial arts form developed by the Korean Royal Palace Guard. It began being taught to the public in the 1950s. Kuk Sool Won features many smooth, circular motions and uses pressure points to disable an opponent.

Janisse studied under Rudy Timmerman, who traveled to Charlevoix for the demonstration to help his pupil get his own club off the ground.

Timmerman said his group stresses etiquette and discipline. They do a minimal amount of sparring, stressing movement and form rather than fighting. Members of the group are expected to demonstrate respect for other people and property. Those who don't show such respect are not allowed to stay in the group.

In talking with the Courier following the demonstration, Timmerman explained that people who lack self discipline usually don't stay in the group for long. He said the discipline bothers them and they quit of their own volition.

Although Timmerman's Kuk Sool Won group does only a minimal amount of sparring within their group, they have fought in tournaments and done well.

Janisse, who is originally from Boyne Falls, joined the Sault Ste. Marie Kuk Sool Won group while a student at Lake Superior State College. After graduating, he found employment at Inex of Charlevoix.

The Kuk Sool Won group in Sault Ste. Marie is affiliated with the school system. In attempting to form a group in Charlevoix, Janisse contacted the school and was put in touch with community education director Ken Bartley.

Janisse said that as of Monday there were 11 people signed up for the group. He hopes for a maximum of around 30. The Charlevoix Kuk Sool Won group will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. There is a $35 charge for the 10-week adult education course.

For people who prefer an even gentler form of martial arts, a Tai Chi class is also being offered through adult education. Tai Chi is noncombative and involves gentle, rhythmic movement. The Tai Chi class is taught by Sherry Withers and meets from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday evenings at the high school beginning Jan. 24. The cost of the Tai Chi class is $3 per week.

Adults find it's never too late to learn

By L. Scott Swanson

Some say you can't teach an old dog new tricks, but approximately 75 students registered for this semester's adult education classes apparently don't believe it.

Just because a person stops going to school doesn't mean they stop learning. This semester local adults will be learning about computers, martial arts, woodworking and U.S. History among other things.

Ken Bartley is the director of one of two local adult education programs. The program Bartley is involved with sets up classes which meet in the evening. Another local program, directed by Sherry Black, has classes which meet in the day.

The program Bartley directs sponsors classes for both enrichment and high school completion. The consortium is a group of school districts the state classifies as "out-of-formula." Forming the consortium allows the school districts to get enough state aid to offer the high school completion courses free of charge to students.

Bartley said he expects about 10 high school completion students this semester and about 65 enrichment students. Enrichment students pay a fee to cover the cost of paying someone to teach the class.

All of the high school completion students are certified instructors. Enrichment classes are taught either by certified teachers or by business people or people who happen to be knowledgeable in some certain subject. For example, a local man who is a black belt in martial arts is teaching a martial arts class. Local people who became skilled photographers as a hobby have taught photography classes.

Enrichment classes normally meet one or two evenings a week for 10 weeks, however some are as short as three weeks. High school completion courses meet for three and a-half hours per week for 17 weeks as required by the state.

Bartley became involved with the adult education program in 1981. He said that in the past nine years the number of course offerings has grown while the number of students fluctuates. Between the evening and daytime courses, the number of adults completing their high school graduation requirements has increased.

Great Lakes' levels continue to rise

For the fourth consecutive month, the Great Lakes Basin received above average precipitation. On an individual lake basis, precipitation on Lake Superior was less than average (80%) in December, and its water level continued to follow the usual seasonal decline. Lake Michigan-Huron, although having greater than average precipitation (130%), had levels that also followed the normal seasonal decline. In contrast, very heavy precipitation on the Lakes St. Clair, Erie and Ontario Basins, resulted in rather dramatic increases in their water levels, breaking the seasonal downward trend.

The Great Lakes forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, shows that Lake Superior is expected to remain near their long-term average until rising slightly above average in April. Lakes St. Clair, Erie, and Ontario are projected to continue above their long-term averages throughout the forecast period.

A more detailed summary of Lakes Michigan-Huron water levels follows.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of December were at elevation 577.92 feet (176.15 meters) above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 43 inches (33 cm.) above Chart Datum. This was about 9 inches (23 cm.) above what it was a year ago, and about 2 inches (5 cm.) below one month ago. The December monthly mean level of 578.81 feet (176.18 meters) was about the same as the long-term average for December. The lakes, however, remained about 31 inches (79 cm.) above their all-time low December monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1964. The forecast shows that at the end of January the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 1 inch (3 cm.) below what it was at the end of December. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal decline into February. The water level in June 1991, is expected to be about 2 inches (5 cm.) above the long-term average for that month, or about 8 inches (20 cm.) above what it was at the same time in 1990.

BUSINESS

Ray Wood receives Rotary fellowship

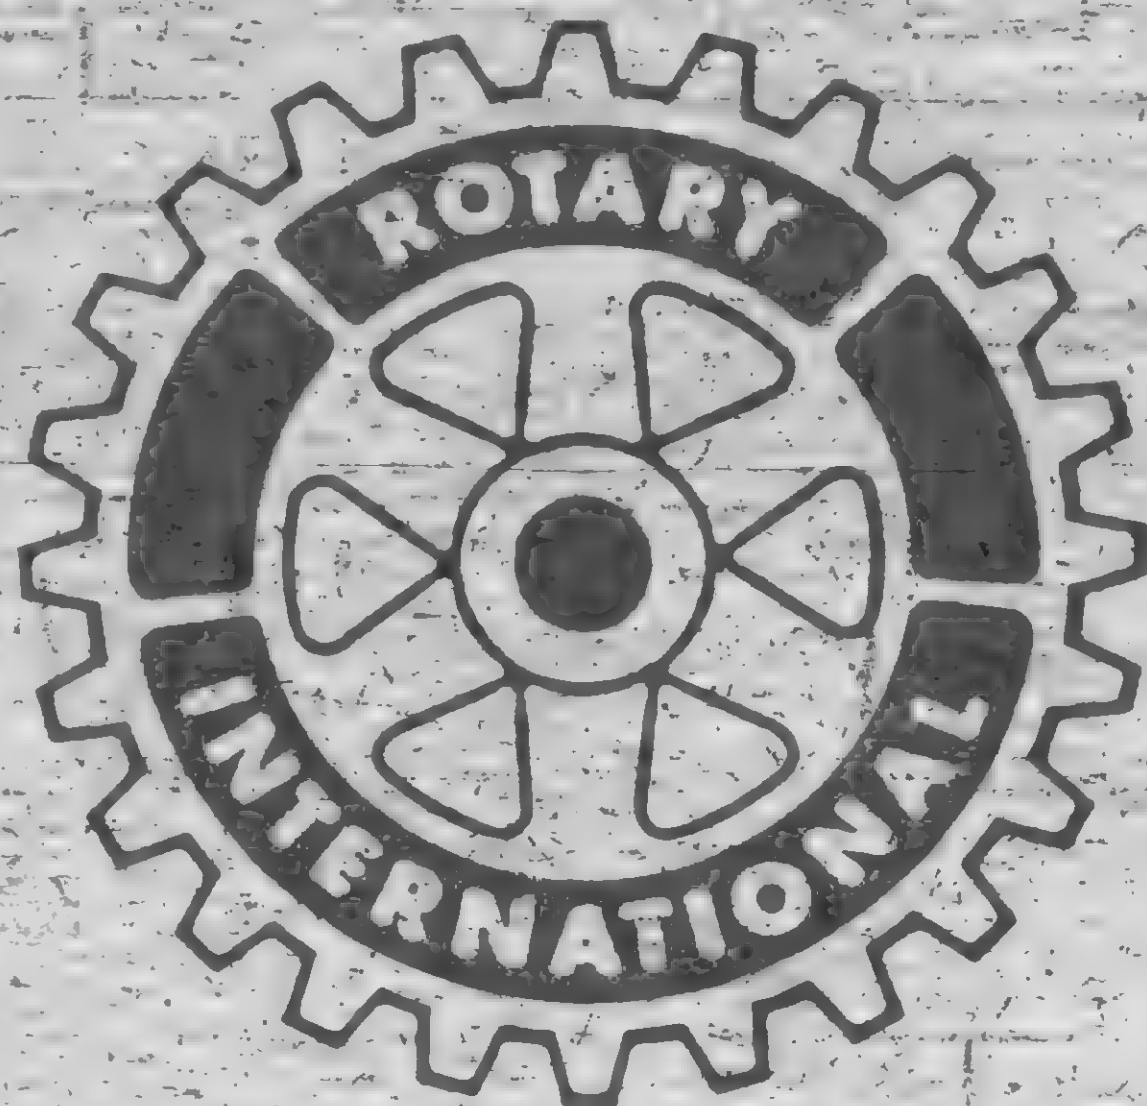

Ray Wood of the Charlevoix Rotary Club recently received a Paul Harris Fellowship. The Paul Harris Fellowship is the highest honor a Rotarian can receive. Wood was chosen for the fellowship due to his involvement in the Charlevoix Rotary and many other areas of community service.

In order for Wood to receive the fellowship, it was necessary for the local group to contribute $1,000 to Rotary causes. The local club put up $500 of that money and local Rotary member Bob Kern put up the other $500. A portion of the money will go to the Polio Plus program, an International Rotary effort to eliminate polio throughout the world. Another portion of the money will go toward Rotary scholarships and the remainder will fund grants to fight hunger and promote health and humanity.

Rayder basketball team remains tied for division lead with 57-52 win

East Jordan proved to be a stubborn opponent, but Charlevoix held on for a 57-52 win Friday night. The win raised the Rayder varsity's overall record to 5-2 and kept them undefeated in conference play. They are currently tied with Elk Rapids for the top spot in the Lake Michigan Division of the Great Northern Conference.

The Rayders got out to an early lead, finding themselves ahead 15-11 at the end of the first quarter. But East Jordan has since height this season than they've had for the past several. They used that height in the second quarter to not only overcome the four point deficit, but to take a four-point lead, 31-27 at the half.

In the third quarter it was Charlevoix's turn to respond to a challenge. The Rayders clamped down on defense and allowed the Red Devils a paltry six points in the third period. Meanwhile they scored 15 points of their own and entered the fourth quarter leading 42-37.

Charlevoix threatened to blow the game open in the fourth quarter, building an eight-point lead at one time. Despite that lead, an East Jordan come-back left the game's outcome in doubt right down to the final minute. With just more than a minute to play, East Jordan drew to within a single point at 51-50.

But that was to be the Red Devils' last hurrah for the evening. Charlevoix outscored their cross-country rivals 6-1 in the final minute of play.

Senior forward Todd Kovach led the Rayders scoring attack with 20 points. Junior guard Luke LaBlance added 14. In addition to his point production, Kovach also had 16 rebounds and six assists. Dan Terryberry had 11 rebounds, five assists and four steals.

Boys and girls ski teams both get wins

Charlevoix's boys and girls ski teams both got wins last Thursday in a three-way meet at Schuss Mountain.

The girls won with 26 points, followed by Grayling with 60 points and Elk Rapids with 100.

The boys shared the victory with Grayling. Both teams scored 47 points while Elk Rapids totaled 97.

Charlevoix's Katherine Campbell had an excellent day, finishing first in slalom and second in giant slalom.

Other Charlevoix girls and their places were:
Heather Keller 28, 3GS.
Kelly Heck 43, 4GS.
Kim Keller 55, 5GS.
Alison Boyer 65, 6GS.
Edith Parr 85.
Jessica Klase 8GS.

Charlevoix boys and their placers were:
Brandon Jess 6GS.
Dan Hoadley 2S, 4GS.

J.H. Heck 3S, 8GS.
Dan Spang 6S, 10GS.

Buday's Electronics received a Christmas Order for a VCR from Fairbanks, Alaska after advertising in the Charlevoix Courier's November 28th edition. The gift was a surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cummings, of Charlevoix, from their son and daughter-in-law, Terry and Becky who live in Alaska. Staying close to family and friends in Charlevoix when you live in Alaska is not an easy task. A subscription to the Charlevoix Courier helps. Making family videos to mail to his parents in Charlevoix was another way Terry found to bridge the gap, and Buday's of Charlevoix made this possible. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cummings now enjoy watching their son Terry, his wife, & children on video and are grateful to the Charlevoix Courier and Buday's for bringing their family closer together.

Brochure helps tax appeals

The 1991 edition of the Michigan Consumers Council's popular "How to Review and Appeal Your Property Tax Assessment" brochure is now available. The one-page pamphlet provides important information on Michigan's property tax appeal procedures, including summer tax collections.

Prepared in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Treasury, the brochure details how an individual property tax bill is computed using the state equalized valuation (SEV) rate. It also provides insight on how assessments are made and how property owners can determine if their property appraisal was done correctly.

The Council advises property owners to review the appraisal records in their assessor's office for accuracy. Common assessment errors include such false assumptions as a house having a finished basement or fireplace when it doesn't. Homeowners should also look for missed defects that might tend to reduce the value of a house, such as the shifting of the foundation, and even simple clerical errors in computing the tax.

If property owners find an error, the Consumers Council recommends that the errors be discussed with the assessor first. Some assessors may be willing to adjust the appraisal on the spot, thus saving the property owner and the assessor the nuisance of a formal protest. If the property owner should find it necessary to formally protest, the brochure provides tips on how to proceed and document a case before a local Board of Review.

Council Director Kent S. Wilcox noted that "This brochure shows consumers that you can fight city hall — and win! Homeowners just need to do their homework. Know how rates are calculated; what your home's value is based upon, and the selling prices of other similar homes in your neighborhood."

"The pamphlet emphasizes that timing is crucial in making an appeal. Each township and city has its own functioning Board of Review that meets periodically. It is crucial that property owners who plan to file a protest contact their local city or township office soon to obtain the deadline for filing."

"How to Review and Appeal Your Property Tax Assessment" is one of the most widely-requested brochures published by the Consumers Council. Copies are available free of charge at many Michigan assessors' offices or by contacting the Michigan Consumers Council, 106 W. Allegan St., 414 Hollister Building, Lansing, MI 48933; telephone, (517) 373-0947.

Council votes against purchase

By L. Scott Swanson

Despite warnings that they would be in breach of a contract, city council members voted against a budget amendment to fund the purchase of property for a new department of public works building.

Following lengthy discussion Monday evening, the council by a three to three vote rejected a budget amendment which would have funded the purchase of 6.39 acres of land near U.S. 31 south of town at a cost of approximately $102,000.

The council agreed to buy the property last fall, authorizing then mayor Gary Probert to sign two contracts (the property encompasses two parcels which are owned by different people) on the city's behalf. Those contracts were signed.

Following the agreement to purchase the property, city staff members were told to determine how much each city fund (i.e., electric, water, motor pool, general and sewer funds) should pay toward the purchase. Monday's discussion concerned a budget amendment to allocate, or as things turned out reject allocation of, purchase money from those funds.

Prior to the council vote, city attorney Jim Young advised the council that the 1990 city council authorized the mayor to sign two contracts which were signed.

Young said the issue before the council was whether or not to fund those contracts. He cautioned the council that not funding the contracts would put the city in breach of contract. He said if that happened, the other parties to the contracts might do at least one of three things: They might do nothing; they might attempt to have a court enforce the contract so the city would have to go through with the purchase; or they might take the matter to court and seek damages.

The budget amendment required an ordinance which meant a two-thirds council majority, rather than just a simple majority where the mayor may break a tie, was required. Council members Bill Haggard, Pat Gaskin and Cheri Hoffman voted in favor of the budget amendment. Council members Ted Felner, Bitch Russell and Jackie Cross opposed it. Felner and Cross were not on the council when the decision was made to purchase the property. Russell was on the council, but voted against the purchase.

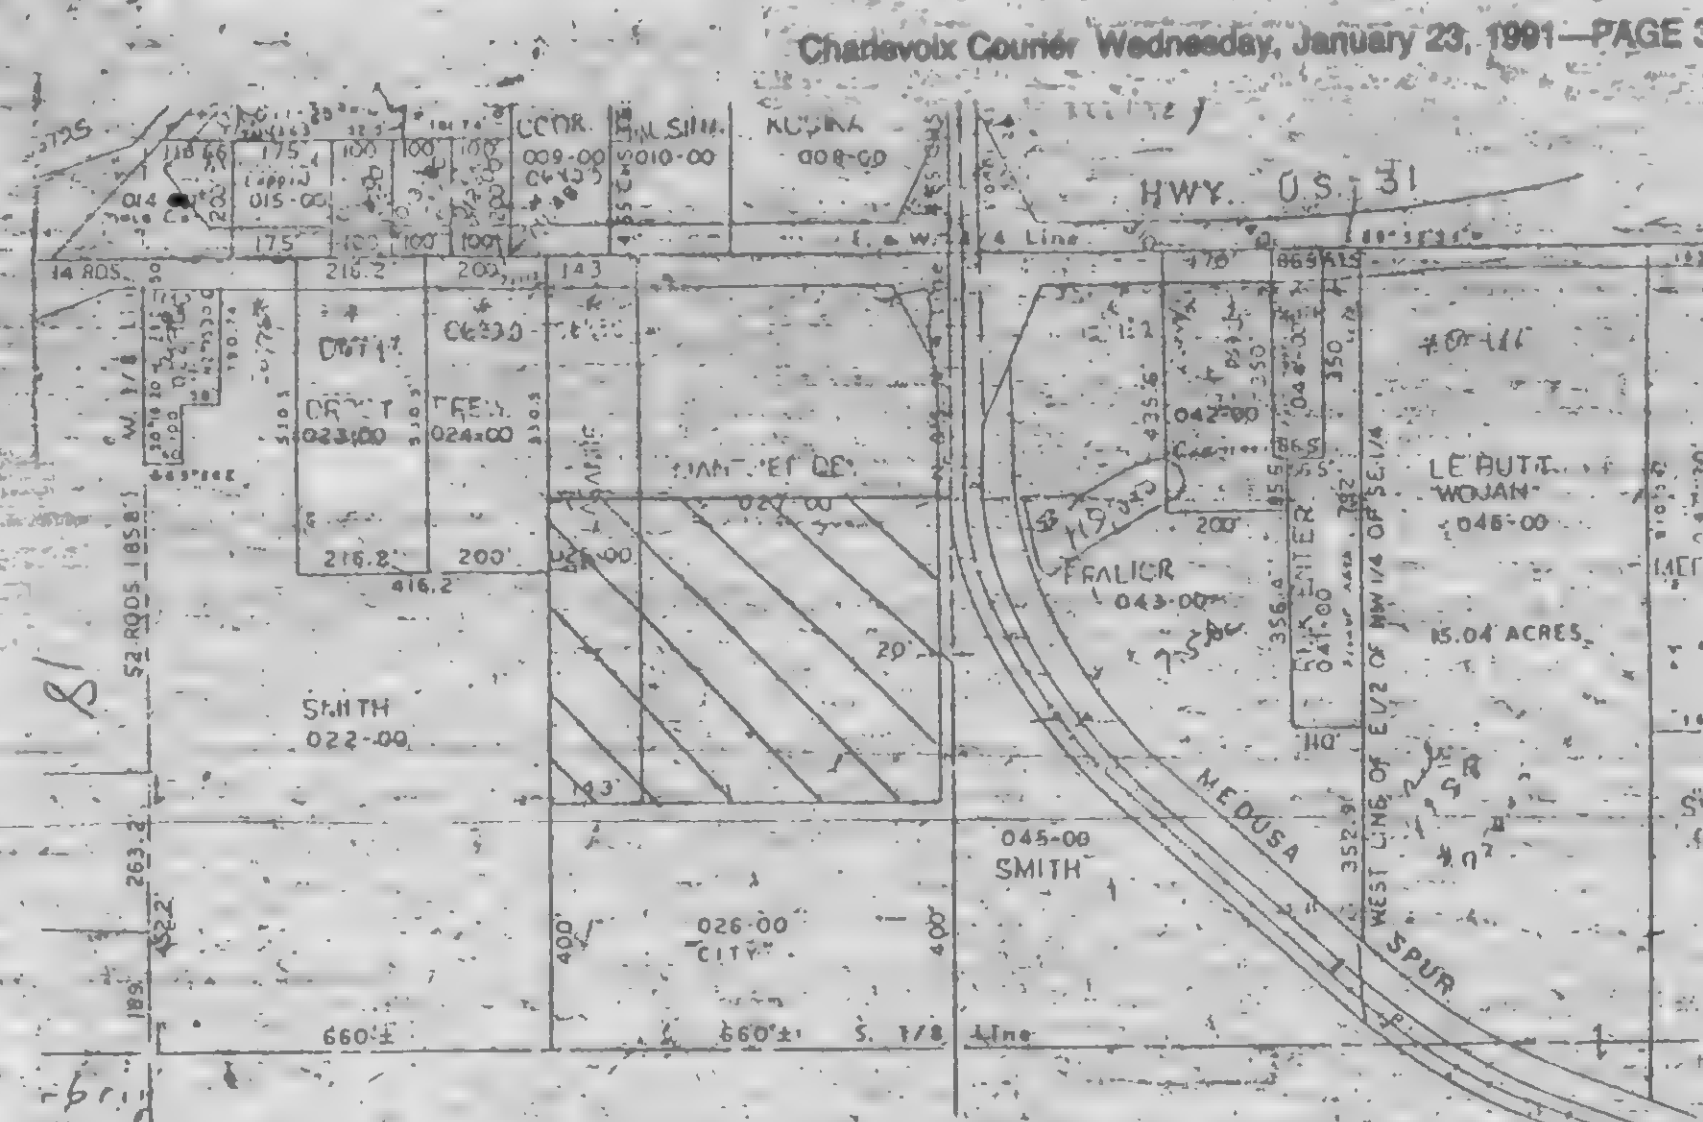

Felner, Russell and Cross all expressed concern about the price of the property. Approximately 5 acres of the property is owned by Manthei Development Co. and carries a $90,000 price tag which equates to more than $18,000 per acre.

Felner said he feels there are other pieces of property in the same vicinity which could be purchased for less. "I'm not for buying this one until we explore the other one," he said.

Russell and some members of the audience said that if the city public works department need storage space, there is other property currently owned by the city which can be used. "With the economy the way it is right now, I feel we have some sites we can use," Russell said.

During a lengthy discussion preceding the vote, former council member Bob Timms suggested storing things in the fenced in area surrounding the city sewage treatment plant if the city needs a secure outdoor storage area.

Timms suggested that the impetus behind purchasing the land is to eventually allow the present public works buildings near Ferry Avenue to be moved so a park can be created. The purchase of the new land and construction of new public works buildings carries a ball park estimated price of $2.4 million. Timms said $2.4 million is "awful

The map above shows property in the area where the city is considering purchasing land as the future site of a new department of public works concept. The land is just south of town near U.S. 31. The lined area indicates the property the city is most interested in.

expensive park land." He added, "I, for one, don't want to pay that kind of price."

City manager Mike Wiesner pointed out earlier in the meeting that the city's plans aren't to construct new buildings immediately. Moving the departments out of their present location would probably take place over several years.

Wiesner said the city's immediate needs are storage for bulk items such as electric pools and cable spools. He said the city also needs winter storage space for some vehicles. Currently the city is renting boat storage space and keeping vehicles there.

The city owns a piece of property on M-66, but Wiesner said that property has a steep ravine and estimated that it would require 40,000 yards of fill at around $2 per yard to make the site suitable for a DPW site. He noted that the lot also is marketable in its present state for residential use and might bring the city at least $30,000.

Ben Manthei of Manthei Development Co. defended the price the city agreed to pay. He said a considerable amount of the work had been done on the property. He added that the company had at one time planned to sell lots on the property for a small industrial park at a price of $28,000 per acre. He said the company had an offer of $26,000 for one acre and were negotiating on two others when the city expressed interest in buying the entire parcel. Manthei said the price agreed on with the city is 70 percent of what the company was asking when they were selling the parcel in individual lots.

"We feel the value is there,"

Manthei said. "In fact the city is getting a good deal on that property."

Haggard said the decision to buy the property wasn't a snap decision. He said the council had been looking at property for four years and had walked several sites.

Gaskin said, "I believe we do need a public work site for good, solid planning toward our future."

Hospital guild names new officers while saluting former officers

New officers were installed at the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild on Monday, Jan. 14. Elected to serve two-year terms were: Margaret Landman, president; Rebecca Hancey, vice president; and president-elect; Carolyn Christiansen, re-elected secretary; and Anah Potter, Treasurer.

The new officers were presented with a bouquet of potpourri by Virginia Washington, of Cheboygan, acting chairman of the North Central District of the Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries. Each bouquet contained individual herbs and petals significant of the new positions assumed by the officers.

A gift of appreciation was presented to Virginia

Roundtree who has served as president for the past two and one-half years.

It was reported at the meeting that the Guild had provided 4,776 hours of service to the hospital last year. Membership in the Guild now totals 95 active members and 92 inactive members.

As a result of the Guild's fund-raising efforts, gift shop sales, and patient TV rentals, the group presented the hospital administration with a check for $6,700. The contributions will go toward the purchase of an eye lens emulsifier. This equipment will greatly enhance the cataract surgery capabilities at the hospital.

Newly elected hospital guild president receives a bouquet from Virginia Washington of the Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries.

Rayders take league lead

Defense clamps down in stretch

By F. Scott Swanson

Charlevoix put the defensive clamps on Elk Rapids in the final three minutes of a league showdown with Elk Rapids Friday night and took a come-from-behind 67-61 win. The Rayders outscored Elk Rapids 15-3 in the final three minutes of the game. Charlevoix and Elk Rapids entered the game undefeated in the Lake Michigan Division of the Great Northern League.

Elk Rapids took an early lead in the game. The Elks featured a tall and active front line that went to the boards well. Several of their baskets came on second shots. Meanwhile, at the other end of the court, Charlevoix had trouble getting the ball inside. The first quarter ended with the Rayders trailing 16-9.

The second quarter opened as if it was going to be a replay of the first quarter. Charlevoix was getting eaten up on the defensive boards. The Rayders were also having problems offensively. Their only salvation early in the quarter was a pair of three-point shots by junior guard Luke LaBlanc. In addition to his offensive contribution, LaBlanc and Erich McElroy began going to the defensive boards. Late in the quarter Charlevoix closed to within three points at 27-24.

The Rayders used a full-court press whenever they got the opportunity. The press caused a few turnovers in the first half, but even when it didn't cause turnovers it harassed the Elk Rapids guards and took their mind off their offense.

Elk Rapids tried a full-court press briefly in the second quarter, but Rayder guard Paul Wakulat out through it like a hot knife through butter, and the Elks scrapped their press. Elk Rapids' half-court zone defense continued to give the Rayders fits in the second quarter. Rayder forward Todd Kovach was too strong for the Elks to handle when he got the ball near the basket, but in the first half the Elks defense forced Kovach into the corners of the court. With two defenders pinning him between the baseline and sideline Kovach could neither drive nor shoot effectively.

Despite their brief run, Charlevoix closed the half down 34-26.

In the third quarter the Rayders made some adjustments. Kovach began posting up higher on offense. He and Wakulat began working well together. When the defense extended, Kovach turned and drove to the basket. When it collapsed, he kicked the ball back out. When the defense paid too much attention to Kovach and Wakulat, LaBlanc drilled a variety of dunks and trippers from the perimeter. Dan Terryberry and either McElroy or Brian Coolman mopped up leftovers.

Despite improvement on offense, the Rayders continued to have problems keeping the Elks off the glass. One Elk Rapids basket midway through the third quarter came on the Elks fifth consecutive shot. As any coach will tell you, those fifth shots will kill you.

The quarter ended with the Rayders trailing 46-43. Elk Rapids held the lead through much of the final quarter, but suddenly the Rayders' defensive pressure began to pay big dividends. Charlevoix took a time out with 3:16 left in the game trailing 58-52. Following that time out, Charlevoix went on a tear. In the 55 seconds following the time out, LaBlanc made two free throws, Kovach scored off a steal and LaBlanc followed up a missed shot and tied the game.

Elk Rapids took a time out to stop the run, but it did not. Charlevoix took its first lead in a long time at 60-58 on two Wakulat free throws with 2:08 remaining. Charlevoix's defense down the stretch was brutal. Had it not been for an Elk Rapids basket with one second left, the Elks would have scored but a single point in the final 3:18 of the game.

Kovach led the Rayders in scoring with 25 points. He was followed closely by LaBlanc with 23; 14 of them in the fourth quarter. Wakulat had 10 points along with seven assists. Terryberry had six steals. He and Kovach each had seven rebounds.

The win left Charlevoix as the only undefeated Lake Michigan Division team. The Rayders are 3-0 in division play and 7-2 overall. This Friday evening they host Kalkaska.

The Rayders also won the junior varsity game 52-36. Matt Smith led the Rayders in scoring with 12 points.

It's called deeeeeeeefense

Paul Wakulat and his Rayder teammates got down and played some serious defense Friday evening holding Elk Rapids to only three points in the final 3:18 of the game. The Rayders rallied from six points down to take a 67-61 win and lay sole claim to first place in the Lake Michigan Division of the Great Northern Conference.

Volleyball team wins for first time this year

Charlevoix's varsity volleyball team got their first win in five tries Jan. 16 at the expense of Traverse City St. Francis.

The Rayders, the first and third games of the match, but won games two, four and five to take the best of five match.

In the first game, a nip and tuck battle to the wire, the Rayders wound up on the short end of a 16-14 score. But Charlevoix didn't come unrehearsed due to the narrow defeat. The Rayders came back to win the second game 15-12.

St. Francis then turned things their way in the third game of the up-and-down match and took game three 15-7.

Charlevoix then won game four 15-8 to force a fifth and deciding game. The Rayders carried their momentum from game four into game five and took a big 15-8 victory.

Top setters for the Rayders were Mary Jane Grunch and Stacy Tilton. Top servers were Grunch and Lena Doan. Tammy Holm and Grunch led the team defensively while Grunch, Holm and Sue Melke were named offensive standouts.

Charlevoix did not fare as well in junior varsity play, losing both games in best of three play. The Rayders stayed close in the first game, losing 15-13, but had a miserable second game, losing 15-1.

Top setters for the J.V. Rayders were Trina Holm and Christy Siwaga. Top servers were Emily Smith and Suzie Sineway. Leading the defense were Sineway and Nancy Damman while Stacy Wisdom and Siwaga were named offensive standouts.

Evans named Coach of the Year

Charlevoix High School track coach Hal Evans has been named 1990 Coach of the Year by the Michigan Interscholastic Track Coaches Association. Evans has coached track at Charlevoix for the past 16 years. Last season his team finished third at the Class C state finals. It marked the fourth straight year that Charlevoix finished in the top five.

During the past 16 years, Evans has coached several Class C state champions. Among the recent ones are three-time hurdling champion Jason Whitley and Scott Miller, who dominated Class C distance races last season.

When Evans took over the program, Charlevoix's track was an old-fashioned cinder track. Following a major renovation program, Charlevoix now has one of the finest all-weather tracks in northern Michigan. And as any football player, who's ever mistakenly ambled across that track while wearing football shoes will tell you - Hal hath no fury like coach Evans when he sees football cleats near the track.

Track requires a lot of individual work and training and the personable Evans has worked with several assistant coaches to cultivate the Charlevoix track program. Among those coaches are girls' track coach Ken Plude, distance coach Pete Spieles, field events coach Roger Gowell and volunteer coach Bruce Wahle.

Junior high team splits games

Charlevoix's seventh grade team beat Petoskey 44-28, but the eighth grade team lost 43-22 on Charlevoix's home court last Thursday night.

Both the seventh and eighth grade teams won at Harbor Springs Monday evening. The eighth grade team won 42-20 while the seventh grade team won 38-22. Charlie Pop led the eighth grade team with 9 points while Justin Gengle had 8.

Jason Smith led the seventh grade team with 17 points while Gary Leitner added 10. Casey Crain and Mark Boss were credited for a strong defensive effort.

Big Rock and school form educational alliance

The Charlevoix Public Schools and the Big Rock Point nuclear plant have entered into a "Partnership for Education" agreement designed to provide private industry support for the school system's science education activities. The agreement was formally signed at Monday night's meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education. It will begin this year and may be renewed or expanded in future years.

The partnership is endorsed by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, which encourages businesses in the community to consider mutually beneficial partnership arrangements with schools.

"This partnership provides us with a means of helping the school system in a direct and practical way," said William L. Beckman, Big Rock Point plant manager. "It is our hope that by providing staff members for classroom presentations, supporting science fair projects and offering other plant resources from time to time, we will be able to help improve science education in our community at a time when our nation and our children need it most."

The partnership will begin with a cooperative planning effort to coordinate the needs of the school districts with the resources of the power plant. It is expected that the program will include staff development activities to acquaint teachers with the program, followed by a variety of specific offerings for students.

These may include financial support for science fair projects, student co-op job openings at the plant, tours of the plant and classroom presentations by engineers and other utility professionals. "We will only provide those services which the teachers tell us they can use. We want our assistance to be as useful and meaningful as possible," said Beckman.

County begins remonumentation program

"Remonumentation" is more than a hard-to-pronounce word.

It is a project born of legislation passed by the State of Michigan in December to preserve original government survey corner locations and mark them with new, permanent monuments (markers) during the next 20 years. While this is a state-wide project, it will be carried on by individual counties, with the County Surveyor being responsible for its completion. Mary Feindt, Charlevoix County Surveyor, will attend a meeting in Lansing next month to learn how the project will be set up and what her responsibilities will be. At the same time the Legislature passed the "State Survey and Remonumentation Act" (Senate Bill No. 380), it passed another Bill to help pay for the project. The second Bill, Senate Bill No. 381, creates a survey and remonumentation fund, subpurtains its use, and specifies administrative responsibilities. The fund will be created within the state treasury, to be spent and administered by a Survey and Remonumentation Commission, with money in the fund plus any interest accrued to remain in the fund from fiscal year to fiscal year. To build this fund, beginning Jan. 1 of this year, any person who records any document in the County Register of Deeds office will pay a cost of $2 in addition to other fees. The county will remit at least 98.5 percent of these $2 fees to the fund, but may use 1.5 percent of the fees to cover administration costs. Although each county has always been responsible for perpetuating the locations of "Government Corners," where original government surveyors set up monuments during the years 1815 to 1855, little has been done in that direction. The original government survey divided counties into townships, each six miles square, then subdivided each township into 36 sections, each one mile square. Then, at corners of township sections and quarter sections, they placed monuments, usually made of four-foot pine posts, to mark their measurements. These corners became known as "Government Corners." They occur at one-half mile intervals along section lines and have served ever since as reference points for locating and describing every parcel of land, both public and private, in every Michigan county. According to boundary law, the locations of Government Corners are accepted as originally established. They are perpetual guides in delineating property boundaries and determining ownership. As can be expected, many of the original Government Markers have been damaged, obliterated, or removed. In countless other cases, various objects such as pipes and rods, stones, plowshares, even gunbarrels have been used to replace the original markers. Ordinarily, consistent remonumentation will provide standardized markers at the reference points that help us document and plan for the construction and maintenance of roads and utilities as well as for the use and exchange of the use of public and private properties. Organized remonumentation also will provide a central data base containing information on counties and townships throughout the state.

etc. George Bagleton was another dealer in ice and wood and paid "Special attention to resort patrons. Prompt attention on all orders."

Clothing for all members of the family was available from J. L. Crane, mentioned above as a dealer in household goods. His ad included "Dry goods, notions, cloaks, skirts, and waists."

F. E. Carter was a tailor who also did "Cleaning and pressing. Goods called for and delivered."

F. E. Frazier sold "A full line of dress shoes, putting shoes, tennis shoes. All styles of shoe dressings and shoe laces" and put on rubber heels.

The Emery Clothing Store featured "Clothing and Gents' furnishing goods."

Health needs of the people of Charlevoix were taken care of by several physicians, dentists, and technicians.

F. E. Wilkinson was a dentist proud to announce that he was a "Graduate of Michigan University." His office was above Fleischer's Drug Store.

J. A. Auld, D.D.S., advertised that he was an "Honor graduate of the Ohio College of Dental Surgery Department of the University of Cincinnati." His offices were in the "Bartholomew block" and he had telephone No. 3.

R. B. Armstrong, M.D. simply advertised as "Physician and Surgeon."

P. G. Bellinger ran a combination "Star Jewelry & Optical Store and advertised as a "Manufacturing Optician & Engraver," who furnished "Shur-On-Eye Glass Mountings, Opera and Field Glasses, Colored Glasses, Automobile Goggles."

There were several people in the service business in Charlevoix in 1908.

Bumen's Insurance and Real Estate Agency represented "Eighteen first-class insurance companies" and promised, "Special attention given to resort business." Write us regarding furnished houses for the season of 1908, they urged.

The Charlevoix County Bank let the public know they "Do a general banking and insurance business. Commercial, private, and public accounts solicited." John Nicholls, H. Nicholls, A. Butters, and A. F. Bridge were the principals of the bank.

Weinkoets Livery and Sale Stables called themselves an "Up-to-date livery and hack line."

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank advertised "Capital, $25,000" and "This bank affords every facility for the speedy dispatch of business." Officers were G. G. Gelman, H. S. Harsha, and W. J. Rashaw.

C. S. Dodge specialized in "Steam and Dry Cleaning and Repairing with neatness and dispatch" and made "Calls on Belvedere of five each morning."

Roy Ranger advertised "Boats Built to Order—small sail yachts and launches a specialty. Repairing and painting, also boats to let. Installing and repairing gasoline engines, all makes. New Location, new shops, better accommodations."

"Not surprising, there was a specialty shop selling souvenirs for vacationers." The Curio Store advertised "Everything known in souvenirs—souvenir spoons, fine China, all the best makes of post cards, burnt leather, agates, stationery, leather goods, music, baskets, Weller and Hampshire pottery, Royal Doulton."

For the vacationer's pleasure, two steamboat companies advertised their services. The Steamer Lou A. Cummings was advertised as "Making two trips daily between Boyne City and Charlevoix, giving tourists an opportunity to visit Boyne City, the hustling town of the north, also the 'Beulah Home.' George W. Weaver was master of the Lou A. Cummings.

The Beaver Steamer, with Captain P. D. Campbell, made "Trips to Beaver Island, leaving Charlevoix at 8:30 a.m. daily, returning in time for supper. Special rates for parties of five or more." There was also note of a "Fine new resort hotel at the island."

Dreyer pointed out a classified ad in the Belvedere Club booklet which offered a cottage for sale. The cottage, which was open for the Hospital Guild Home Tour last summer, is now the home of Jean and Robert Haler.

...superintendent retires

Although there had been recent reports of friction between Van Wieren and some members of the board, board member Scott Beatty said he felt Van Wieren did a good job during his 14 years with the Charlevoix school system.
"I'm very much sorry to see him going," Beatty said.
Van Wieren could not be reached for comment Tuesday.
Beatty said no time table has been set in regard to beginning a search for a replacement, but added, "It's real obvious that we need to get going fairly quickly here."

Oddfellow gets perfect score

Charles E. Bergmann had a perfect score of 968 for the Oddfellows in last Thursday evening's cribbage play. Bergmann and his Oddfellow teammates outscored the Masons 505 to 424 for the night. The Oddfellows now lead the 61st annual Masons Oddfellow's cribbage tournament by 261 points after three weeks of play. Jim Hiller was high man for the Masons this past week with 957 points. Bergmann's 968 was the first perfect score this year. There were seven tables in play last week. Play resumes this Thursday evening at the American Legion Hall.

Kelly appointed to board

Robert E. Kelly of Charlevoix has been appointed to serve as the American Legion representative for the Charlevoix County Michigan Veterans Trust Fund (MVTF) Committee. The appointment was announced last week by the group's board of trustees. Kelly is a veteran of World War II and a member of the Charlevoix American Legion post.

The MVTF uses earnings from a $50 million trust fund to assist Michigan veterans and their dependants and survivors. Last year the Charlevoix County MVTF Committee assisted 84 people.

In Charlevoix County the MVTF Committee can be reached by phoning 547-6403. Serving with Kelly on the Charlevoix County committee are Clarence Rabach, Arthur Rouse and James Willie.

Drama team to present "Music Man"

Charlevoix's Performing Arts students are in final dress rehearsals of their version of Meredith Wilson's "Music Man," which they will enter into the District Drama Competition at Bay City Western High School, Saturday, Jan. 26.

According to Charlevoix High School's Performing Arts Coach Connie Ford, her 62 students, freshman through seniors, have put in long hours rehearsing, choreographing dances, refining the vocals, and painting scenery for competition.

Rehearsals began just after Thanksgiving in the high school cafeteria, and since then have included the difficult task of cutting the show to a 45-minute version to comply with the rules of the state-wide competition sponsored by the Michigan Inter-Scholastic Forensics Association.

On Jan. 26, Charlevoix will compete against five other high school entries, including Boyne City. The top schools will move to Regionals on Feb. 9. The two-day state finals will take place Feb. 16.

A full version of "Music Man" will be presented to the public in Charlevoix Saturday, Feb. 23 and Sunday, Feb. 24.

Debate team going to state

Charlevoix High School's Varsity Debate Team, a part of the Performing Arts Team, placed well in District Debate competition and will represent Charlevoix in the State High School Debate Championships the weekend of Feb. 1-3 in Flint.

The 7-person Debate Team won four of six debate rounds at the District competition in Big Rapids, Jan. 12. Frankenmuth High School placed first at District's winning all six of its rounds. Ithaca High School placed second losing only one round. Charlevoix placed third. The debate topic for 1990-91 focuses on the U.S. policy toward space exploration, with affirmative debaters presenting cases which negative debaters must contest.

Debate Coach Connie Ford reports she is "extremely pleased. We have an unusually young team with only one senior and one junior and five sophomores. They have had little experience at this level of competition and have debated very well."

Coach Ford says that Charlevoix's team will be the only team at the State Championships whose members have not been to state finals before. "But this team has really proven itself," she says.

The coach added that she sees a very competitive future for the young team, noting that not only are there five sophomores on the team but the freshman class has performed extremely well in Novice Debates. "We have unusual depth and can look forward to several years with a very strong team."

According to Strawbridge, the bond could be for $1 million over 5 years or half a mill over 15 years.

A mill is $1 per every $1,000 of a home's state equalized value (SEV). SEV is half of a home's theoretical market value. A person with a home valued at $50,000 would have an SEV of $25,000 and each mill levied would add $25 per year to that home owner's property taxes.

"It's time to let the people decide," Strawbridge said. The Pool Steering Committee would pay the costs of the special election. Strawbridge said the DNR grant is contingent on voter approval of the bond issue, therefore the election must take place before the DNR approves the grant in June.

The grant application must be submitted before April 1. If the school board sponsors the grant, it will be responsible for keeping the pool operating for 20 years.

Strawbridge said the pool committee now has pledges for $410,000 of the $500,000 endowment fund proposed to maintain and operate the pool. Approximately $110,000 of that is actual cash in hand. The committee estimates the total project will cost $2 million.

Strawbridge said the endowment fund will relieve the governing body that applies for the DNR grant on behalf of the pool committee of any financial obligation toward the pool. He said that although he did not expect action from the board Monday night, the pool committee would like the board to act on the two proposals in February.

The issue of pool location was also discussed briefly. Strawbridge said the pool committee still believes school property, especially the elementary school, would be the best location for the pool. He added that some of the pledges toward the endowment fund are contingent upon the pool being built at the elementary school.

Students rally in support of troops deployed in the Gulf

Several Charlevoix High School students gathered at the center of town Sunday afternoon in a show of support for troops in the Persian Gulf.

Juli Bush, a senior and one of those who helped organize the rally, said students came up with the idea during a recent basketball game. Bush said she and some friends were talking at the game and decided that something needed to be done to let local service people stationed in the Gulf know that their hometown is behind them. Currently there are 21 local men and women stationed in the Gulf. Another 29 people with Charlevoix roots are in the service, but currently aren't stationed in the Gulf. Had it been two or three years ago, many of these people currently in the desert or on the seas would have been at the basketball game where their friends were ways to show support for them.

As a result of the conversation at the basketball game, several students stood in the cold from noon to 3 p.m. Sunday afternoon passing out red, white and blue ribbons and lists of local service people. They also carried placards saying "We love our troops" and "Support our troops."

Rev. Lowell Anderson of the Assembly of God Church offered a prayer during the rally.

Guy Gengle, a senior student, gave a brief speech. In it, he said, "I'm sure everyone has friends and relatives, or knows someone who is, over there. And I know our soldiers would be proud to learn that we are behind them 100 percent. We are behind our troops. Our voice is strong and united and we shall stay united in one strong voice to greet our troops with open arms when they arrive home.

Local people currently serving with Operation Desert Storm are:

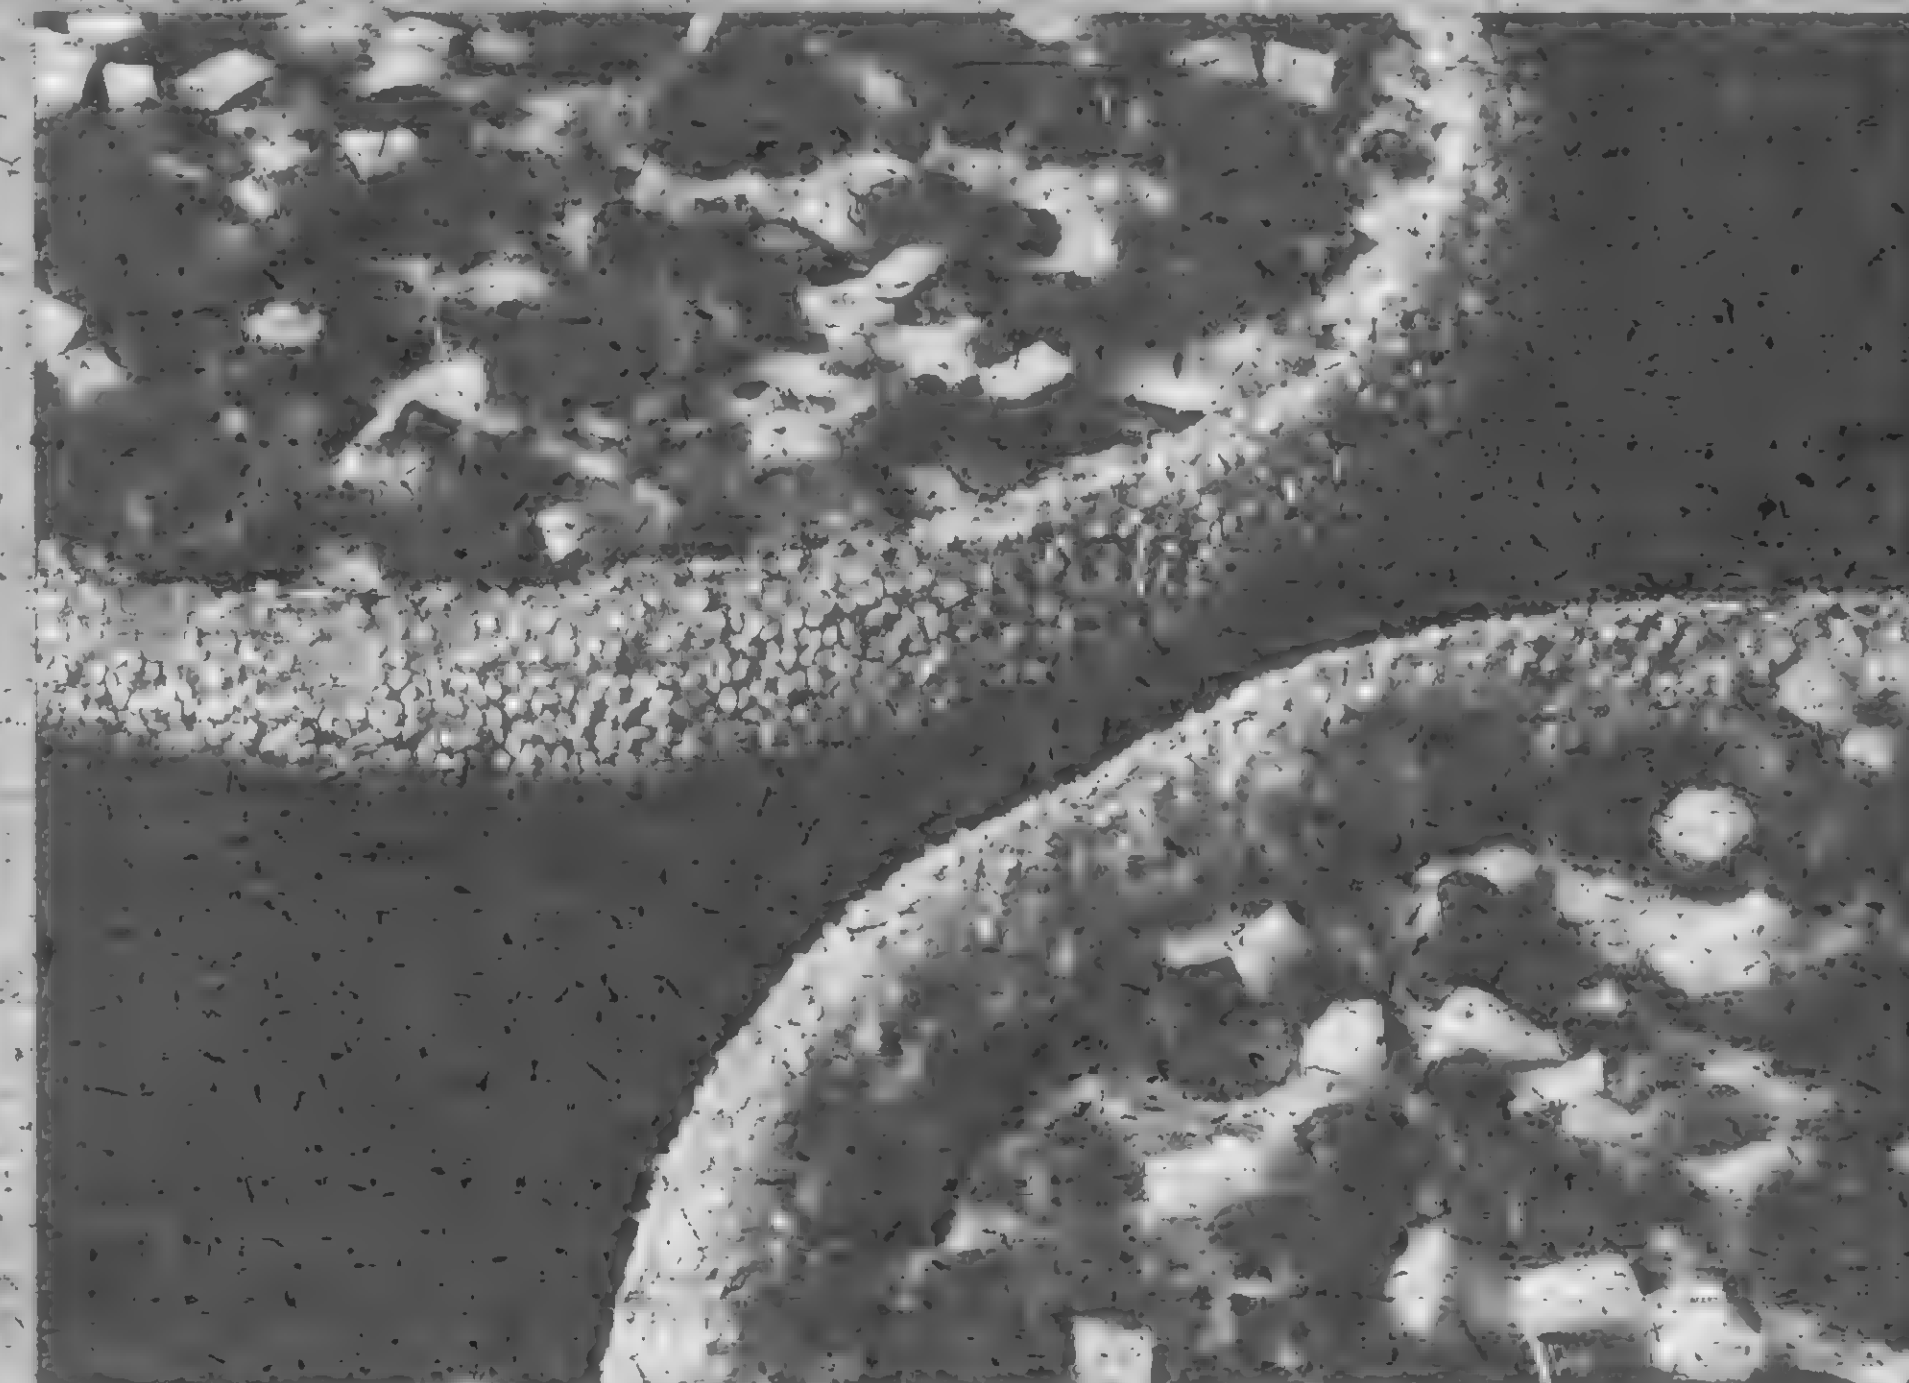

Charles Bruen, James Borths, Kyle Bremmyr, Scott Crain, Michael Dohm, Lori Jinsky, Patrick Kerr, Terry Largent, Gene McClanaghan, John T. McClanaghan, Robin Mervyn, Gary Moore, Darren Olach, David Olson, Chad Pittman, Shawn Putman, Michael Seymour, Steve Sutton, Leon White and Jason Woods.

Others who are in some branch of the military, but not currently stationed in the Persian Gulf are: James Ciuk, Michael Gauthier, Ken Gray, Mark Himebauch, John Horn, Anthony G. McClanaghan, David McKenzie, Dan Meggison, Scott Mervyn, Steve Mervyn, Tony Mervyn, Gary Miller, Brian Phillips, Owen Phillips, Jody Putman, Tom Russell, Kevin Shepard, W. Joseph Simpson, Brian Slattery, David Scott Stebe, Andy Stewart, Terry Stewart, Ron Stoneham, Chuck Struhors, Larry Whiteley, Tom Wojan, Walter Wojan, James Young and Jeff Young.

The Show Your Colors support group is trying to find the addresses of Olson and White. The group will also be selling T-shirts and sweatshirts to raise money to send items to the troops. Members of the group will be at Glen's Market from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 23. T-shirts cost $10 and sweatshirts $15. To contact the group or place shirt orders, phone 547-4119.

Township builds water tower to meet needs of the future

By L. Scott Swanson

It looks like a huge onion extending 100 feet into the air. But to Charlevoix Township residents the new water tower on the south side will be far more useful than a huge onion.

The tower will hold 150,000 gallons of water and will give the township water system enough storage capacity to handle all new hook-ups for at least the next 25 to 30 years.

Township supervisor Oscar Stroud said township officials have been discussing and getting the groundwork in place for the new tower for about a year and a half. At one time the township board was talking about an underground tank similar to the township tank on the north side. But ultimately they decided on a tower. The tower reduces the number of pumps needed and will make the township water system operate more efficiently.

The township has eight wells, five on the north side and three on the south side. The wells on the north side are located at Shanahan Field as is the 120,000 gallon underground tank. Three of the south side wells are located on U.S. 31 near the new tower and south side fire hall. The remaining two wells are located on M-66. The first township wells were drilled in 1973.

"We built the system big enough to plan for the next 29 to 30 years," Stroud said.

Currently, the township system serves approximately 460 hook-ups. Many of those hook-ups, particularly the recent ones, are on the south side of the township near M-66. Stroud said that a combination of hook-up fees and funds set aside for the project will allow the new tower to be constructed without any township tax increase. The bid to construct the tank was $274,000, but Stroud estimates that the entire tower project will cost close to $330,000.

"We're trying to get an efficient system at a conservative cost," he explained.

In recent years, the water system and township roads have been high priorities for the township board.

In what has to be one of the world's coldest jobs, a welder works on the new Charlevoix Township water tower on South U.S. 31. Although the basic structural work is essentially completed, the 150,000 gallon tower isn't expected to be in operation until July.

Search continues for missing girl

A photo of a 14-year-old Charlevoix girl who has been missing since August will be distributed to 32 million homes by a direct-mail marketing company. The picture distribution is the most recent effort in the search for Heather Kleiber who disappeared Aug. 17.

The photo is being distributed by Advo System Inc. of Connecticut in cooperation with the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. The card contains a photo of Kleiber and her description.

An advertisement appears on the back of the card. The photo and description appear on the front of the card where a company's return address might normally be found.

Advo System Inc. began featuring photos on the cards in 1983 in a program titled "America's Looking For Its Missing Children." Since the program began, 345 children have been shown on the cards. Fifty-three of the 345 have been safely recovered. The program has received national recognition.

City police and county sheriff's deputies have cooperated in searching for Kleiber since her disappearance. Kleiber was also featured on a missing child segment of the national TV show America's Most Wanted. That feature resulted in additional tips, but none of them panned out.

The police departments are continuing to investigate, but tips have dwindled in recent weeks. Anyone with information may call the local police department at 547-3255 or the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children at 1-800-843-5678.

Spanish student from city enjoying life in country

By Peg Ohle

Jaime Ruizperez is a big city boy but he is enjoying living in Charlevoix.
 Jaime's home is in Madrid, Spain and he is spending the year as an exchange student at Charlevoix High School.
 When Jaime looks out of the window of his house in Madrid, he sees other houses, automobiles, and people moving about. When he looks out of the window of the Dave Arnold home on Barnard Road, he sees fields and farm animals moving about.

But the only thing that has disturbed Jaime is the weather. "I've gotten used to the cold but I don't like it," he says of Charlevoix's winter.

Jaime attended a private school in Madrid with a routine quite unlike that of Charlevoix High School. "We started school at 9:30, attended two classes, had an hour's break, attended two more classes, had another break, then attended two more classes," he explained. By then it was 6:00 and time to go home for dinner.

The 17-year-old senior also commented on the fact that in Madrid, all classes are held in the same room. Students do not move about as they do here.

The class load Jaime is carrying at Charlevoix High School would frighten many students: Calculus, chemistry, physics, government, computers, and English. Of these, his favorite subjects are calculus, physics, and computers. Jaime speaks good English for one using it as a second language, but he says he finds English difficult to learn to read and write. However, it is not as difficult as German, he admits.

When he goes back to Madrid this summer, Jaime will complete plans for college, for which he will be required to pass an entrance examination. His class work at Charlevoix High School will help him with the examination, he says.

Jaime's family consists of his father, who is a surgeon; his mother, who is an economist; and a sister. Apparently, in Madrid one who handles money in any sort of business or profession is an "economist". Jaime also would like to be an economist and get a job handling money, but it will have to be a job that has "some action." Banking would be much too slow.

Jaime Ruizperez

for him.

Jaime's Charlevoix family consists of Dave and Lillian Arnold and their son Gary and daughter Karen. Gary is in high school and Karen attends North Central Michigan College. They have a good time together, he says, and he hasn't missed his real family too much. They and his friends in Madrid write regularly and so does he. He has also made several phone calls home.

A big Arnold family Christmas dinner of turkey and venison put Jaime in the spirit of the holiday. When not in school, he often gets together with the other exchange students and is looking forward to meeting the new exchange student from Uruguay, who he is sure will speak Spanish.

"I like Charlevoix, I like the people, and I've made many friends," Jaime said when asked if he had a special message.

County Republicans select delegates

Alternates will be: Oscar Stroud, Margaret Stroud, Don Smith, Bill Huber, Arlene Staley and Eileen Rouse.

Driverless snowmobile crashes into truck

A driverless snowmobile traveled several hundred feet before crashing into a large truck and coming to an abrupt halt.

Nobody was injured in the accident, but the snowmobile was demolished and a large wrecker had to be called to tow the truck away.

The accident happened at about 6:20 p.m. Jan. 23. According to city police reports, Dave Radlo started the snowmobile at the cabins south of the M-66 and U.S. 31 intersection. After the snowmobile started, the throttle stuck and threw the driver off of the machine. The snowmobile then traveled through a field behind the Clark gas station, narrowly missing a dumpster near the station. The snowmobile veered out into the road and crashed into the side of a truck driven by Alden Wynnar, 47, of Traverse City. The collision happened almost beneath the traffic light.

The snowmobile went under the truck and hit the rear axle, locking up the truck's brakes. The impact of the collision moved the truck sideways.

A large wrecker from Petoskey had to be called to move the truck from the right lane of the roadway. The wrecker towed the truck back to Traverse City.

Although nobody was injured, police stayed on the scene for approximately two hours until the roadway could be cleared.

EDITH

An economic silver lining

Want to hear some GOOD news? With so many people cancelling foreign travel, local resort business will be booming this summer, I predict. Inquiries for summer rentals are up, according to rental management personnel and four separate contractors are now employed in extensive remodeling of summer cottages on the Belvedere Resort.

Congratulations to Chuck and Nancy Koucky, who have just opened their second gallery in downtown Naples, Florida, right next door to Metteli and across the street from the Mole Hole. The Naples Gallery will have the same look and feel as their Charlevoix Gallery and will carry the work of similar artists. In the meantime, Chris Hribljan is managing the Charlevoix Gallery.

The Dockside Pharmacy, purchased by the Ochs family, had moved to new quarters near K Mart. Though I hate to see Dockside leave the downtown corner, I must confess that I am very impressed with the attractive, spacious new drug store, now called Charlevoix Community Apothecary.

You'll want to know what happened to the familiar soda fountain. The one where all those thick, chocolate malts called "Jeffs" were slurped by five generations of summer people? The soda fountain was purchased by the new owners of the trendy Subway franchise, Ed and Carol Amick. Incidentally, the Subway decor is going to take some getting used to by old timers. The newly remodelled, bright yellow, neon trimmed eatery, located where the Dockside used to be, does not lend itself to the old fashioned, soda fountain decor. So for the time being the fountain is being stored somewhere. Wish the Ochs had taken the soda fountain with them! Wouldn't it be nice to still have a "Jeff" now and then at the new location in the old Charlevoix tradition?

Don't underestimate the wind

For those of you who were dead this weekend, or who failed to notice for some lesser reason, the wind blew something terrible. A blast of wind from the west in the winter time strikes Charlevoix with a vengeance. Beaver Island and those other islands out in Lake Michigan are kind of pretty to look at, but they're a sad excuse for a wind break.

Sunday night I took the dog out in the yard to let him romp around for a few minutes. We didn't stay out long. I wasn't having fun. Wisps of snow were tumbleweed-like across the yard and in the eerie light from the stars and streetlight the place looked like some kind of moonscape. But the looks of the place weren't what chased me indoors. It was cold out there. The dog, he didn't care. He would have stayed out and played all night. That woolly ignoramus loves a good blizzard. He parks his butt in a snowbank and stares into the teeth of howling wind like he hasn't a care in the world.

Now here's something to think about: When the wind blows from one side of a lake, it raises the water level on the opposite side of the lake. This is true. I read it somewhere. A big wind will take water from one end of a lake and pile it up at the other end. You always think of the lake as being pretty much level, but on a windy day it's not. One side's higher. If you're a sailor, this phenomenon could have some interesting implications. You could find yourself sailing uphill. But then as long as you had a strong enough wind at your back, what would it matter? You'd still get to where you were going. You'd just gain altitude in the process. But think about this. What if the wind was at just the right speed so that your sailboat was sliding backwards downhill at exactly the same speed as you were sailing forward uphill? You could be sailing along at a good clip and yet be getting nowhere in the long run. Until the wind either picked up or let up, you'd be trapped in a sailing time warp. Now, there's an ugly thought. Maybe that explains the Bermuda Triangle.

Usually the effect of wind piling up water isn't something you notice. That's because the wind gives out and all of the water sloshes back down to level before anything serious happens. But what if the wind blew hard out of the west for several weeks in a row without any let up? Then things would get interesting. Over in Wisconsin, the real estate people would be in a frenzy trying to figure out the best way to market all of that new lakefront property. Meanwhile, here in Charlevoix, we'd be watching water surge through the channel and wondering about the long-term effects on mushroom hunting given the soggy demise of Boyne City.

When I was in college, I lived in a four-story dormitory building. This was in Mount Pleasant. There are no mountains in Mount Pleasant. The closest thing you can find to a mountain is a hill which we used to slide down on inner tubes. Given the flatness of the terrain, Mount Pleasant is in a way something like Oklahoma. "The wind comes sweeping down the plains."

One windy day, I was in the bathroom of my suite on the third floor of the dormitory and I noticed that that water was swishing back and forth in the toilet. It wasn't swishing so actively that it was swishing out on the floor or anything, but still it was discernably swishing.

Why is that? I wondered. Why do high winds cause the water to swish in this toilet bowl?

Initially, I was perplexed. But I thought about it for a while and came up with a couple of theories. Theory number one: All water is linked. Sure, once it gets involved with plumbing there may be a few valves and some porcelain keeping it organized, but all water is somehow ultimately tied together. Since all water is tied together, when the wind blows and causes the lake to churn, it sets off a chain reaction which eventually leads to swishing water in the toilet bowl.

This is just a theory I developed. I don't hold it forth as proven fact. How would you prove something like this? Perhaps you could set up some type of an experiment involving an outboard motor in the lake near the water plant and an observer with a synchronized watch monitoring a nearby toilet bowl. Forget it. Leave the theory proving to professional scientists. Shoot, they could probably even secure a federal grant to fund the experiment.

Theory number two: The water in the toilet bowl wasn't the source of the motion. It was just responding to a motion. In other words, it wasn't the water that was moving. It was the building. The wind was blowing so hard that a four-story dormitory was swaying back and forth. The water swishing in the toilet was just nature's way of tipping you off to that fact.

This theory frightened me. I seriously considered moving to a room on a lower floor.

Re: New Year Baby Contest

The baby that won this year's New Year Baby Contest is a beautiful baby and congratulations are due the proud parents; however, the baby boy that won was not the first to arrive in 1991. A friend of ours had a baby before the New Year's baby that you chose, however, did not win your contest because the baby was born to a single mother. Upon further investigation, we discovered that there were two other babies born to single parents before the winning child was born. We feel that this is extreme discrimination. If your policy of awarding New Year baby designations will continue to be to award only married couples and the new child New Year's baby awards, then consider the following hypothetical situations: 1. What if the child's parents were recently married, perhaps just days or even hours before the child is born? 2. What if a woman chooses to be artificially inseminated and wants to raise her child without a father? 3. Generally, who can benefit more from the bonanza of gifts the child receives—a married couple or a single parent? 4. What if the child's father is deceased when he/she arrives, technically being born to a single parent? There are many other possible situations that could occur. Our point is not to take anything away from this year's winner; but in the future we feel that you should not discriminate against a group of individuals trying to make the best of their situation, please reconsider your policy.

Sincerely,
Cheryl Bauman

I discussed the matter with our general manager. He said the Courier's sister publication, the News-Review, debated this issue at length several years ago and after conferring with contest sponsors decided upon the criteria used.

1991 Mothers March For Healthier Babies begins

The 1991 Mothers March For Healthier Babies will begin Jan. 30 and continue through Feb. 10. The march is sponsored by the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation.

Nearly 800 marchers will be visiting homes in northern Michigan to solicit support for the March of Dimes. Communities involved will include: Charlevoix, Traverse City, Acme, Petoskey, Cadillac, Manistee, Kalkaska, Kingsley, Bellaire, Boyne City, East Jordan, Ewart, Reed City, Baldwin, Suttons Bay, Glen Lake and Beaver Island.

Money raised in the march will be used to support March of Dimes programs designed to prevent birth defects. This year's Mothers March is emphasizing the dangers of Maternal Substance Abuse. Currently, 11 percent of the babies born in this country are exposed to illegal drugs before birth. 1 of every 1,000 babies is born with Fetal Alcohol Syndrome and 10 percent of infant deaths are caused by cigarette smoking. All are significant and preventable.

Of the money raised in the march, 60 percent stays in the local area. The remaining 40 percent goes to the National Office of the March of Dimes where it is pooled with money from chapters throughout the country to fund research grants and project development.

An example of local and national money working together is a new program called "Babies and You" which is currently being introduced in northern Michigan. The program was developed by the National March of Dimes and is being introduced to the area by health care professionals on a volunteer basis. "Babies and You" is a prenatal educational program for the worksite. It is geared toward both women planning pregnancies and for people who will be caring for the women during the pregnancy.

Students organize to support military personnel

Last Friday a group of five high school students formed a committee called SUMS (Students United for Military Support). The group was formed to show that the students support the United States armed forces involved in Operation Desert Storm. Members of the SUMS organizational committee are (from left) Juli Bush, Guy Gengle, Tami Dietel, Mike Sevenski and Angela Levengood. The committee is organizing a rally scheduled for 2 p.m., Sunday Feb. 3 in Charlevoix's East Park. They have contacted students from East Jordan, Ellsworth, Central Lake, Boyne Falls and Walloon Lake. A second rally is planned for Feb. 10. (Photo courtesy of Ralph McRae.)

Discussion of Agent Orange effects has been cancelled

Ronald G. Geer, Director of the Office of Veterans Affairs, announces the cancellation of a talk by Dr. Elizabeth Allen of the School of Nursing at the University of Michigan, scheduled for February 22 at North Central Michigan College.

The talk was to have been a discussion of the effects of Dioxin (agent orange) on present and future generations.

Fifth grade students study in pioneer classroom

Two Charlevoix fifth grade classes taught by Kathy Gowell and Kathy Schofield recently completed a study of early settlements with a Pioneer Day. Students spent the day dressed in the attire of the era. They also participated in spelling bees and recited sayings from Poor Richard's Almanac.

Katy McGovern, the mother of one of the students, brought in household implements from the pioneer era and baked pan bread to go with butter the students made earlier in the day.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON - A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "Miltch" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Researchers in Europe found that an ingredient in the aptly named product, Food Source One, actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories.

While the development of Food Source One, a project of National Dietary Research, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the discovery has been a windfall for overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear." In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 15 days on the product and was never hungry. Food Source One is available through physicians and pharmacies without a prescription because it is not a drug and contains only natural ingredients already known to be safe. Copies of the referenced study are available free from National Dietary Research, Suite 553, 1377 K St., Washington, D.C. 20005, however please include $2 postage & handling for each request.

Food Source One is available in chocolate, vanilla or strawberry. A 100 tablet supply only $24.98. ©1990 Omicron International.

Camp Daggett urges early registration

Parents are asked to plan ahead if they would like to enroll their children in Camp Daggett's 1991 summer camp program. The camp has quickly filled to capacity for the past several years, catching many parents unprepared. Applications for Camp Daggett's sixty-sixth summer program will be delivered to all chambers-of-commerce and to all public and private schools in Charlevoix and Emmet counties on March 1st. Applications will also be mailed to all the children who attended Camp Daggett last year.

Any parents wishing to have an application mailed directly to them may call Camp Daggett at 347-9742. Parents are encouraged to return completed applications as soon as possible, since children are registered on a first-come, first-serve basis as applications are received through the mail.

The fees for the 1991 season have been set at $135 per week, for children attending schools in Charlevoix and Emmet counties and at $210 per week for out-of-county children. Camp Daggett is located on the west arm of Walloon Lake, and is held in trust for children as an independent, non-profit organization with no governmental or religious affiliations.

Camp Daggett's summer program is open to all children, 7-14 years old. Children may attend only one of the eight summer sessions. The one-week sessions begin on Sunday afternoons and end on Saturday mornings. The first session begins Sunday, June 23 and the last session ends Saturday, August 17.

The summer camp offers traditional activities including swimming, sailing, canoeing, fishing, arts & crafts, nature study, recreation, campouts, campfires, skits, songs and a variety of special evening activities.

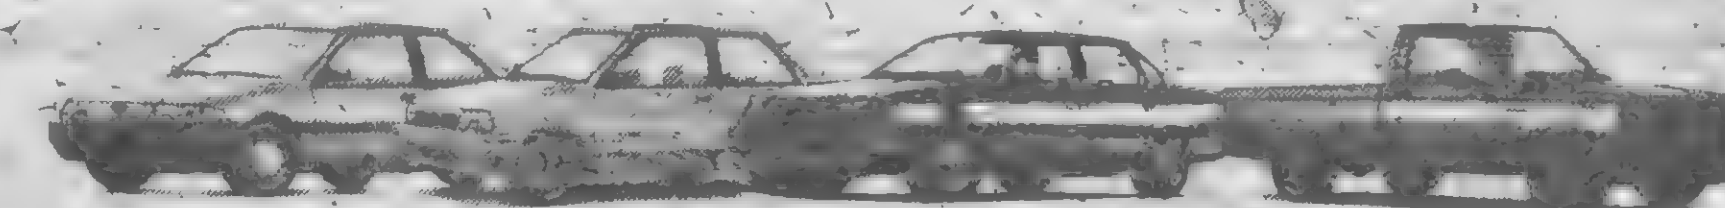

Summer campers will greet a camp with a whole new look this year, since some buildings have been moved and others replaced altogether. Construction of the new Mori Neff Outdoor Education Center is well underway and should be completed in the spring. The Neff Center, which will house the new

Mac Hall, will serve as the camp's new main lodge.

For more information concerning Camp Daggett's summer camp program, call Paul Bennington, Director, at 347-9742, or write Camp Daggett, P.O. Box 120, Petoskey, MI 49770.

Secretary of State office closed

The Charlevoix Secretary of State Branch Office will be closed during the morning of Tuesday, Feb. 5, 1991. During that time, branch office employees will be trained to operate upgraded computer equipment installed the night before. The branch office located at 101 West Hurbit, will reopen promptly at 1 p.m. The Michigan Department of State is replacing computer equipment at all branch offices statewide. The local branch computers which are on-line with the main computer in Lansing have been in service since 1982.

Alice Firman used to work in a beauty shop, but now she takes her hair care service into people's homes.

Local beautician makes house calls

When you've been confined to your home for weeks with a broken leg, when you have constant care responsibilities for a family member and can't leave your home, or when cold weather and snow make travel difficult, what can you do to lift your spirits?

Alice Firman has an answer. Call her for an appointment to come to your home to give you a shampoo and set, a haircut, a permanent wave, a color job, or a manicure.

Alice has the know-how, the equipment, and will travel. She started her "Your Home Beauty Care" business in Charlevoix last summer and is keeping busy providing a needed service to those who are sometimes forgotten. Patients in hospitals, nursing homes, and foster care homes whose days are often long and lonely, are especially appreciative of being "prettyed up," Alice says. It's easy for them, too, because she has all the necessary equipment, even for those who can't sit up.

Friends and relatives often order a new permanent or haircut or hairset for a loved one, which, Alice says, is a pleasant surprise for the recipient.

Alice Firman is a trained cosmetician. She ran her own shop in Flushing for eight years but finds that her present method of doing business gives her more time at home and more time to do other things. She is available by appointment five days a week. Phone 547-4755.

Rayders keep league lead with 69-56 win over Kalkaska

Charlevoix picked up a fairly easy 69-56 win over Kalkaska Friday evening. The win left the Rayders with a perfect 7-0 record in league play, two games ahead of second place Elk Rapids. The Rayders are 9-2 overall on the season.

The Rayders led early, led in the middle and led late against the visiting Blue Blazers. Much to the delight of a large Charlevoix crowd, the Rayders' full-court press gave Kalkaska fits.

By the end of the first quarter, Charlevoix led 15-9. At halftime they were up 38-30. Charlevoix put the game away in the third quarter outscoring Kalkaska 17-6.

Rayder coach Jim Kanine used most of the fourth quarter to get some experience and playing time for his back-up players. And although it took them a few moments to get into the flow of the game, some of the reserve troops gave a good account of themselves. Sam Bingham, Mike Dobulis and Ken Olinger all played well by streaks.

Todd Kovach played a strong all-around game for Charlevoix, scoring 20 points to go along with nine rebounds, eight steals and five assists.

Dan Terryberry had 12 points and seven assists. Luke LaBlance had a dozen points. Paul Wakipal had nine points and seven assists. Charlevoix also won the junior varsity game, 61-58. Vince Veisin led the j.v.s with 24 points. This Friday evening, Charlevoix will host Boyne City in a key league game.

Mike Dobulis drops a shot over the front of the rim in the second quarter of a 69-56 win.

Charlevoix's freshman basketball team clobbered Kalkaska 57-34 Thursday evening. The Rayders put the game away early, leading 16-2 after the first quarter.

Matt Norton led Charlevoix in scoring with 12 points. The win raised the freshmen's season record to 6-5.

Interior Department explains wildlife funding

The Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Director John Turner has announced that the agency will be preparing a supplemental environmental impact statement on two major Federal grant programs to the States supporting sport fish and wildlife restoration.

In 1978, the Service published a programmatic environmental impact statement (EIS) examining programs instituted by the Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration Act of 1950 (Dingell-Johnson Act) and the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Act of 1937 (Pittman-Robertson Act).

"The Service's Federal Aid program with the States represents one of this country's most important and successful partnerships to benefit fish and wildlife and their habitat," Turner said. Through the two programs, Federal funds from excise taxes on arms, ammunition, archery equipment, fishing rods, certain other fishing tackle, and motorboat fuel are provided to State fish and game agencies for use in fish and wildlife restoration and management. The funds are apportioned to each State according to its land area, population, and the number of hunting and fishing licenses it sells. Projects to be funded are selected by the State but must be approved by the Service. When approved, the State is reimbursed for up to 75 percent of project costs.

Since 1978, the Wildlife Restoration program has remained essentially the same, except for the fact that revenue had grown from $67.8 million in 1978 to 126.5 million in 1989. Substantial changes, however, have taken place in the Sport

Fish Restoration Program as a result of the passage of the Wallop-Breaux amendment in 1984. Wallop-Breaux expanded the list of taxable items to include motorboat fuels and import duties on pleasure boats, and included interest earned by these funds prior to allocation to the States.

Written comments on the notice are invited and must be received no later than Feb. 21, 1991. Comments should be addressed to the Director, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, 1849 C Street NW, Mail Stop 322 Arlington Square, Washington, DC 20204. For additional information, contact Columbus Brown, chief, Division of Federal Aid, or Tom Taylor, wildlife biologist, at 203-358-2156.

city and township water systems. The township built their tower so that it would be the same height as the city's tower and therefore allow water to be exchanged between the two systems.

"We think it will not only help people in the township, (but also city residents)," Stroud said. "The tower is built to be compatible with the city. If we need water, they can pump to us. If they need water, we can pump to them." Stroud said it's an ideal situation for both city and township residents.

Chicago Bridge and Iron Company is building the township tower. The company is one of only a handful which build water towers. Preliminary construction work began in the fall when workers installed the tower's base. Most of the structural work was done in the last two weeks. The tower won't be functional until July. Between now and then, wires and pipes will be installed and the tower will be painted.

Staying close to family and friends in Charlevoix when you live in Alaska is not an easy task. A subscription to the Charlevoix Courier helps. Making family videos to mail to his parents in Charlevoix was another way Terry found to bridge the gap, and Buday's of Charlevoix made this possible. City to borrow $3.3 million for electrical improvements

By L. Scott Swanson

As the first step toward borrowing up to $3.3 million for electrical system improvements the city council has approved retaining a bond counselor and a financial advisor. Borrowing the money through either a revenue or general obligation bond is expected to take place within the next few months. Paying back the bond will require rate increases for city electric system customers.

The exact amount of those rate increases for each individual customer depends on a number of variables including the amount of money borrowed, number of years of payback, interest rates, amount of electricity the customer uses and which of several different rate categories the user falls into. As a preliminary, general ballpark, shot-in-the-at-least-dusk-if-not-dark, don't hold anybody to this figure, city homeowners can be thinking about an increase of between $2 and $8 per month.

One of the initial tasks of the financial advisor and bond counsel will be to give the city council finer numbers on bond payback rates so the council can determine what type of bond package to use and how much of a rate increase will be required.

At Monday evening's council meeting Roger Westbroek explained planned improvements and offered some preliminary information on bonding. Westbroek is a retired person with electrical expertise who has advised the city on a volunteer basis for the past several years.

In the mid 1980s, Westbroek and city electrical superintendent Ed Whitley formulated a long-range capital improvement plan for the city's electrical system. Charlevoix is in a different situation from most communities in that electrical service is provided by the city, rather than by a private enterprise. That system has allowed Charlevoix homeowners to pay lower rates than most other area communities.

The goal of the capital improvement project is to improve the service and reliability of the system and also allow the system to grow as the city grows. Service and reliability improvements mean more consistent voltage with fewer and shorter outages.

A key component of the program is increasing the voltage on city power lines. (The power line increase won't change the voltage to individual homes.) In 1986 the city began phasing in improvements. For the past four years, when transformers and other equipment needed to be replaced, it was replaced with equipment which will handle the higher voltage. From 1986 to present, the city has spent approximately $500,000 on system improvements.

Now the city is ready to install a new transformer substation. Power coming into town comes to the substation and then is distributed throughout the community. The estimated cost of the substation is $1.2 million. Work on lines coming into the substation is estimated at $88,000. The remaining $2 million will fund distribution system improvements and miscellaneous costs to update remaining lines, transformers etc.

Westbroek presented the council with some general numbers indicating some of the funding options they will need to choose between.

The city has approximately $750,000 in the electric fund reserve. If they use some of that to fund improvements, it will decrease the amount they need to borrow and reduce the interest the city pays. But that will deplete the reserve which serves as something of a rainy day fund. If the money is left in the reserve it will provide an emergency buffer and, if no emergency occurs, generate interest revenue.

Another factor the council will have to consider is length of payback. Westbroek talked about five, 10 and 15 year payback times. If the city chooses a five-year payback, interest rates will rise more sharply, but for a shorter period of time and at a lower annual interest rate and net interest payment. A longer payback means less of a rate increase, but for 10 more years at a higher annual interest rate with a larger net interest payback.

"I'm not making a recommendation here," Westbroek said. He said he was just offering some numbers so council members could get a feel for the decisions they will have to make.

Westbroek added that regardless of which path the council chooses, the money will all eventually be generated by the electric rates. Although Westbroek didn't want to speculate as to what the rate increase will be, he said that he's confident that Charlevoix's rates will remain competitive with other rates in northern Michigan.

Harbor gives berth to 3 cruise boats

Charlevoix's cruise ship situation is proving to be feast or famine. For the past two summers, local business people lamented the lack of a cruise ship to draw people to the community. Those who were lamenting should be happy as claims this summer because the way things look there will be not one, not two, but three cruise ships operating out of Charlevoix.

Two of the cruise ship operators were at Monday evening's city council meeting seeking municipal dock space. The third cruise ship will operate from a private dock in the harbor.

The three businesses proposing to run cruises from Charlevoix are: Ward Brothers Charter Boats Inc., who plan to operate a 56-foot power boat out of their private docks at the end of Antrim Street. The boat will hold between 75 and 95 people. The Wards plan to be flexible in their cruises and go with whatever the customers desire. They expect their cruises to be in Lake Charlevoix for the most part, but they will also be able to go to Harbor Springs or take sunset cruises on Lake Michigan. If food is served, it will just be light snacks, not full dinners. Wards' cruises will be operating this summer.

Beaver Island Boat Co. plans to operate a 65 to 100-foot boat out of the municipal marina. Boat company officer Lynn DeGrow told the council he would like to operate from the Star of Charlevoix dock after that ship is sold or when its lease expires in two years. The excursion boat will travel primarily between Charlevoix and Boyne City, carrying up to 150 people. DeGrow said he has talked to the Boyne City council and the plan was well received. He said he has also talked to Stafford Smith, wife owns restaurants in both Charlevoix and Boyne City. The Beaver Island Boat Co. also plans to have their boat ready to go this summer.

Bay Breeze Yacht Charters plans to operate a 50 to 65-foot sailing schooner. The schooner will carry up to 49 passengers on cruises lasting between one and two hours. Most of the cruises would be on Lake Charlevoix, although the boat is capable of navigating in Lake Michigan. If food is served, it will be light snacks, not full meals.

Bill Atkaiser and Rick Garof, presented the Bay Breeze proposal for dockage to the council Monday. DeGrow spoke on behalf of Beaver Island Boat Company.

According to city manager Mike Wiesner, the commercial operations would be considered seasonal rentals. According to Michigan Waterways Commission regulations, the city may have up to 14 slips rented on a seasonal basis. Presently the city has nine slips rented seasonally.

Rates for the commercial boats will be multiplying the maximum daily rate by 150 or 120 percent, depending upon whether the opera-

City to increase infrastructure levy to four mills

In voting to approve a 5-year capital improvement plan at its Monday evening, city council members indicated they will raise the city's infrastructure millage levy from three to four mills.

A 15-member committee formulated a long-term infrastructure improvement program in 1986. (Infrastructure is nothing more than a fancy word for the city's streets, sidewalk, sewer and water systems.)

That plan called for city tax payers to pay four additional mills to repair infrastructure problems. However for the past two years the city council has chosen to levy three, rather than four mills, for infrastructure repairs. That meant the repair program would go slower and be completed over a longer period of time.

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a property's State Equalized Value (SEV). A property's SEV is theoretically half of market value, or what the property could be sold for. If a home has a market value of $60,000, then its SEV is $30,000 and every mill levied cost that homeowner an additional $30 per year.

City manager Mike Wiesner presented the council with a list of infrastructure improvements planned for the next five years. The primary project in this summer's program will be storm sewer, water main and street work on Dixon Avenue between Meach Street and Mercer Boulevard. The work will eliminate a problem with sewers backing up into basements farther to the west on Dixon Avenue. That project carries an estimated price tag of $355,000. Other projects for 1991

Students learning during recess

The Charlevoix Elementary School is looking for volunteers to share their skills and talents with fourth and fifth grade students during an indoor, after-lunch program in the winter months.

Elementary teacher Carol Elliott, who is coordinating the program, explains that some students aren't enthusiastic about going out on the playground after lunch during the winter. They would rather do something indoors. They have about half an hour from 12:55 to 1:25 p.m. If the program flies, that half hour can be used for something both educational and fun.

Currently, there are four people working with small groups of students studying sewing, space science, chess and embroidery. The groups are limited to five or six students. Elliott says there hasn't been any problem getting the kids to participate. In fact there have been enough interested kids so that names have had to be drawn to determine which kids got to participate now and which will have to wait for a later session.

Other than the 12:55 to 1:25 p.m. time slot, the format of the program is flexible. As kind of a general time format, a person could work with students once a week for four weeks. But if more or fewer days are needed, that can be arranged. Elliott hopes to have the programs wrap up by about May 1 because by then the weather gets nice and the students can go out on the playground after lunch.

Along with the four study groups presently meeting, a board game group is planned. Elliott would also like to see groups organized to study things such as: foreign languages, knitting, weaving, crafts, origami, holiday projects and story telling. Those categories are just some suggested topics. The program is open to other subjects.

People who have a skill or talent they are interested in sharing with the students should contact Elliott at 547-3214 or 547-6293.

Chamber of Commerce member Dan Barron said business people were hurt by the loss of the Star of Charlevoix and urged the council to support the new cruise operations.

Council member Eleri Hoffman said she was contacted by several business people who requested council support for the cruise operations.

The council voted to have city attorney Jim Young finalize a proposed lease agreement while Wiesner will make necessary provisions with the Waterways Commission.

Wiesner said that if it can be worked out, the two cruise boats operating out of the city docks will be kept near the north end, close to the Star of Charlevoix.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Machinery with an attitude

A car threw a fit right in the heart of the community Saturday night.

I know this to be true because I saw it with my very own eyes and heard it with my very own ears. (Although I was with other people who might have been willing to, as Shakespeare put it, "lend me their ears.")

I was walking along the sidewalk with a group of people, when a car parked on the far side of the street began wailing and flashing its lights. The people I was with surmised that the car was attempting to thwart a thief. But there was no thief anywhere near that car. In fact there was nobody, thief or otherwise, near that car. If that car thought it was about to be stolen, it was being paranoid.

Personally, I think the car's outburst was due to some kind of an emotional thing, but I'm not certain it was paranoia.

It was just a little car. Maybe it was parked between two big cars and felt threatened. Who knows? Maybe one of the big cars had even whispered something menacing through its grill. In that case, the siren and flashing lights were indeed a cry for help.

Maybe the car was a shy, but cute, little girl car and some unruly boy car had honked its horn at her in a wolfish sort of way. Perhaps this boy car had even called out spiteful remarks such as "Yo baby! Those are some sweet fenders you've got there." In that case, a siren and flashing lights might be the way a car breaks into tears.

Then again, the little car could have been a boy car. (Who am I to say? I only saw it from across the street. And I didn't check under the hood.) Maybe it was a shy boy car and some racy female car, one of those foreign things inclined to pile on a lot of gaudy chrome, batted its headlights at him. The siren and flashing lights could be the small car version of blushing.

And maybe the car was a boy car, but the racy foreign car was just what he was looking for. When she batted her headlights at him, his pistons went pitter pat and set his motor oil racing through his cylinders. The siren and flashing lights were an automotive proposition. Oooh. Just think of it. Right on Bridge Street. And Charlevoix being a conservative, Midwestern town. What's this world coming to?

Cars are not the only mechanical devices to exhibit emotions. Smoke detectors get testy if you neglect them. In recent years, I've had two of them try to get even with me.

When a smoke detector's battery gets low, it will begin beeping. The detector could begin beeping during any one of the 16 hours a day when I'm awake, but that never happens. No, the smoke detector always waits until sometime between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m. to issue its alert and demand some form of attention. Why do smoke detectors do this? They're attempting to get even with me for ignoring them. That's the only reason I can come up with.

The first time this occurred, I initially wasn't even sure what was happening. I just woke up in the middle of the night, sure that I had heard something. About thirty seconds later I heard another beep. Two or three beeps later I got out of bed to investigate. It took me a few minutes, but I eventually woke up enough to determine the cause of the discrepancy.

In a way, the smoke detector's vindictiveness backfired. Had it chosen an adept and compassionate apparatus would, to begin beeping during daylight hours I could have run down to the store and purchased a new battery and fixed the problem on the spot. But no, it had to start with me in the middle of the night. So I took a hard line and unhooked the battery completely. I showed it the price for messing with me. I killed it until morning.

The other smoke alarm was even worse, but then I suppose I had offended it to a greater degree. It was an old smoke alarm. When I got a new smoke alarm, I stashed the old one away in the back of a cupboard. Unfortunately, I forgot to remove the battery.

For about two months, the old smoke alarm seethed and stewed in the cupboard. I can just imagine what was going through its bitter little smoke alarm mind.

"Well, a fine how-do-you-do this is," the smoke alarm thought. "I give this place the best years of my life. Always on guard, ever vigilant. That's what I was. Granted there were never any fires to warn these people about, but I did let them know when the toast was burnt. And this is the thanks I get. Locked away in the deep, dark recesses of an old cupboard. Well, I'll show them. Don't think I won't."

That thing started beeping at about 3:45 a.m. during a night's sleep I had been enjoying. It beeped about once every 30 seconds and it took me about 15 minutes to track it down.

The alarm may have had its revenge, but once I found it, I made sure it would never beep again.

Letters to the Editor

Cuts hurt weak and poor

Editor,

Yesterday, I attended a State Budget Hearing in Grayling. We have all heard about the cuts that our State Legislature has proposed and all of the lay-offs that it entails; but, yesterday, I got to see first-hand what the budget cuts will do to people.

People stood in line to tell our Legislators why their program should not be cut. (I was there for the same reason.) The programs included: Safe Houses for battered women, programs for the elderly, rehabilitation for the handicapped, dental services for the developmentally disabled, substance abuse programs - not to mention the arts, museums, and tourism.

Why is it that when we face economic hard times that it is always the weak and the poor that have to pay? It is right to evaluate State spending and to "trim the fat," but it is wrong to cause Michigan citizens to suffer due to blind budget cuts that cut to the heart of the very people we should be helping and protecting.

As one man put it, Michigan voters put in John Engler for a change, but is it going to be a change for the worse? Are we going to be living in a society where protecting the weak and the poor are luxuries that we just can't afford? Or are we in the business of protecting the rich?

Gov. Engler, you can have my 20% property tax increase to keep these programs going and to keep schools open. I would consider it money well spent.

Sincerely,

Patricia Ulrich RDH

Family name was changed

Editor,

In 1914, the death of my grandfather, Dennis E. Allyn, changed the course of one family in East Jordan. It also changed my family name.

There is someone out there who knows what happened. This is the person I wish to reach.

My father, now deceased, never spoke of his real family or of the fact that he was the oldest of four children. As he told us, Minor Prevost of Alpena County simply gave him a home when he needed one. There was never any legal adoption or records made. My father simply took on the Prevost name. Seventy years later, my brothers and nephews still carry that name. It is for this reason that we seek knowledge of the Allyn's.

My father, Edgar D. Allyn Prevost, was the eldest child of Dennis E. Allyn and Kate Kilson Allyn. The other children were: Theodore R., Thomas J., Mary K., and William Henry (born 7-31-1913).

Kate Kilson Allyn was one of eight children born and raised in East Jordan. Her brothers and sisters were: John A., L.D., Jonathan, Ellen, Daniel, Samuel and Anna.

It has taken me over a year to accumulate the few facts I do have. I have made trips to East Jordan and to Charlevoix County Court House. Every one has been so helpful.

What happened to Kate Allyn? What happened to her other children? After 1914, there is no record of any of them. Your information could provide the clue that would unravel this family's mystery.

Thank you,

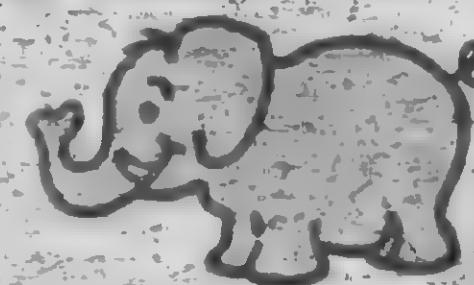

J. Prevost

Fourth and fifth graders speak about when they grow up

Two Charlevoix Elementary School students will be advancing to the area semi-finals of the MacDonald's "When I Grow Up" speech competition. Fourth grade student Jennifer Hater and fifth grade student Katie Golski were the top finishers among 14 fourth and fifth graders who participated in the Charlevoix school competition Jan. 29.

Each of the competing students gave a three-minute speech about a career they would like to pursue as an adult. The Charlevoix students spoke in the gym before their classmates and a three-judge panel made up of Bob Cluck, Chuck Britton and Marcia Trimmer.

Speakers were allowed to use a microphone and speaking stand, but no costumes or props.

Judges evaluated speeches based upon four categories: content, creativity, delivery, and stage presentation and expression.

Golski spoke about being a pediatrician, citing Dr. Rod Tinney as an example. Hater spoke about being a nursery school teacher, citing Sandi LaVoie. Golski and Hater each received a $50 gift certificate from the school for winning the school competition.

McDonald's will award framed photographs and tote bags to the top two finishers at the area semi-final competition and $300, $200 and $100 bonds to the top three finishers at the regional finals competition. School board discusses student conduct policy

by WENDI WRIGHT

Just where does the school's jurisdiction over students begin and end? The school board and several parents grappled with that question during Monday evening's school board meeting.

A recent incident involving five Charlevoix high school students who were stopped by police and charged with possession of alcohol triggered the discussion.

Three of the students participate in extracurricular activities at the high school, and were punished based on the rules governing the activities they are involved in. According to David Smith, high school principal, the punishment included detention, suspension from one tournament and mandatory counseling. Smith said the other two students involved were not punished because they did not fall under the extracurricular rules, but would be welcome to go through the counseling program voluntarily, adding that the school would pay for all costs.

Parents on both sides of the debate filled the audience, as well as representatives of PEARLS, People Encouraging a Responsible Lifestyle, and MADD, Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Benton-Heister, representing PEARLS, spoke first and commended the board on a policy that holds students responsible for their actions, and encouraged the board to take even greater measures in the future.

Joanne Carlisle, representing MADD, spoke next, adding her organization's support and thanks for the policy.

Parents of the students involved spoke out against the actions of the school, questioning the right of the school to take action against the include repaving portions of Cherry Street, Carpenter Street and streets in Hampton Village. That work is estimated to cost a total of $33,600.

Wiesner said completing all of the work identified in the 1986 infrastructure plan will take 10 more years if four mills per year is levied, and 14-plus years if three mills per year is levied.

Wiesner encouraged the council to levy four mills. "At the 14-year level, I just see you falling too far behind," he said.

The infrastructure levy is one of three main components in the city's total property tax levy. Operational millage and debt retirement millage are the other two. Wiesner indicated that although the final budget hasn't been adopted he anticipates reductions in the operational and debt retirement levies which will partially offset the infrastructure increase.

Currently, the city is levying 9 mills for operations, 3 mills for infrastructure repairs and 1.76 mills for debt retirement. That totals 13.76 mills. Wiesner anticipates that next year's city levy will be 8.75 mills for operations, 4 mills for infrastructure repairs and 1.73 mills for debt retirement. That would total 14.48 mills, or 72 mills more than this year. The means the city will receive $56,160 more than if 13.76 mills were levied.

Council member Pat Gaskin referred to the work done by the infrastructure committee in 1986 and supported the increase to four mills. Council member Bulch Russell cast the lone vote against the improvement plan.

OF BLESSINGS

By Bruce Hamilton

It does not seem possible that this is February. The snow cover is shrinking fast. Some brave souls are wearing short sleeves outside. The cherry and apple tree owners are wondering if their trees will awaken from their winter's sleep too soon.

I will concede that there are a great number of you who are die hard winter enthusiasts, but I for one am unashamedly looking forward to spring. Yes, I said: Yes, my kids like to sled. Yet, there is something special about a world come alive with the promise of new life.

Perhaps that's why this February thaw is around. Winter has its blessings. It also has its gray skies. There are the dark days and frigid nights. But like most things in life, they come to pass.

Our lives sometimes echo the seasons more than we know. We run into problems when we forget the balance and the place of each one of those seasons, Paul said, "if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."

In Christ, we can stand up to all the gales and blizzards that the winter storms of life can offer. We cannot be shaken or moved in any way because our hearts are securely anchored in Him.

In Christ, we know the old things have fallen away, passed away forever. Those things that we are not the most proud of, things we would just as soon forget, have lost their grip on our hearts.

In Christ, we are made new. The old is not whitewashed over or prettied up. God steps in and works a miracle as only He can. New attitudes spring up. Hopes that were lost are revived. Dreams that seemed only fantasies suddenly become possible.

In Christ, we harvest more blessings, live a life more fulfilled than we ever could on our own. The warmth of God's love, the gentle guidance of His Holy Spirit stir our hearts to new heights.

Realistically, I know there is more of winter to come. I know there are a lot of folks who are struggling emotionally to get through a hard season in their lives too. I just want you to remember that as sure as spring will follow winter, God's love is waiting to come alive in your heart. Whatever it is you're facing, He knows how to help you make it through.

Rayders rally from 13 points down to beat Boyne City 55-53

After trailing by 13 points in the second half, Charlevoix beat cross-county rival Boyne City 55-53. The Rayders trailed Boyne City through most of the game, finally taking the lead 50-49 with 3:49 remaining.

With the exception of the first few minutes in the first quarter,

Charlevoix played lack-luster offense in the first half. Boyne City played a peculiar 3-2 zone which pressured Charlevoix's perimeter shooters and left a hole near the free throw line. Charlevoix's outside shooting lacked consistency and when they got the ball inside, they were hesitant to take the ball at Boyne City's taller players. At the end of the first half, Charlevoix trailed 33-25.

In the second half, Rayder coach Jim Kanine went to a three-guard offense. The three guards moved the ball better offensively and badgered Boyne City's ball handlers with a full court press.

Only nine points were scored in the final 3:49 of the game. Charlevoix's point guard, Paul Wakula, fouled out with 1:08 remaining.

With less than a minute left and the game tied, the Rayders had the ball, but no point guard. Boyne City first tapped the ball out of bounds, then trapped Eric McElroy in the corner on the inbound play and took the ball away from him.

But the Ramblers failed to score and the Rayders' Todd Kovach gave the Rayders the lead with 10 seconds remaining.

Despite having adequate time left, Boyne City failed to get off another shot. The Rayder defenders pressured and flustered the Rambler guards near the half court line.

Kovach led the Rayders in scoring with 14 points. Dan Terryberry and Luke LaBlance each had 13.

With the exception of the turnover in the final minute, McElroy played a strong game. By playing intelligently and aggressively, he picked up several rebounds which had eluded taller players.

Charlevoix now leads the Lake Michigan Division of the Great Northern Conference by three games.

Two Rayders win in league

Rayder wrestlers Brian Darragh and Chris McCallum won conference championships Saturday. Charlevoix placed fifth among eight teams.

Other top finishers for the Rayders were: Jason Pajias, second; Dan Browe, second; Shawn Young third; and Nick Himebauch, fourth.

Browe was leading in the finals before getting pinned. Himebauch, a freshman, was unseeded.

Dan Terryberry puts up a shot against Boyne City Friday evening. The Rayders trailed by 13 points in the third quarter, but came back to win the game 55-53. The Rayders continue to lead the Lake Michigan Division of the Great Northern Conference.

Health Department moves into new office

The last few days have been moving days for District Health Department No. 3. The Department is now at home in its new building at the corner of Garfield and Grant Streets, near the Sheriff's Department.

For the last 20 years, the Health Department has been located in the county building complex at State and Antrim Streets and more recently has also been using space in other parts of Charlevoix and in East Jordan.

District Health Department No. 3 serves Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet, and Osego Counties. The Charlevoix office houses the administrative staff and other headquarters personnel as well as those serving the local area. There are satellite offices in the other three counties.

Gerald Chase, Administrator of the Health Department, explained that the new building was constructed by the Northern Health Foundation and leased to the Health Department for 20 years, at which time the Health Department will own the building. The Northern Health Foundation is a non-profit, Michigan corporation set up to improve community and environmental health in Michigan. The Foundation is also presently working with other county health departments in northern Michigan on building projects.

There are 50 employees in the local Health Department office. They will now have the use of computer equipment set in specially designed space and plenty of room for other equipment, much of which took up hallways in their former offices. Chase indicated that they were using most of their old furniture to save money.

Chase also noted that the department is looking to the future in completing a new building at this time. He called attention to the fact that there are fewer and fewer physicians providing pre-natal care, which will force many mothers-to-be to turn to public health facilities for care. He also noted that a large percentage of local residents do not have any health insurance, which makes private health care prohibitive for many. They, too, are turning more and more to the Health Department.

The new District Health Department building will not increase the county's allotment to the Health Department since more than 80 percent of the Department's budget comes from non-local sources, Chase said.

Community to fly flags

Although Presidents' Day often passes pretty much unnoticed in Charlevoix, the Persian Gulf War may change that this year. Plans discussed at recent meeting of local business people call for the following things to take place:

Between Feb. 16 and 23, homeowners and business people will be encouraged to decorate their homes and store fronts in patriotic trimmings.

At 11 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 16, a ribbon ceremony is scheduled at the community Christmas tree in East Park. Ribbons will also be tied to lamp posts throughout the community.

A letter wishing each local military person a quick and safe return home will be written and made available for local people to sign.

District Three Health Department director Gerald Chase sits in his office at the new health department building at the corner of Grant and Garfield. Workers moved into their new quarters earlier this week.

County commissioners appoint committee to allocate space

District Health Department No. 3 has moved its headquarters from the County Building Annex to a new building at Garfield and Grant Streets, thus freeing up space for other county departments. Decisions on who will occupy the annex space and what departments will be changed to other sections of the county building will be made by a "Blue Ribbon Committee."

The committee was appointed by the County Board of Commissioners and consists of several county employees and some outside professionals.

A proposition to build a new courthouse and renovate the county building failed at the polls last November, but the Health Department was able to acquire a new building on a lease with an option-to-buy arrangement. The Blue Ribbon Committee's assignment is to try to utilize present county building space to its fullest.

is the son of Vickie Salisz, a Boyne Falls woman who disappeared nearly three years ago. A one-man grand jury is currently investigating that disappearance and the August 1990 disappearance of Heather Kleiber. Police do not feel the disappearances are related.

According to a sheriff's department press release, Lasater and at least two deputies confronted the couple near Springvale and CCC Road in northeast Chandler Township. When Lasater attempted to arrest Salisz, the man struck him on the head with a screwdriver.

Belth then pulled a gun and fired, according to the release. She kept the officers at bay for approximately one hour. She was finally overpowered by Sheriff Lasater and Sergeant Wheat at which time the gun discharged again.

Following the arrest, the county prosecutor authorized a warrant for one count of felonious assault against Salisz and a warrant for four counts of felonious assault and four counts of felony firearm use against Webb.

Lasater was treated for a concussion and Wheat was treated for a knee injury at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

1991 Winter Homecoming Court

Drama team qualifies for state

Charlevoix High School Performing Arts has won a slot at the State Drama Championships, at McComb Community College this coming weekend, as a result of their performance of the Music Man at the Regional Competition this past weekend.

The 62 Charlevoix students received outstanding judge's critiques, a #1 rating and 242 accumulated points. Charlevoix's production also brought home a number of awards.

Brian Coolman, as the fast-talking con-man Professor Harold Hill, received a Superior acting award. Kelly Heck, a sophomore, received a Superior Award for Charlevoix's set design. The entire cast received a Superior Award for outstanding costumes.

Excellent awards for Acting went to: Stacey Skeel, who plays the part of Mrs. Paroo; Jordan Spencer, who portrays Professor Hill's sidekick Marcellus; and Michelle Carlson, Ann Schirbaum, Mindy Norot, Danielle Ebyek, Megan Biskerseth and Kristen Browne, who play the "Pick-Little Ladies," the town gossips. The Music Man will be presented in Charlevoix the weekend of Feb. 23 with a Saturday evening and Sunday matinee performance.

Cpaoh Connie Ford commented that, "The team has spent the two weeks since District Competition putting the show together, making the corrections which accounted for a poor showing at districts and really refining the show. We will spend this week polishing for the State competition. I am tremendously proud of what this team accomplished."

Show of support included in this issue

Pages 10 and 11 of this week's Courier contain a show of support for military personnel in the Persian Gulf. The display is sponsored by local individuals, merchants and organizations. (The list of names is as complete as we have at this time. If you know of someone who has been omitted, contact Anna Crain of the Show Your Colors group.)

The community will be doing several other things in coming weeks to support the troops. Those things include: Between Feb. 18 and 23 homeowners and business people throughout the community will be encouraged to decorate their homes and store fronts in patriotic trimmings.

At 11 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 16 a ceremony is scheduled at the community Christmas tree in East Park. A ribbon for each Charlevoix man and woman serving in Operation Desert Storm will be placed on the tree.

Ribbons will also be tied to lamp posts throughout the community. A letter wishing each local military person a quick and safe return home will be written and made available for local people to sign.

Residents want substation moved

By L. Scott Swanson

Build it somewhere else—a group of third ward residents told the city council Monday evening at a public hearing concerning where to build a new city electrical substation. But that would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars the council replied.

"The people who spoke live between Ferry Avenue and May Street. The city plans to build a new electric substation at one of three, or possibly four sites. People living near the proposed sites don't want to live near an electrical substation."

"It just plain doesn't belong in a residential area," Scott Beatty, one of the residents, said.

Health concerns regarding the possible effects of electromagnetic fields (EMF) topped a list of reservations people voiced about the substation. That list also included decreased property values, substation noise, the size of the substation and the way it will look.

The new substation, which is supposed to be built later this year, will replace the substation which is currently in the same general area. The old substation is by the city street department building, near the corner of Ferry Avenue and Stover Road. That location is one of the sites being considered for the new substation. Two of the other sites are farther up the hill on Stover Road, behind the Wojan plant. Another possible site is off of the end of May Street, near the Catholic cemetery.

Moving the substation any farther away from the current site than the sites proposed will cost at least several hundred thousand dollars and probably more for construction and will also increase operational costs.

According to some studies there may be a link between exposure to magnetic fields and some forms of cancer. People speaking Monday evening said they're concerned about increased health risks which might occur if the substation is moved closer to their homes.

City council member Ted Felzer, who is an electrician, told the people that information he has read indicates that household appliances give off stronger magnetic fields than what the people will be exposed to by the substation.

City electric department superintendent Ed Whitley took readings on magnetic fields from the city's present substation and at a substation similar to the one the city plans to build. Florida and New York are among the only states which have set minimum standards for magnetic fields. Those standards allow electric lines and substations to emit not more than 450 milligauss in the facility's right-of-way area. The highest reading at the city's present substation was less than half of that. The proposed substation is expected to emit less of a magnetic field than the present substation.

People from Hampton Village also questioned if the sites farther up the hill would be harmony with the city's master plan and zoning ordinance. They also said that filling a large vacant piece of property with an electrical substation will result in a loss of tax income to the city.

People near the proposed sites also expressed concern about possible buzzing noises from the substation and the way the substation will look.

Former council member Shirley Roloff, who lives in Hampton Village, said, "We all agree there's a need for a substation, but not in our back yards."

Whitley said noise tests had been done, but it was difficult to determine how much noise was coming from the substation and how much was due to traffic on nearby streets and fans from a nearby restaurant.

People opposed to the proposed sites said they would rather have the substation built outside of town, perhaps near a power line in the area of The Medusa Cement plant. Roger Westbroek, an electrical engineer who has been helping the city on the electric renovation, estimated that moving the substation to the area proposed will add at least $700,000 in construction costs. It would also increase the system's operational costs.

The people opposed to the proposed sites favored spending the additional money and said it would be better to change the site now than to find out four or five years from now that it has to be moved due to safety concerns.

The play follows the shenanigans and romantic escapades of Professor Harold Hill, an itinerant salesman and con-man, who becomes ensnared in his con to sell musical instruments to the naive citizens of River City, Iowa. Hill's undoing comes as he falls in love with Marion, the community librarian.

Japanese exchange student polishing English

By Peg Ohle

Toru Ito wanted to learn to speak English so he left his home in Niigata, Japan to come to Charlevoix High School as an exchange student.

He is doing well, too. His interview with the Courier was a pleasant conversation in which only a few times did he find himself fumbling for words. His English writing is also good, which has to be an accomplishment when one considers the difference between Japanese and English letters.

Ito, who is 16, attended a private school in Japan and studied much the same subjects as American students do. However, he says that he has studied more math than American students have at his grade level.

Perhaps the biggest difference in schools is that Japanese schools operate from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. six days a week, but like American schools they offer athletic programs including track, tennis, wrestling, and judo, and also have inter-school competitions.

In addition to English, Ito is studying algebra, history, art, computers, typing, and body kinesics at Charlevoix High School. Computer operation is his favorite subject and he also likes to paint, which makes his art class interesting. Ito is also a member of the ski team.

The school Ito attended in Japan is larger than Charlevoix High School. His surprise here was that students move from classroom to classroom for different classes. In Japan, all his classes were in the same room. Another surprise was that automobiles drive on the right hand side of the road.

Ito is living with Levi and Sally Sanford. His exchange "father" accompanied him to the Courier office and volunteered the information that Ito doesn't like oatmeal or

Following the public input, council members made comments of their own and posed additional questions prior to tabling the decision until next week.

Council member Pat Gaskin said, "The decision can not be based purely on the technological and economic factors."

The new substation will operate off of the same 46,000-volt line currently running into the present substation. Council member Cheri Hoffman looked to Westenberg to confirm that "We are not physically bringing more power into the community. We are just giving out-selves a greater ability to disburse power." Westenberg confirmed that's the case.

Felter said his findings are that people's houses are more dangerous than the substation. He said that at 150 feet away from the substation people are less affected by magnetic fields than they are when they're operating their toaster.

Helping kids say No to drugs.

One of the most effective ways to stop drug abuse is education. In 1989, Consumers Power became the first corporation in Michigan to sponsor Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.) in the classroom.

Our commitment to education reaches out to schoolchildren in other ways. Our Educational Services Program supplies teaching materials to schools at no charge. And the Eyes and Ears Program we participate in improves the safety of children on their way to and from school. We share in the State's renewed efforts to give our students quality education.

Unlike government-owned utilities that pay no taxes, Consumers Power will pay more than $123 million in property taxes for 1990. Most of that amount will support public schools and the education of children within our service area. We're an investor-owned utility investing in the future of Michigan's students.

EDITH

by Edith Gilbert

When I call my good friend, Carl Johnson, on the phone, he tells me that he is in the garden feeding the deer.

"I'm talking to you on my cordless phone," he continues. "Please wait a minute and I'll go into my office."

"Do you feed the deer every day?" I ask him in wonderment.

"I feed them twice a day. There are several of them that come around regularly and I give them corn, and scraps of vegetables that I grow in the garden. It's fun to do when the grandchildren come up to visit us here on the shore of Lake Charlevoix."

"Do you have a fence around your vegetable garden?" I question.

"Yes, but we planted a lot of shrubs and they are those, so I figured if I feed the deer corn and vegetables, they would leave my shrubbery alone, and they have!"

What a peaceful solution to a tricky problem. Instead of shooting the deer, Carl feeds them. Would that our international problems could be solved so neatly? Giving Saddam Hussein corn or vegetables would be so easy. But that's not what he wants. He wants power. He wants adulation. He wants to go down in history as a Napoleonic figure. Deer don't give a hoot about aggrandizement. Many people are like gentle deer. They want to live in peace and be left free to roam. Unfortunately in every generation there emerges an Attila the Hun, a Genghis Kahn, a Hitler, a Stalin, and these forceful tyrants lead their quiet, obedient folk into wars of conquest.

It seems to me today's tragic issues are not related to the pros and cons of war and peace. It's too late for that. No, the issues now ought to focus on tomorrow's watchfulness in every country of this new CNN world. All of us must be sure to select the kind of leaders that will lead us into peace and prosperity and not into war and destruction by the use of an intelligent, democratic vote.

Tomorrow's watchfulness for us in the United States means that we need to carefully select leaders at both the next national Republican and Democratic conventions that we can have faith in and a President and Vice-president who is qualified and whom we can trust. For example, I probably would enjoy having Dan Quayle as attractive and charming as he is, for a dinner guest at my next party. Is he qualified to be president? I think not. That's why I pray every night that nothing happens to President Bush before his term expires.

I guess what I really want next time is a president who is as smart as Carl Johnson, who will feed the deer corn so that they will leave his shrubs alone.

Language imperfections

The finer points of language can throw a baby.

At 15 months old, our baby will inform you when she's "pooped" and although she won't volunteer the information, when interrogated, she will "fess up to being" peed.

Around our house, crying

"Pooped" is kind of like crying

"Wôô." It may be a false alarm, but you've got to respond like it's the real thing. If the baby is really pooped, she will tell you. But sometimes she claims to be pooped even when she's fresh as a daisy.

I'm not sure what prompts these false claims. Are the false claims just her version of a training exercise, a mock disaster to make sure her parents would know how to react should there be a real problem?

Or is this just her way of making conversation? If that's the case, I'm going to have to clarify to the child that "pooped" is not a word you use to inflate conversation. I just can't have my child growing into an adult who, when introduced to people at social occasions says, "Hi, Pleased to meet you. Pooped." No, that would never do.

Although she won't take it upon herself to inform you when she's

"peed," the baby will own up to it when asked.

"Are you a 'pee butski'?" her mother or I will inquire.

If she is, the baby will grab her diaper and say, "Butski. Peed."

This system seems to work fairly well, but the other day we discovered something which could complicate matters.

My wife was feeding the baby little round green things for lunch.

She held a teaspoonful up to the baby and said, "Peas? Want some peas?"

The baby looked skeptically at her mother, then grabbed her diaper and said, "Butski. Peed."

How do you explain something like that to a baby?

Things that look like other things also confuse the baby. Or, I suppose, from her viewpoint, things that look like other things confuse parents. Recently the baby was perched on her mother's lap looking through a seed catalog. When they came to a page filled with pictures

baby pointed to one of the pictures and proudly proclaimed, "Apple.

"That's not an apple. That's a tomato. Tomato," her mother explained.

But the baby wasn't having any of it. "Apple," she insisted and turned the page.

She and her mother also argue over grapes. Or they argue over berries. There again, it depends upon who you ask. Why the baby decided grapes are "berries" I do not know, but she's certain that's what they are and there's been no convincing her otherwise. Personally,

I've given up trying to persuade her. I ask her if she wants some grapes. She says "berries." And I give her grapes. I figure she'll catch on eventually.

The only word I'm presently arguing with her about is "Daddy."

She sits on my lap, taps me on the chest and says "Daddy! Daddy!"

And I tell her "That's right, I'm daddy."

Then she taps herself on the chest and says, "Daddy. Daddy."

"No, No," I say. "I'm the daddy."

Then I tap her on the chest and say,

"You're the baby."

"Baby," she says.

"That's right," I tell her. "You're the baby and I'm the daddy."

And she's contented with that and so am I, for a time. But then the next day she's back to both of us being either the daddy or the baby. My explanation just doesn't seem to stick.

"Up" is another word she's having a problem with. Or maybe she's not having a problem with "up."

Maybe it's "down" that she's having a problem with. Up is overused while down is neglected. When she's on the floor and wants to be picked up, she says "Up." When she's being held and wants to get down, she says "Up." It makes no difference to her! As far as she's concerned, "Up" is just a word which indicates the need for a transition.

And when she starts squirming around because she wants to get "up" on the floor to play, she's got no time for explanations. If you try to hang on to her long enough to explain that what she wants is "down" not "up," you just end up with a mad baby on your hands.

We're also working with her on identifying animals. If there's a duck anywhere within 100 feet, the baby will spot it. Not only will she spot it, she will promptly tell you what a ducksays. A few weeks ago my wife was wheeling the baby down an aisle in the grocery store.

Something in that aisle had a picture of a duck.

"Quack! Quack! Quack," the baby began hollering much to the surprise of my wife and some other lady who happened to be shopping in that aisle.

Island budget cut opposed

Open letter to Gov. Engler

Dear Sir,

I am in sympathy with the fact you are attempting to bring Michigan's budget in line, but just as we families must address emergencies when they confront us, and perhaps skimp on some family necessities, I am adamantly opposed to your cutting the grant to the Beaver Island Medical Center.

We first got a doctor on Beaver Island because of the death of my mother in October, 1923. A speed boat from Charlevoix brought Dr. McMillan or Dr. Armstrong (I'm not sure which) to the island in a violent storm in an effort to save her life. But when they arrived it was too late. My father was left with eight children to raise.

Because of our unique position and distance from medical help in Charlevoix, our nearest hospital, time very often is the difference between life and death. If we go by boat it takes almost half a day. If we go by plane, the cost is often prohibitive to families whose average income of workers is less than $20,000.

Our taxes are staggering. St. James Township is on Michigan's ten poorest townships list. We have to support a DNR landfill closing and build a Solid Waste Transfer Station. People on the mainland can truck their waste without bailing, packaging, storing, shipping and then trucking to a designated Waste Deposit area. Our schools receive no state aid from the state. Our roads are primitive, Indian trails of School conferences

Charlevoix Elementary School parent-teacher conferences will take place March 6, 7 and 8. Scheduling letters will be sent to parents Feb. 15. They are to be returned to school by Feb. 22. Teachers will then schedule conferences and send parents the scheduled times and dates for the individual conferences. Parents are asked to be looking for their children to be bringing this information home.

Elementary students will be dismissed from school at 11:30 a.m. March 8. There will be no afternoon kindergarten classes or hot lunch that day.

yesteryear were better maintained. In many different ways, we raise more money to maintain our Medical Clinic. We have only about 380 permanent residents who bear the burden of these fund raising activities.

Our summer residents help, but again in summer our clinic is swamped with those who need emergency service, be it a boat accident, cuts, burns etc. from the people who come in the summer. Tourism is our main means of support. My children and grandchildren who summer here, use the facilities constantly. Many summer residents would forego visiting where there is no medical help available especially those who have children.

Please reconsider eliminating the grant for the Beaver Island Medical Clinic. We need it desperately. An island resident.

Sincerely,

FAMILY

Pearsall - Sharrow

Kristi Renee Pearsall and Wayne Richard Sharrow exchanged marriage vows Saturday afternoon, January 26, at the Community Church of God. The Rev. Bruce Hamilton officiated at the double ring rite.

The bride is the daughter of Rodney and Lynn Pearsall, and the bridegroom is the son of Robert and Babs Sharrow, all of Charlevoix.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a white satin Victorian style gown accented with lace, pearls, and sequins. Her veil was attached to a floral headpiece of white silk roses and she carried a bouquet of white and mauve roses.

Linda Clark assisted the bride as maid of honor, and Vicki Corner and Becky Smith served as bridesmaids. They wore teal-length mauve satin gowns with overlays of lace and carried mauve and cream flowers which were made by Patsy Van Loon.

Lauren Hough was flower girl. She wore a mauve satin dress with a bow in back fashioned by Lyddy Morrison. Russell Williams served as ringbearer.

Doug Frye, cousin of the bride, served as best man. Groomsmen were Bob Sharrow, brother of the bridegroom, and Kevin Pearsall, brother of the bride. Ushers were Steve Shepard, cousin of the bride, and Sam Kane, Jr., cousin of the bridegroom.

Vocalist Tami Felton provided music for the ceremony.

A reception at the American Legion Hall followed the wedding ceremony. Lois Wasoski and Rita Moore served the food, and Shawn Shepard was in charge of the guest book.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents the evening before the wedding.

The bride graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1989 and her bridegroom graduated in 1984. The newlyweds are now at home in Charlevoix, where she is employed by Sears of Charlevoix. He works for Allied Signal in Boyne City.

1,000 shirts sold to support local troops

The Show Your Colors group, an organization supporting military personnel in the Persian Gulf War, has sold approximately 1,000 T-shirts and sweatshirts to raise money to defray costs of sending items to the troops.

Approximately 70 members of the group met at the Charlevoix Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) post Sunday evening.

The group is continuing to sell the shirts and is also discussing other projects. Questions were raised at the meeting about just what can currently be sent to troops. A Show Your Colors officer is going to contact federal authorities for an answer.

People interested in purchasing a sweatshirt or T-shirt may phone 348-3693 or 347-5534. Shirt prices are $10 for T-shirts and $15 for sweatshirts.

Odd Fellows extend cribbage tournament lead

During the last few weeks the Masons have been losing ground in the 61st annual Masons-Odd Fellows Cribbage Tournament. The Masons started off so well this year, but if they don't turn things around soon, it'll be too late. With six weeks gone and only a few remaining, they trail the Odd Fellows by 643 points.

This past Thursday evening the Odd Fellows outscored the Masons 606 to 169. There were eight tables in play. High man for the Odd Fellows was Charles E. Bergmann with 949 points. High man for the Masons was Clare Staley with 939 points.

Play will resume this Thursday evening at the Masonic Temple.

Theatre group presents "Run for Your Wife"

A contemporary British comedy, Ray Cooney's "Run for Your Wife," opens in Petoskey Feb. 14 in the Ross Stokes Theatre at the McCune Arts Center.

The production, second this season for the Little Traverse Civic Theatre (LTCT), is well underway with director Gene Beach beginning to hone characterizations of the eight-member cast.

"Run for Your Wife" was first produced by the Yvonne Arnold Theatre, Guildford, England, in 1978. It tells the hilarious story of a London cab-driver with two wives whose secret is suddenly jeopardized when he is involved in a street mugging.

Cast in the lead role as the two-timing John Smith is Michael Willson, an LTCT veteran. His wives are played by newcomer Cheryl Beal, and by Mary Coffey, whose last appearance with LTCT was in "The Importance of Being Earnest." Two police detectives are portrayed by Doug Flewelling and John Hulet, both familiar talents to area playgoers. Newcomer Warren Mayer is cast as the news reporter, his first role with the group. Robert Muina plays the dandy part of a gay, busybody neighbor, and Frank Nemecek plays the best friend whom John Smith involves in his attempted cover-up.

Director Beach says he has wanted to do this play since he saw it in London. He describes it as typical British farce, one of his favorite forms of entertainment.

Beach has been associated with Little Traverse Civic Theatre since 1975, and has directed five plays for the group, including another comedy from the United Kingdom, "No Sex Please, We're British."

Producer for "Run for Your Wife" is Jerry Finn, another theatre veteran who has produced several other shows for the group of play-

CHURCH

BEACONS

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton

OF BLESSINGS

Someone once told me that there are really three sides to every story, not the traditional two. There is your side, there is my side, then, there is what actually happened.

No matter how unbiased and fair we may try to be, a certain amount of our own feelings "colors" anything that we see. For the most part, that's not all bad, but then there are times... Well, let me put it another way.

Did you ever watch the Perry Mason reruns on television? He always took the most impossible cases. Old Hamilton Burger, the prosecutor, would usually say "There's no way you can win this one. The evidence is all right." Yet slowly but surely, Perry, Paul and Della would dig until they discovered the one thing that prosecutor just did not want to see.

I constantly get a thrill out of reading about Jesus' visit with the woman at the well. By all rights, they should never have gotten together. But they did. By all rights, the townspeople had already made up their minds about her. But something would change that.

By telling her that he already knew about all the heartbreaks in her life, and that they didn't matter, Jesus got the woman to see her own life in a way she never knew was there. Suddenly, she found new hope.

By going to town and telling her less-than-friendly neighbors about her new outlook on life ("come see a man, who told me everything I've ever done"), she dismissed their disapproving notions and opened their eyes to things they too had never seen in life before. Amazingly, they really listened.

By getting them to forget about what side they were on, Jesus was able to open their hearts to the way life is really meant to be. We are meant to accept, understand, and encourage one another through whatever life may bring.

Be cautious about judging people's actions. There may be more going on in their lives than you can see. Be open for ways you can be supportive, even with those you barely know. An act of unexpected care and understanding on your part will not only bring you a blessing but may gain you new or stronger friendship than you ever had before.

We've all had our days. No one is perfect. Just remember other people have these days too. They could use a friend like you to help them get through.

Miller makes mission trip

Cara Miller, daughter of Albert and Joan Miller of Charlevoix, recently returned from a two-week mission trip to the Dominican Republic.

The Charlevoix High School sophomore was part of a 41-member medical mission sponsored by the Michigan Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists Pathfinder department. Along with physicians, nurses, optometrists, and dental staff, the young people worked in several remote villages and communities in the Dominican Republic.

They were provided an opportunity for a hands-on experience. Their duties and responsibilities included direct patient care such as fitting glasses, dispensing medicines, cleaning teeth, and assisting the professional staff in many other ways. They hosted 10 clinics during their stay and treated approximately 2,500 people.

This trip was the 10th annual

Yes, there will be a Mount McSauba Sno-Challenge

Yes, there will be a Mount McSauba Sno-Challenge this year. And it will be bigger and better than ever with Saturday evening fireworks complementing a full weekend of Thunderbubbling, ski racing and snowmobile and truck hill climbs.

This year's Sno-Challenge was originally scheduled for Feb. 9 and 10, but has now been moved back to Feb. 23 and 24.

Insurance questions regarding the snowmobile and truck hill climbs caused the original hang-up, but those have been worked out. Participants in those two events will have to sign waivers. The snowmobile hill climb will also run differently. Snowmobiles will drag race up the front side of the Mountain and the crowd will be kept at the bottom of the slope, out of harm's way.

Fireworks will take place at about 7 p.m. Saturday evening immediately prior to the World Thunderbubbling Championship finals. The fireworks will be shot toward Lake Michigan from the top of Mount McSauba and should be visible for several miles.

A complete schedule of Sno-Challenge events will appear in next week's Courier.

Rayders close to clinching Lake Michigan division title

Charlevoix varsity basketball team is only a game away from clinching at least a share of the first Lake Michigan Division basketball title in the Great Northern Conference. Charlevoix took another step toward the crown with a casual 79-45 win over Mancelona Friday night. They can wrap up at least a share of the title with a homecoming win over East Jordan this Friday evening. Charlevoix enters the game with a 10-0 league record and is 12-3 overall.

Charlevoix led at the beginning of the game, led in the middle of the game and led at the end of the game against winless Mancelona. The Rayders led 20-9 after the first quarter and 41-19 at the half. By halftime, there was nary a warm spot on the Rayders' bench as coach Jim Kanine sent in all of his troops.

Mancelona coach Mike Crawford is in his first year and is in the beginning stages of building a program.

Although Kanine got his starters out before they did too much damage, senior forward Todd Kovach managed to put in 15 points to go along with eight rebounds, six assists and six steals. Point guard Paul Wakulat decided to try his hand at rebounding and collected seven to complement a dozen points and six assists. Luke LaBlanc had 11 points and six assists.

Ski team prepares for regional

Five Charlevoix skiers won all-conference honors at the league meet at Boyne Mountain last Wednesday. Katherine Campbell and Brandon Jess made the all-conference team in both the slalom and giant slalom. Heather Keller was all-conference in the slalom and Dan Hoadley and Kelly Heck were all-conference in the giant slalom. Campbell is a junior and Heck a sophomore. The other three are seniors.

Boyne City won the girls' title while Grayling won the boys' crown. Charlevoix's girls' team placed second as a team while the boys finished third.

Individual results for the Rayder girls were: Campbell 25, 6GS; Keller 35; Heck 3GS, 11S; Kim Keller 10S, 12GS; Sheila Stewart 12GS.

Individual results for the Rayder boys were: Jess 2GS, 4S; Hoadley 3S; J.H. Heck 9GS; Scott Boyer 14S; Jake Porath 17S, 19GS.

Charlevoix is now gearing up for the regional meet Thursday at Schuss Mountain. Coach Eric Lundteigen says, "That's the big race of the year. We've got the strongest region in the state by far.

The top two teams in the region will qualify for the state meet. The winner of the Northern Michigan regional generally goes into the state meet as one of the favorites to win.

"It's just a dog fight that day," Lundteigen said in describing the regional meet. "We've had some pretty good results all year, but we have yet to gel as a team. We're right in the thick of it for sure."

In the girls' race, Lundteigen sees five schools having a chance to win. Those schools are Charlevoix, Boyne City, Petoskey, Traverse City and Harbor Springs.

On the boys' side, Lundteigen said Traverse City, Glenn Arbor, Leelanau and Petoskey have to be the favorites, "but crazy things can happen."

Falls have hurt Charlevoix's team results throughout the season. "One will fall one week and the next week another will fall," the coach said. He added, "We've got to get them down the hill."

Four wrestlers qualify for regionals

Jason Pajtas won the 145 pound district title and three other Rayders qualified for the regional meet during the Class C individual district wrestling tournament Saturday at Leroy-Pine River High School.

Pajtas went 3-0 on the day to run his season record to 33-3. He won his first two matches on a technical pin and a pin and won the final match on a 6-3 decision.

Dan Browe placed second in the heavyweight division. He lost on a pin in the finals after winning earlier in the day on a pin and a 4-3 decision. His season record is 31-7.

Brian Darrah placed third in the 152-pound weight class. He won his first match on a pin in 36 seconds, lost his second match 9-6 and won his third match on a pin in 45 seconds. He is now 32-7 on the season.

Shawn Young placed fourth in the 125-pound division. He won his first match on a pin, was leading 11-2 in his second match before being pinned and defaulted in the third match because of illness.

The regional meet will take place Feb. 16 in Lakeview.

Water plant soon to be repaired

Problems with the city's water intake plant will be fixed sooner rather than later. Last week the city received word from congressman Bob Davis' office that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will probably be repairing the intake system this spring.

The EPA will classify the repair as a "remedial action." That will allow the repair to take place sooner than it would have under other classifications.

The city's water intake system began having problems soon after it started operating four years ago. On windy days when water demand is high, the intake plugs up. Due to the problem, there have been a few times when the city has been using more water than the water plant is taking in. Water stored in tanks kept the city from running out of water on those occasions.

It will cost approximately $400,000 to put in a larger intake system to solve the problem. The federal government will pick up 90 percent of the job with the state picking up the other 10 percent.

City manager Mike Wiesner said he was pleased to hear that the project would begin fairly soon, but he noted that there isn't any definite construction schedule at this time.

Kay Peck retires from Grandvue ending career that began in 1949

By Peg Ohle

When you've been on the job in a place like Grandvue for more than 41 years, you've seen a lot of people come and go and a lot of changes in methods of operation. Just ask Kay Peck.

Peck joined the Grandvue staff in October of 1949, following graduation from nursing school at Northern Michigan College in June and marriage to Floyd Peck in September.

But it wasn't called Grandvue in those days. It was the Poor Farm until 1951, when new state welfare laws eliminated the Poor Farm concept. The new name of the facility then became Grandvue Hospital, which it retained until 1958, when a new building became Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Peck well remembers those years and events associated with them. The Poor Farm infirmary housed several incorrigible patients and when the nurses were ready to give them shots, they called the East Jordan firemen for help.

Once there was a marriage of two patients. The man was 86 and the woman 83. The wedding was complete with a reception provided by the Grandvue staff as well as a decorated car in which they were driven to their honeymoon cabin. The newlyweds enjoyed independent living in East Jordan for the next three or four years, according to Peck.

It is the people at Grandvue that Peck remembers best. Her patients have always come first. She considers herself a member of their families, especially those who have no nearby relatives.

When Peck went to work in 1949 (at the age of 19), she and another nurse worked six days a week. They and two on-call doctors were the only medical staff. The doctors were Jerrian VanDellen and John Savory.

Peck has been in charge of the 27-bed residential care unit at Grandvue since it opened in 1980. Before that, her nursing duties covered the whole Grandvue facility, and through the years, she has scarcely missed a day at work.

Her longest periods of absence were three weeks before and three weeks after the birth of her three children. She says she never missed a day of work because of the weather, even when she had a passenger who had to roll down the window of the car to see the road. However, the weather kept her at Grandvue one night. In the last 28 years, Peck has taken only 12 days of sick time—due to a broken arm that was put in a cast. She appeared for work that time but the Administrator would not let her stay.

Peck used to take a week's vacation time to go deer hunting with her husband, but since 1980, her vacation time has been limited to Fridays. This is because, until recently, she has been on 24-hour call. (The four-day Labor Day weekend is the best of all, she says.)

Peck's alarm clock has been going off at 4:45 and she leaves Grandvue about 2:45, in time to go home and take a nap before preparing dinner. "I'm going to miss it. Probably the first week or so I will wake up as usual and think about going to work," she says.

"Peck may miss Grandvue and Grandvue is certainly going to miss her."

Says Kay Hanson, "Kay is fabulous. She exemplifies Grandvue."

She is an example of what nurses should be. I have learned a lot from her."

Lynn Carson, who has worked with Peck for 20 years, added, "Kay is one of the most compassionate persons I know. She wants to care for people. She is thoughtful, considerate, and always the same day after day. I have never seen her angry with a patient."

Helen Deming, a 22-year co-worker, had this to say, "Kay is a joy to work with. She knows names and relatives of former patients and stories about the staff and patients we could never know."

Peck's life has been centered in East Jordan. She grew up there, graduated from high school there, married there, and spent her entire working life there.

She was assisted in raising her children by her mother and mother-in-law. Her mother, Belle Sweet, still lives by herself in East Jordan at the age of 90. Peck's three children also live near the family home on Deer Lake Road.

Future plans? Peck and her husband are leaving soon for a short trip to Florida. They have to be back by March 16 because that's when their children are having a retirement party for Kay at the East Jordan VFW Hall. Grandvue employees are honoring her this Friday with a dinner at the Lamp Lighter Inn in Central Lake.

Kay Peck is retiring after 41 years of employment at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

City council begins reviewing budget

By L. Scott Swanson

Maybe city taxes will increase and then again maybe they won't. The city council began reviewing the proposed 1991-92 fiscal year budget Monday evening.

As proposed by staff, the budget calls for a city tax increase of .72 of a mill. However, at the end of Monday's meeting, third ward council representative Pat Gaskin said she feels the council should do whatever it can to keep from increasing the millage rate. Council representatives Bill Haggard and Butch Russell quickly expressed their empathy for that position.

Eliminating the millage increase would require either cutting proposed expenditures by approximately $56,000 or taking the money out of the city's savings. (The accounting term for city savings is fund balance.)

City manager Mike Wiesner said he can see where the city can, in the short term, eliminate the need for a millage increase. But he said he would be concerned about how that will affect city finances in the long term.

Gaskin and Russell both noted that although Charlevoix's millage levy is low in comparison to other towns in the area, Charlevoix's property values (often referred to as SEV which stands for State Equalized Value) are high.

Pool proponents repeat request for millage and grant money

by WENDI WRIGHT

The Charlevoix Board of Education grappled with the issue of the proposed community pool again Monday night. The two proposals before the board, offered at an earlier meeting by Dave Strawbridge representing the Pool Steering Committee, were discussed at length, but no action was taken.

At a regular board meeting in January, Strawbridge asked the board to consider two proposals involving the pool: 1st) that the school sponsor a DNR grant for $500,000; and 2) that the school hold a bond election to fund construction of the pool. The question at Monday night's meeting was the order in which these two things should take place.

Strawbridge said the pool committee would like the board to sign the preliminary grant application as soon as possible to beat the April 1st filing deadline, then hold the election in May. If the voters turn down the bond issue, he said, the board could negate the grant application. However, if the bond was approved, the paperwork would be on track for grant approval in June.

Two members of the board voiced preference for a different scenario. Scott Beatty and Doris Pearl said they would prefer to hold the election first, before they signed the grant application.

"I have a problem with committing the school system to 20 years of funding without being assured that the community wants the pool," Pearl said. "After the vote, the board could sign on the dotted line and have no qualms whatsoever."

According to Strawbridge, the problem with this scenario is time. Since the election could not be held in time to meet the April 1st filing date, the grant, and therefore, the pool, would be put off another year. He reiterated his point that by signing the grant application, the board is not committed to anything; the application can be negated by either the school or the DNR at any point before the money actually changes hands.

Ardith Wieland, board member, supported this view, saying that as long as the board could halt the grant process if the voters said no, she saw no harm in signing the application in time to beat this year's deadline.

The amount of the bond issue was also discussed. Several figures were bandied about, based on a March 1990 projected cost/revenue analysis by Bern Cannan, pool committee secretary. According to the report, the revised total cost of construction of the pool is over $1.5 million. If the DNR grant is approved for the full $500,000, at least $800,000 would have to be provided by the bond issue.

The pool committee plans to cover operating costs of the pool with an additional $500,000 endowment fund of which the committee currently has $110,000 in the bank, with pledges of $300,000 more over the next

The formula for determining property taxes is millage multiplied by SEV. A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of SEV. SEV is one-half of what the tax assessor feels your property would be worth if you sold it.

The city's millage levy is divided into three categories: operational, infrastructure and debt retirement. Currently the city levies 9 mills for operations, 3 mills for infrastructure and 1.76 mills for debt retirement. As proposed in the budget, the city would levy 8.75 mills for operations, 4 mills for infrastructure and 1.73 mills for debt retirement.

Earlier this year council members approved a 5-year capital improvement plan which called for increasing the infrastructure millage from 3 to 4 mills. Infrastructure is a big word for city street, sewer, water and sidewalk. The city began a multi-year infrastructure repair program in 1987 to fix deteriorating streets, sidewalks etc. For two years the city levied 4 mills for the repairs. However, in the last two years the council levied only 3 mills for infrastructure repair.

A higher city SEV will apparently allow a .25 of a mill decrease in operational millage for the coming year. However it will take an additional $50,000 in budget cuts to reduce operational millage by an additional .25 of a mill to completely offset the infrastructure increase.

The council reviewed only a portion of the proposed budget Monday evening. They will review the remainder of the budget next Monday evening.

The proposed budget encompasses approximately 100 pages. City department heads compile a list of budgetary needs for the coming year and Wiesner and city treasurer Rick Brandt, with the assistance of other staff members, compile a proposed budget.

In past years, Wiesner has explained to council members that in the compilation process budget figures are used to determine a proposed millage levy, rather than a millage levy determining budget figures. In other words, city administrators look at anticipated expenses and then determine how many mills will be needed to meet those expenses. In past years, it has been the practice of the council to look at how many mills it wishes to levy and use that figure to determine how much the city will spend.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME

L SCOTT SWANSON

Name made in the Dakotas

In the 1920s, Lawrence Welk and his little band were traveling through North and South Dakota trying to make a name for themselves.

I'm sure we all can appreciate just how difficult that must have been. Think of it, one little band among what surely must have been a multitude of entertainers traveling through North and South Dakota in the 1920s. Just a few men and their instruments hoping to catch the fancy of those entertainment-wise North and South Dakota folks. On the miles they must have traveled, day after day, night after night, a polka here a waltz there. Trying to make a name for themselves. Hoping to someday find that Black Hills spotlight glistening off the chrome of Lawrence's accordion. Doubtless, there were times when it seemed an impossible dream.

But did Lawrence Welk and company ever turn back? No. They pressed on and played on. And one Sunday evening, more than 60 years later, I found myself sitting in the living room watching an old Lawrence Welk rerun on public television.

Left to my own remote control and television, I'm not sure I would have watched the Lawrence Welk show. But I have a wife and a kid these days. It wasn't so much the wife, but the kid who wanted to watch Lawrence.

The baby was sitting on her mother's lap. Not only was she sitting, she was fussing. She seemed annoyed enough to sit and fuss all at the same time. She's getting some molars and that's led to a fair amount of crankiness lately.

As I scanned through the television channels, I hit upon the Lawrence show. Some women in glittery dresses were doing some dance that was popular at about the same time Lawrence was in the Dakotas. I'm not sure just what the dance was, the Charleston or Varsity Stomp or something like that.

Whatever it was they were doing, when the television hit that station, the kid fell silent and was mesmerized. I don't know why, and I don't really care to know why. The kid found Lawrence and his music so fascinating. The peaceful silence after two or three days of regular whining was enough for me. If maintaining that tranquility meant leaving the television on the Lawrence Welk show, then Lawrence, buddy, loosen up your bawling wailing arm and have at it.

As it turned out, the show we were watching had originally been broadcast in 1971. Even before they mentioned it, I suspected the show was a rerun. The guys with long hair and sideburns were my first clue. The girls who looked like adult Barbie dolls were my second clue.

Lawrence was doing a tribute to Broadway. I'm a bit vague on some of those Broadway things so I figured it would be good for me to pay attention. They were singing songs by people named Gilbert and Hammetstein, or something like that. And some guy named Roger Sullivan, who if my sports knowledge serves me correctly was a bare-knuckles boxer before he gave it up for music.

The baby loved each and every song. She sat in her mother's lap, swaying to the music and occasionally trying to join in and sing a word or two.

In truth, I recognized several of the songs. I certainly didn't know them well enough to sing along. After all, the show originally aired in 1971 meaning all of the songs were written before I was age 11. Of all the songs they played, the one I was most familiar with was one about trying to remember September. The reason I recalled that so clearly is that it was originally sung by Ed Ames. Ed Ames also was on the Daniel Boone show, which was a favorite of mine as a youngster. Had Lawrence Welk and his crew sung anything by Fess Parker? I'm sure I also would have immediately recognized that.

At the end of the show, the band played a medley of tunes. A medley is where a band plays several songs. It's normally a challenge to listen to because just when you recognize a song you like, the band begins playing something different.

But with the Lawrence Welk medley that wasn't a problem. I was indifferent to all of the songs they were playing so it didn't bother me when they switched from one to another. The baby also didn't care what they played. She enjoyed it all. The only one who expressed any preference was my wife. When she was in high school she played the clarinet, first chair mind you, and consequently she possesses enough knowledge of Broadway tunes to be frustrated by a medley.

After the baby and wife went off to bed, I had the television to myself and could watch whatever I wanted. But by then a pattern had been established. It was to be an evening of nostalgia. CBS was doing a salute to the Ed Sullivan show, and I couldn't tear myself away.

Letters to the editor

War for government

Editor,

The Middle East military effort is a campaign attempt to speed the U.S. into a world government. Yes, one of the reasons we are in the Middle East is to establish, maintain, and control the first one-world government that has ever existed. There are three global competitors: the Pope, Gorbachev, and the capitalist nations of the West. We will have a world system that will have control over us, that will affect most of what we take for granted, such as our way of life as individuals and citizens of the nation, our families and our jobs, our trade and commerce and money our education system and our religious and our culture, even the bodies of our national identity. Thus, no sector of our life will remain untouched.

The Pope spoke as an arch-bishop in 1976 in New York that we were beginning to face a great historical confrontation that the Christian community does not fully recognize. In 1979, he went as a Pope to Poland, the underbelly of Russia, and began his first struggle for geopolitical power. In his papal robes, promising eternal salvation, and not fear, as Caesar he strikes a peaceful figure.

Gorbachev's steps toward global control has struck the world as Gorbachomania. Each time the Pope wins a power struggle Gorbachev retaliates with abilities of a global champion. He won over Margaret Thatcher, and Ronald Reagan, he won over the U.N. Chernobyl was his first attempt at global control when he openly gave information to the world and proceeded to tell all about the problems that Russia was suffering within herself, this affected the West where a reversal of 70 years of negativism toward Russia has been felt. Many capitalists who have not been fops interested are now looking at Gorbachev as a hero. These are the internationalists who want world peace. Others, dissatisfied with our government, are people tired of the lack of a code of ethics and a precept of morality that is not required of capitalism. This is evident in our legal system and other agencies where things are handled on a situation-to-situation basis. The court is in need of a transformation process because it is not working. The court is based on individual instead of family, and you are found guilty, but there is no shame.

President Bush and Secretary Baker are the leaders of the West, and we have no geopolitical models at this time. We have to insure that we stay in charge, and we are because of finance and technology.

We are not the competitors; we are the stakes. We will stand by and watch, and there will only be one winner. With the war starting, it's obvious that Bush is in the limelight; he is the present No. 1 global competitor. My responsibilities as a Christian are to inform others about this global battle, to tell others to read the Bible where you can read about this battle, and to pray that the value systems of the Bible continue to direct our lives.

MADD expresses displeasure

Editor,

As members of MADD, Charlevoix County, part of our mission is to monitor drunk driving cases in our county. It is also our responsibility to inform the public when a case is handled in a way that we feel is not in the best interest of public safety.

We are concerned about the frequent use of plea bargaining in alcohol related offenses by Charlevoix County prosecutor Kraag Lieberman. For example, every alcohol related case that his office handled in December 1990 had a plea bargain involved. One of those cases stood out from the others and upon investigation we were outraged by the way it was handled by the prosecutor.

The case involved an individual who was arrested for drunk driving by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's department. The breathalyzer results were .11 and .10. The defendant was charged with OUIL ("Operating Under the Influence of Liquor"). But when the case reached court Mr. Lieberman agreed to plea bargain, allowing the drunk driving charge to be dismissed in exchange for a guilty plea to reckless driving. The driver was given a $205 fine, no jail or license suspension was imposed.

In Charlevoix County, according to the 1989 Michigan "D-Audit" report, the most frequent dollar fine for OUIL is $600. The most frequent days of jail for OUIL is 10, and the most frequent days of license suspension is 180 days.

We asked Mr. Lieberman why he chose not to follow his own guidelines in this case and made such an extreme plea bargain. His response was that the defendant is a licensed pilot and he would have lost this license if convicted of any alcohol related driving offense. Because he did not want to jeopardize the defendant's livelihood Mr. Lieberman allowed this plea bargain.

It is our belief that anyone who drinks and drives jeopardizes not only the livelihoods but the very lives of everyone needing to share the road with them. This drunk driver chose to jeopardize his own pilot's license when he made the choice to get behind the wheel of his car while under the influence of alcohol.

Mr. Lieberman also told us that all things being equal, this defendant had a pilot's license, not been involved, would have been treated differently. The most that the defendant would have been offered would have been a plea bargain that dropped the OUIL charge for a guilty plea to impaired driving. The defendant upon conviction would have received the penalties (up to 90 days in jail) and the suspension of driving privileges (up to one year) that go with it.

We feel that Mr. Lieberman did a great injustice to the community by allowing this charge to be dismissed. Drunk driving is a very serious problem in this country. In 1989, 22,415 people were killed and 345,000 were injured in alcohol related crashes. No one should be immune from prosecution of this offense because of their occupation. A drunk pilot behind the wheel of a car is just as dangerous as a drunk driver in any other occupation.

Mr. Lieberman either did not do his homework or ignored the facts of this case. Through our investigation we discovered that this individual's primary source of income is unrelated to having a pilot's license. Also the FAA recently toughened its rules regarding drunk driving, effective Nov. 29, 1990, the new rules state that the FAA will take action to suspend or revoke a pilot's license if the individual receives two or more alcohol related driving convictions. This was a first offense, therefore the license would have been unaffected.

We ask that Mr. Lieberman not give special deals to anyone arrested and charged with alcohol related driving offenses and to prosecute them to the full extent of the law. We also challenge him to join the growing number of law enforcement agencies, prosecutors and judges across the county who are taking a tougher stance regarding drunk driving in order to make our community a safer place to live.

Nothing wrong with dissent

Editor,

I am frightened by the growing number of friends and acquaintances of mine who support the Persian Gulf War. More and more people are being swept up by a kind of nationalism that states, "If you love your country and support our troops, then you're for the war." Isn't it possible to love our country and our troops but be very opposed to the war?

I would like to quote the Veterans for Peace, Inc.: "Those who would silence dissent in the United States. We do not believe that Saddam Hussein, nor any other real or perceived enemy, should be allowed to suppress the Constitutional Rights of American Citizens. Those who would silence dissent in the United States debate the Constitution of the United States and the American form of democracy and dishonor those who have sacrificed their lives to protect fundamental American freedom."

I am saddened by the way we have all given up on nonviolent alternatives to war. Practical achievements of nonviolent actions were amply demonstrated recently in middle Europe and the Philippines while a temporary setback - which may prove a moral victory - was experienced in China. But now we are at war again and it seems to be all right with everybody!

I submit to you that, as long as war is an instrument of international policy that is supported by the majority of people, there will be no peace on this planet. Apparently, that's what everybody wants - you can't say that you oppose war, but it's O.K. this time because Hussein must be stopped. I hate to say this, but there's always going to be another Hitler, another Hussein, another justifiable cause until we say "NO! War is NOT an option!"

Your fillings are safe

Editor,

There has recently been controversy concerning the Dec. 16, 1990 "60 Minutes" program on dental amalgam. Our position reflects those of the American Dental Association, the National Institute of Dental Research, the United States Public Health Service, the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, the Consumers Union (Consumer Report) and the Federal Drug Administration.

Silver filling or dental amalgam is a safe, inexpensive, time-proven, and effective material for restoring teeth damaged by decay. It has been used in the United States for over 150 years. It is used in 75 percent of all single-tooth fillings. 100 million Americans have benefited by it.

Dental amalgam is made by vigorously mixing silver powder and liquid mercury. This mixture becomes very hard in several minutes, restoring a damaged tooth.

Mercury is toxic in the liquid or vaporous form. However, when mercury is combined with silver it forms a non-toxic compound. In a similar way, chlorine is a poisonous gas, but when it reacts with sodium (a highly flammable metal) it forms common table salt.

Research has shown that dental fillings release extremely low levels of mercury vapor. This tiny amount does not present any documented health risk to people. Much larger amounts of mercury are absorbed through the air we breathe and the food we eat. A major source of mercury is in seafood.

Both the medical and dental professions have anecdotal claims of the dangers and effects of mercury toxicity via amalgam. These claims are very questionable and have no sound support.

Dentists and their staffs handle dental amalgam every day and would be at much greater risks than their patients. Dentists and their staffs however enjoy the same health as the general public.

Observations of millions of people have brought about no scientific reason for concern about the safety of dental amalgam. Scientific studies have repeatedly shown no link between the mercury contained in dental amalgam and any health threat.

Less than one percent of the population however is allergic to this material. The allergy typically appears as a skin rash. Except in these rare cases of allergy, there is no reason to have amalgam fillings removed.

Your area Michigan Dental Association Dentists thought you should know.

John A. Merrill D.D.S., President

We have already contributed to a very successful graduation party for Charlevoix High School Seniors and have offered a variety of education and support events in the community. Our goal is to make a difference in ways that will contribute to an alcohol and drug free environment for our youth and children.

PEARLS desires to go on public record in support of the concept of a pool for the people of Charlevoix. We feel strongly that this will provide an important opportunity for fun, education and exercise not only for children and youth, but our entire community.

We encourage the school board, city council and the citizens of Charlevoix to unite behind this worthy project of great value and importance to each of us.

School board considers Channel 1 program

by WENDI WRIGHT

The Charlevoix Board of Education has examined the pros and cons of television in the classroom at its last two meetings, and through watching TV not normally on the agenda for school board meetings, the board did just that on February 14 as part of a presentation of "Channel 1," an educational network being offered to Charlevoix schools.

The board watched a 12-minute news broadcast geared toward teenagers as part of a presentation of "Channel 1," an educational network being offered to Charlevoix schools. According to Jamie Lund, a representative of Whittle Communications, the company that distributes the network, the program was developed to get the news into students' busy lives. School have shown, Lund said, that today's teenagers do not know as much about current events as teenagers in the past, or as much as teenagers in other countries. Whittle Communications distributes the network free of charge to 6,000 schools currently, with plans to go as high as 8,000 nationwide. She added that 450 Michigan schools are currently participating in the program, including East Jordan, Manistota, Boyne City, Kalkaska, and Petoskey.

According to Lund, "Channel 1" does not cost the school anything. The network is funded by advertising. Each 12-minute broadcast contains two minutes of advertising by such companies as Burger King and Nike.

In addition to the daily "Channel 1" news broadcasts, the network offers two other channels to participating schools, also free of charge, Lund said. The "Classroom Channel" offers 250 instructional and curriculum specific programs each year. These broadcasts can be utilized by teachers in the classroom as teaching aids. The "Educator's Channel" provides programming designed to inform educators about trends and events in the field. The news broadcast is the only program to be shown daily in all classrooms.

Whittle Communications provides all the equipment necessary to utilize the network, including television sets for all classrooms, two VCR's, all wiring, etc. The company is responsible for service and maintenance of equipment.

According to Lund, programs are satellite-fed to all schools on the network each night. The news is taped at the participating school during the night, and can be previewed the next morning by school personnel before being broadcast to the classrooms. The programs offered by the "Classroom Channel" and the "Educator's Channel" are made available to the schools in the same way.

If any material in the newscast is deemed offensive, there is no obligation to show that particular tape, Lund said. Whittle Communications asks only that 90 percent of the broadcasts be shown. If a school falls below that percentage, the company reserves the right to remove the equipment, at no cost to the school.

Since several board members were concerned about the advertising contained in the "Channel 1" daily broadcasts, Lund outlined the network's guidelines for choosing advertisers. She said ads for the following are not considered for broadcast on "Channel 1": abortion clinics, alcohol, drugs, contraception, or tobacco products. Lund added that no more than two minutes of advertising would ever be included in a broadcast.

Currently the network is being offered only to the middle school and the high school. Middle School Principal Dennis VanGilder told the board that his staff had seen the presentation, and was very enthusiastic about the possibility of having the network in the school. He said that teachers had discussed several alternative means of fitting the 12-minute broadcast into the daily schedule.

Though the network has been discussed at length, the board has taken no action. At the meeting Monday night, several concerns were raised by board members, including whether the network would benefit the curriculum, and the implications of signing the three-year contract required by Whittle Communications.

Board members also raised questions about the contract itself, and VanGilder was appointed to talk to the company and report the answers to the board at a future meeting.

Rev. Bruce Hamilton

My eight year old son had just come face to face with a horse for the very first time. From his small size, the giant stature of the animal was overwhelming. His owner's invitation to ride him was terrifying. What was a little fellow to do?

The dilemma turned to delight in a very interesting fashion. Our host climbed into the saddle first then pulled my son aboard in front of him. Slowly, carefully, they walked the horse around the ring. He explained how even a little boy could control a big horse if he knew just what to do. The reins could be both a steering wheel and a brake. Gentle kicks to the horse's side could set the speed. But the most important factor was speaking to the horse in a calm steady voice.

As this equestrian lesson continued, my son did not notice that his teacher was sliding further and further back in the saddle. The little fellow never realized he was on his own controlling the horse until he came around the ring and saw our friend standing there. "I'm doing it Dad! I'm really doing it all by myself."

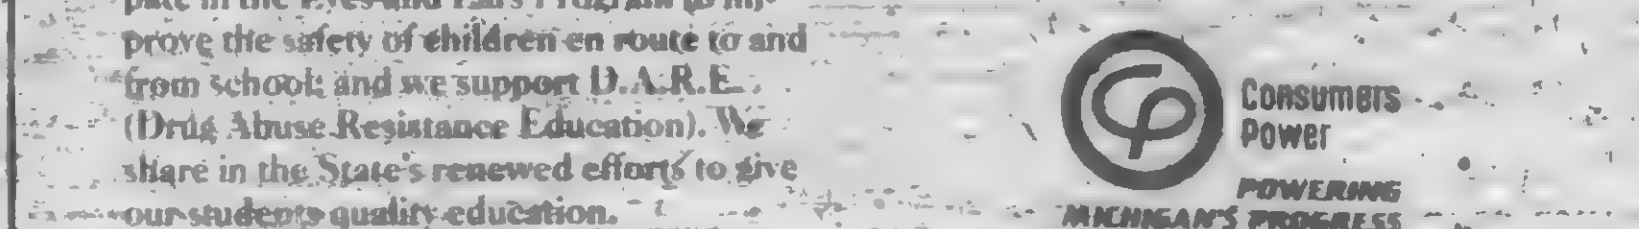

The first time we truly come face to face with God, it can be an overwhelming moment. God, our heavenly Father, the Creator, knows us and cares about us. He is inviting us to join Him for the ride of our lives. His son Jesus climbs into the saddle of our hearts and says, "let me show you the way."

The first steps of faith we take can be a little shaky. But with Jesus' reassuring presence, we quickly discover that we can walk by faith. Those unknown moments get easier and easier to face when His Spirit tells us, "I've already been there. You will be okay."

The more confidence we gain in our faith the better life becomes. God has devoted all the resources of heaven to seeing to it that you do have what you need to live the life of faith. No one wants to see you enjoying the blessing and assurance that it offers more than Him. But like my boy's first ride on a horse, you will never know if you can do it until you try.

OF BLESSINGS

Rev. Bruce Hamilton

My eight year old son had just come face to face with a horse for the very first time. From his small size, the giant stature of the animal was overwhelming. His owner's invitation to ride him was terrifying. What was a little fellow to do?

The dilemma turned to delight in a very interesting fashion. Our host climbed into the saddle first then pulled my son aboard in front of him. Slowly, carefully, they walked the horse around the ring. He explained how even a little boy could control a big horse if he knew just what to do. The reins could be both a steering wheel and a brake. Gentle kicks to the horse's side could set the speed. But the most important factor was speaking to the horse in a calm steady voice.

As this equestrian lesson continued, my son did not notice that his teacher was sliding further and further back in the saddle. The little fellow never realized he was on his own controlling the horse until he came around the ring and saw our friend standing there. "I'm doing it Dad! I'm really doing it all by myself."

The first time we truly come face to face with God, it can be an overwhelming moment. God, our heavenly Father, the Creator, knows us and cares about us. He is inviting us to join Him for the ride of our lives. His son Jesus climbs into the saddle of our hearts and says, "let me show you the way."

The first steps of faith we take can be a little shaky. But with Jesus' reassuring presence, we quickly discover that we can walk by faith. Those unknown moments get easier and easier to face when His Spirit tells us, "I've already been there. You will be okay."

The more confidence we gain in our faith the better life becomes. God has devoted all the resources of heaven to seeing to it that you do have what you need to live the life of faith. No one wants to see you enjoying the blessing and assurance that it offers more than Him. But like my boy's first ride on a horse, you will never know if you can do it until you try.

Ceremony honors local service people

Between 100 and 120 people gathered in East Park Saturday morning as red, white and blue ribbons were placed on the community Christmas tree in honor of local people serving in the Persian Gulf War.

In addition to the ceremony, flags are flying throughout the downtown area and many businesses and individuals have decorated their stores and homes.

Rev. Bruce Hamilton offered prayers to open and close the ribbon ceremony. He said people at the gathering were reminded that although we enjoy the blessings of liberty, they do not come without a price.

Bill Vogel from WKHQ served as master of ceremonies and introduced the family members who placed the ribbons on the tree.

Following the ceremony, several family members stayed a few moments to get a picture with one of the ribbons so they could send it to their service person.

The Show Your Colors group is keeping a list of names of local service people serving in the Gulf. The list frequently changes as some service people come back to the states and others are sent to the Gulf. Anna Cram (547-4119) is the local contact person.

Paul Bunyan Lanes and the Flight Deck Bar were encircled by a four-foot-wide yellow ribbon in support of local service people.

Local veterans provided a color guard for Saturday morning's ribbon ceremony in East Park.

David Olach placed a ribbon on the tree in honor of his younger brother Darren, who is stationed in Saudi Arabia.

Dozens of flags are being displayed throughout the community in support of local people serving with the military in the Persian Gulf.

Smokers given class to quit

Sometimes it takes a little bit of help from your friends to quit smoking. Joining with others who have had difficulty kicking the habit in the "Freedom from Smoking" program at Charlevoix Area Hospital has proven successful for many.

Beginning with an orientation session on Monday, March 11, at 7 p.m. in the classroom at Charlevoix Area Hospital, the course will conclude after eight weekly meetings: April 29. The class will not meet during the spring break week, but will have two sessions the week of April 8 during "quit week." Cheryl Jacobs, respiratory therapist and program leader, says, "The program really works because we don't quit 'cold turkey' the first night and people find the support they need in the group to make breaking the habit permanent." The program is sponsored by Charlevoix Area Hospital and the American Lung Association.

A minimum of 12 registrations must be received in order to have the class. Cost for the program is $50. For further information, or registration, call Charlevoix Area Hospital at 547-4024.

Administrator and Guild plan ahead

New Guild President Margaret Landman urges all paid members of the Guild to attend next month's meeting on Monday, March 11, at 10 a.m. in the hospital's conference room. The speaker will be Bob Kontewicz, of the Physical Therapy Department, who will explain the services available through his department. Dentist builds new office on M-66

Charlevoix dentist Dr. Robert Merrill has moved his offices from Petoskey Avenue to larger quarters at 06483 M-66, across from the K-Mart Plaza.

Dr. Merrill has practiced dentistry in Charlevoix for more than seven years. He is a graduate of Western Michigan University and the University of Michigan School of Dentistry.

Although he grew up in southwestern Michigan, Dr. Merrill has many ties to the Charlevoix area. His father retired three years ago as minister of the Petoskey United Methodist Church and his grandfather was minister of the Methodist Church in Boyne City in the early 1920s.

Dr. Merrill takes at least 150 class hours of continuing education each year in a program to improve his skills in providing comprehensive, quality care for his patients. "When I first started out, I spent only a short period of time with new patients. Now I spend an hour or more with them, getting to know them so I will be better able to take care of all their dental needs," he explained.

Dr. Merrill's office staff consists of Kay Harper, office manager; Rita Moore, accountant; Hazel Loder, dental assistant; Deb Buckner, dental assistant; and Janet Sinclair, dental hygienist.

Dr. Robert Vedder, a Huntington Woods orthodontist, shares office space with Dr. Merrill two weeks a month.

Dr. Merrill, his wife, Janet, and five-year-old son, Jonathan, live on Pa-Ba-Shan Lane.

Shop has new owner

Judy Timmerman could have been born to do the job she is now doing.

Judy is a hairdresser who recently purchased the Shear Happiness shop. "I love doing hair. I love the people. I am a people person," Judy explained.

In fact, Judy loves her customers so much that she has gone to the funeral home twice to give customers their last hairdo. "I promised them I would, and I did," Judy said of these experiences. "It was kind of nice, too, because I had a chance to say goodbye to them in my own way."

Judy is operating the shop by herself for the time being, specializing in haircuts and permanents, but performs other services when asked. Later on she will add an assistant and offer more services.

She grew up in Petoskey and, after marrying, spent 20 years in Missouri. Upon returning to Petoskey, Judy attended Beauty School, after which she worked for another shop in Charlevoix for five years. She has a daughter, Tonya, who is a student at Charlevoix High School.

When asked what's new in the hair business, Judy replied, "Real short-casual cuts. All the magazines are showing them."

There is also another gradual trend in the business, Judy noted. "Women used to have their hair done every week as a matter of course. But we've taught them how to do it themselves so now they come to shops mostly just for cuts and perms," she said.

What does a dedicated hairdresser do when not dressing hair?

Judy is part of a drag-racing crew. Yes, drag-racing. "It's kind of a family affair," she added casually. "My friends and even my daughter." Then a final remark, "But I don't drive."

Students to talk about Soviet trip

The Charlevoix International Club will meet at 7 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 28 at 501 Mercer Avenue. High School students who travelled to the Soviet Union last summer will talk about their experiences during the trip.

The Charlevoix International Club is a chapter of People to People International, a group which promotes international understanding and friendship.

For additional information about the group, contact Ralph McRae at 547-6764 or Gail Wiemer at 547-4278.

Veterans' office keeping active

Ron Geer, director of the Charlevoix County Office of Veterans Affairs, reports that his office made 125 contacts during the month of January.

These contacts were for two World War I veterans or their families, 28 from World War II, 15 from the Korean conflict, three from the post-Korean era, 23 from the Viet Nam conflict, 13 from the post-Viet Nam era, three other veterans, 19 active duty personnel, eight National Guard or Reservist personnel, and 12 persons other than veterans.

Council finishes budget review

By L. Scott Swanson

The Charlevoix City Council has read and heard about the proposed city budget for the 1991-92 fiscal year. Now council members must decide whether they're going to leave it the way it is, or change it.

City staff members drafted the proposed budget and presented it to council members during Feb. 18 and 25 council meetings. This year's budget, like those of the past three to four years, is capital intensive. In other words, the city plans to build and repair a lot of things.

Electric system improvements are estimated to cost $3.5 million in the coming year. A proposal to borrow $3.3 million for the project is being considered by the council. The borrowing proposal is on hold until the council decides where to build a new electrical substation which is a key part of the electrical system improvements. Money for the improvements will ultimately come from payments by city electric system customers.

Another major project will be work at Ferry Beach. The proposed budget contains $713,000 to complete the Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) plan. Last summer the street was moved and some landscaping was done. This summer will see construction of picnic shelters and a new parking lot as well as reconstruction of the boat ramps. A state grant of $215,700 will pay for a portion of the project. The remainder will come from TIFA funds which are tax dollars paid by property owners in the district and earmarked for improvements within the TIFA district.

The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) is funded much the same as the TIFA district, but it affects the downtown area. DDA funds paid for sidewalk and other improvements on Bridge Street during the past two years. This year the DDA will not be undertaking a lot of construction. Although the state plans to repave Bridge Street this spring, once that's finished, that area will have a generally construction-free summer.

According to the city's 5-year infrastructure plan, $488,600 in street, water and sewer work will be done this summer. The main portion of that work ($455,000) will take place on Dixon Avenue between Meach and Mercer. Portions of Cherry and Carpenter Streets will also be resurfaced.

Horton Bay takes to the ice

After this weekend, the people of Horton Bay will begin concentrating on the end of winter and readying themselves for their Fourth of July parade.
They have to keep the winter weather until Sunday evening because they will be busy all day Sunday with their fourth annual Winter Olympics, a fundraiser for the parade.
Traditionally, the last winter festival in northern Michigan, this fun-filled event will take on a patriotic tone this year with red, white, and blue and yellow ribbons flying high in honor of area military men and women deployed overseas.
Beginning at 1 p.m. with the lighting of the "Olympic Torch" (a washtub filled with flammable oil atop a step ladder), events will proceed through the singing of the National Anthem by resident vocalist Bob Munn and opening of the games by Horton Bay historian Bill Ohle, to a number of athletic feats and other happenings known only to those around Horton Bay.
These include a frozen fish-throwing contest, apple-bobbing through the ice of Lake Charlevoix (an event for both humans and canines), mini golf, bowling, and curling on the ice, a two-person shovel pull, a hockey exhibition by two semi-pro players, luge and bobsled runs, fortune telling, a chance to pelt an abominable character with over-ripe fruits and vegetables, a triathlon, and last but not least, a performance of wiggler-swallowing by Jon Hartwell.
There will be ribbons for the first three winners, both children and adults, in all events. Refreshments of mac and bean soup, hot cocoa, and coffee will be available to consume around a huge bonfire.
A Hama or two from Maplewood Farms and the Windigo from places unknown will provide additional entertainment.

For this student, college means spending some time in court

By Peg Ohle

Amy Sulak of East Jordan is completing requirements for graduation from Central Michigan University by serving as an intern in the offices of Charlevoix County Probate Court.

Sulak is majoring in sociology with special concentration on social work and a minor in child development. Since joining the Probate Court staff, she has worked with the two probation officers, Mary Hickman and Dani Sherwood, as well as Juvenile Officer David Biter.

"I follow the probation officers around and ask them questions," Sulak explained. "They, and everyone else, have been so good about giving me time."

Sulak has her own caseload of five "troubled kids," as she calls them, guiding them and looking after their welfare. She has also done a couple of in-home adoption studies, assessing the families and how members interact with one another.

When not out in the field, Sulak attends Juvenile Court hearings to learn procedures and goes over case records with Biter.

A 1986 graduate of East Jordan High School, she later received an Associates degree from North Central Michigan College. She will receive her Bachelors degree from Central Michigan in May and hopes to find employment working with children. "I'll go where I can find a job," Sulak says, "and whatever I do will be in the field of working with kids."

In her spare time, Sulak is employed by Glen's Market in East Jordan. She is the daughter of Sandy Sulak of East Jordan.

as will streets in Hampton Village. The proposed budget allows $98,000 in local money for airport improvements in the coming year. That money will be added to state and federal funds to pay for land acquisition and a paved ramp area.

The city budget breaks down into 10 categories: General fund; major streets; local streets; electric fund; sewer fund; water fund; motor pool; DDA/TIFA; general debt; fringe benefits; trust funds; and public improvements.

Most of the funds receive the bulk of their money from local property taxes. However, some, such as the water, sewer and electric fund receive their money from user fees.

The council is expected to adopt a 1991-92 budget early in March.

Old and young to garden together at Grandvue

The older people of Grandvue Medical Care Facility and some of the young people of Charlevoix County will be working on a joint project this year.

It is a Community Service Garden which will be planted near Grandvue to provide vegetables and flowers for the facility. In addition to Grandvue residents, participants will be first-time juvenile offenders who have found their way to Charlevoix Juvenile Court.

"This concept has been developed to provide Juvenile Court offenders with an opportunity to broaden their horizons," Juvenile Court Officer David Biter said.

"Our hope is that young offenders who participate in this program will learn many lessons about life, themselves, and the community in which they live. We hope to teach them about responsibility, accountability, and cooperation," he added.

Of special importance to the young people is that the project will give them an opportunity to oversee a project from start to finish - from seed to table food.

For Grandvue residents, the project will give them an opportunity to engage in gardening, an activity which many of them thoroughly enjoy. It will also result in stimulating activity between the two generations, which will culminate in a Fall Harvest Dinner for all the participants and Grandvue residents.

It is planned that any surplus produce will be donated to the elderly shut-ins, food pantries, and other service-oriented agencies and programs.

Biter is heading up the project for Juvenile Court. Cheryl Sothard is in charge at the Grandvue end of the project. They have issued a joint appeal for supplies and volunteers to make it a success. Among the items requested are garden tools; seeds, seedlings, fertilizer, garden hose, sprinklers, storage building, and cold frames. But most of all, they will need volunteers to serve as site supervisors to coordinate and instruct the young people on gardening.

Working where you want

The urge to live and work in Charlevoix fosters creative life styles. Take CPA, Robert Hoffman for example. His office-home is in Charlevoix, but his clients are scattered all over the United States!

"How is it possible for you to be a practicing certified public accountant in Charlevoix and have most of your clients scattered all over the country?" I ask.

"I used to work for a firm in St. Louis and in 1976 I started my own accounting practice. While vacationing in Charlevoix, I realized that most of my business was done by mail or over the phone, and it doesn't make any difference where I live. With my 800 telephone number, computers and fax machine, I can deal with clients in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Dallas, Miami, Hartford, Milwaukee, Chicago, Omaha, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Wichita and Green Bay just as easily as clients in Charlevoix."

"How do you attract clients in such diverse cities?" I wonder.

"When people are transferred or retired from St. Louis to other cities, they still remained my clients. Then I also get word of mouth referrals and now I even have some clients that I have never met!"

Born and raised in Detroit, the family used to summer in one of the old Baker cottages on West Dixon, across from the former Beach Hotel. Bob recalls that from the time he was four years old, the family used to have breakfast at the then popular Chatterbox Cafe on Bridge Street. The child dreamt he would grow up and live in Charlevoix someday. He would own his own power cruiser and blow the horn for the bridge to go up for him as he passed through the channel, waving at the people on the pier.

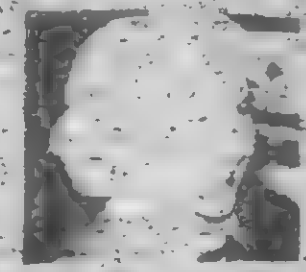

Most of Bob's dream has come true. He lives with wife Linda and their two aghans, Shehrazade and Natasha, in what was formerly their vacation home on 203 Mason street. His two grown, adopted daughters, both married recently within the same fiscal year. In spite of having set a wedding budget, Bob chuckles when he says this duo wedding gives new meaning to the term, "deficit financing."

Bob has really taken root in Charlevoix. He is active and on the boards of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Hospice, United Way, the Pool Steering Committee, the Clarence Edmund Pavillion Committee and the City of Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals.

Bob solves the summer traffic problem by riding from one meeting to another around town on his moped with his briefcase in the side basket. He likes to dress casually like the rest of the folks. No pin stripe suits or neckties for him!

Yes, most of that little boy's dreams have come true, except for the cruiser. Maybe after remodeling the kitchen? Both Bob and Linda are gourmet cooks. They enjoy working as a team. Bob likes preparing meats with fine sauces and Linda excels in preparing delectable desserts out of Gourmet Magazine.

Without a doubt, here is a couple that has carved an enviable and creative lifestyle for themselves up north, far from Detroit and St. Louis.

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

Being there and knowing what went on aren't always one and the same thing. I'm firmly convinced that a good number of people who attend events come away not really knowing just exactly what happened. I think a lot of people attend events, just to attend. Just to mingle with the crowd and be able to say they were there. Not that there's anything wrong with that. I just find it amusing.

Children are especially notorious for this. Take this weekend's Mount McSaub's Sno-Challenge. While adults amused themselves with Thunderbusting, snowmobiling and truck hill climbs, a flock of kids horsed around on the bunny hill, sliding and frolicking.

If you saw one of those kids this week and asked, "Did you go out to Mount McSaub's this weekend?"

The kid would reply, "Yeah, it was fun."

"What all went on?"

"Uhh...well...there were fire works. And I guess there was some other stuff too. I don't know. I played on the little hill."

Have you ever watched kids at high school football games? They're about like the kids at the Sno-Challenge. They hang out and talk to their friends and pay virtual no attention to the game.

One evening after a game ended,

I got talking to a guy as I was walking to where my truck was parked. The guy was kind of looking around as he walked. He said he was looking for his 13-year-old daughter. Not having much luck spotting her, he speculated that perhaps she was so busy talking to her friends that she hadn't realized the game had ended. He noted that his daughter never missed a home football game. Not that she thought the sport of football itself was such a wonderful thing, she just never missed a home game. This father noted that after every game, he always asked his daughter which team won. He said she usually knew which team won, but details such as the final score often escaped her.

Children aren't the only ones who forget details of events. One time I went to a college hockey game. Later that evening I was in my dorm room with the door open and some people stopped in. "What have you been up to?" I asked.

"Well, we're just getting back from the hockey game."

"Really, how'd that go?"

"We won. It was a good game."

"What was the score?"

"I think it was 5-3."

Those people left and a few minutes later another group dropped in. "What have you guys been up to tonight?"

"We went to the hockey game and stopped at Mickey D's on the way back."

"How'd the game come out?"

"It was kind of a dull game, but we won."

"What was the score?"

"We won by two. It was 3-1."

There was only one hockey game in that town on that night and I'd not only been to it, but also heard two different versions of it. Who knows? If it'd been the one telling about it, instead of asking about it, there might have been a third version.

Rock and pop concerts are another event which I think a lot of people go to just to be able to say they were there. If a person is interested in the sound quality of the music, they'd be better off with even an average car stereo. If you were interested in seeing what the performers look like, MTV has close-ups. But those who regularly attend concerts will tell you it's just not the same as being there - at least not to a true music fan. Of course if you do check to see whether they're a true music fan, you can always ask them what songs were played at the concert.

You start asking for details and you find out who was really interested in what was going on and was just there to be there.

Letters to the Editor:

Cut the Quayle bashing

Editor,
This letter is in response to Edith Gilbert's column of 2/13/91. I rather doubt if Dan Quayle would be at all interested in accepting an invitation to be Edith's dinner guest.

If seems, Edith should stick to writing about weddings, T-shirts, parties, travel and "Rich & Famous" trivia for which she appears to have expertise.

If your newspaper wishes to withdraw support of Dan Quayle as V.P. in '92 this is your privilege. But in so taking this stand your readers will expect to learn the rational by which you reached your conclusion. But this reader does not want more Quayle bashing by the media. Enough! This was a real cheap shot.

Most sincerely,
Evelyn Elliott

Pool: If there is an election, it should precede grant application

If, and it should be a big if, there is to be a special millage election and a grant application for an indoor swimming pool, the election should take place first.

The latest pool push has been going on for about two and a half years. A moment to refresh memories may prove helpful.

In late 1988, pool proponents wanted to build a pool at the city electric plant on Ferry Avenue. This was supposed to cost $600,000. According to pool proponents, financing would come from three sources: $100,000 from a state Neighborhood Builders Alliance Grant; $200,000 from the city's Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA); and $300,000 from fund-raising. That plan proved to have some drawbacks. To begin with, the city electric plant was, is, and at least for the next few years will continue to be, occupied by the city electric department. On the monetary front, the state grant application failed and TIFA money was dedicated for other uses.

In 1989, pool proponents decided they wanted the pool at the elementary school. Although the school board never said one way or the other whether they favored a pool at the site, pool proponents had a design, drawn and developed a cost estimate of between $1.1 and $1.7 million. As far as money for the project, pool proponents talked about fund raising, a real-estate transfer tax, state grants, a property tax increase or some combination of the four. The real estate transfer tax proved unfeasible. The city, township and board of education passed on sponsoring the grant application. And for a time pool proponents decided they, like many others, opposed a property tax increase. In fact, at a July 24, 1989 city council meeting, a pool spokesman said, "I'm dead flat telling you that we're not going to bring this to a millage."

During 1990, pool proponents attempted to raise funds for a pool at the elementary school. They said their goal was $2 million in grants and contributions to finance construction and an operational endowment fund.

Pool people reappeared before the school board about a month ago. They asked the board to sponsor a grant application seeking $500,000 and to call for a special election in the spring for a $1 million bond issue to fund construction of the pool. Obviously, between July of 1989 and January of 1991, pool people had a change of heart about whether or not taxes from a millage increase should be used to fund a pool.

At the Jan. 21 meeting, school board members asked the pool spokesman where the pool group stands in their fund raising effort. According to the spokesman, the pool group has raised $410,000. Of that, $110,000 is cash-in-hand and the remainder is in pledges.

Pool proponents' grant and election requests were again considered at the Feb. 18 school board meeting. At that meeting, board members Scott Beatty and Doris Pearl said that if there is to be an election and a grant application, the election should take place prior to the application. Pool proponents and board member Ardith Wieland disagreed, citing an April 1 application deadline for this year's grants and saying that applying doesn't commit the school to anything and the board can back out later if a millage proposal is turned down.

The approach preferred by Beatty and Pearl is correct for a number of reasons.

The "Protecting Michigan's Future Recreation Bond Program" (the state grant program pool proponents are talking about) is a reimbursement matching fund program. Reimbursement means the school would have to put money up for the pool and later be reimbursed by the state. Matching means the school would have to have money to match (on some type of percentage basis) the state grant money. Pool proponents are proposing two sources of local money: the endowment fund and tax revenues resulting from an election millage proposal. The endowment fund is supposedly already committed to generating interest for pool operations. That being the case, the school has no money to either reimburse or match at least until an election takes place.

In 1989, when pool people asked the board to sponsor a grant application, Beatty told them he felt a grant applicant is making certain representations in good faith, namely an intention to meet the matching fund requirements and sustain operational costs. At the time, the board wasn't in a position to do that. The board is in the same position today.

A couple of years ago the city council ended up looking silly when they applied for a grant to finance an underbridge walkway on the south shore of the channel, got the grant and then turned it down. The school board shouldn't make the same type of mistake.

Missing this year's grant deadline shouldn't be of great concern to the school board. For one thing, they're not the ones responsible for the short time period between the request and the grant application deadline.

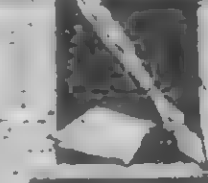

If pool proponents are serious about the endowment fund concept, another year won't hurt them. According to the concept, interest from a $500,000 endowment fund will pay a significant portion of pool operational costs. Currently, the pool people don't have $500,000 and a majority of what they do have is in pledges, not cash. One would suspect that the pledges aren't generating much, if any, interest revenue for pool operations.

An election would also give people on the state grant board a clear indication of just how much community support there is, or isn't, for an indoor pool at the elementary school. If, as pool proponents claim, there is sweeping community support, then the pool people having election results to assist them in their deliberations.

The school board would be perfectly justified in turning down the request for a special election. They could tell the pool people that the 1989 position of "I'm dead flat telling you that we're not going to bring this to a millage" still meets with the board's favor.

However, if the board wishes to put the matter before voters, that's also reasonable. But the election should precede the grant application. The school board should also get their own figures for construction and operational costs rather than simply relying on those presented by pool proponents.

Letters to the Editor:

Fund raising consultant supports pool

(The following letter was submitted by Pool Steering Committee secretary Bern Cannan for inclusion in the Courier Letters to the Editor section. It was written by the steering committee's fund raising consultant Morris Everett Jr. to school board president Max Novak. Everett is concluding his work with the committee.)

Dear Mr. C. Max Novak:

My tour of duty with the campaign is over and I am pleased with the results and the hard working volunteers I have been privileged to serve with. Consider this one more letter in favor of a Charlevoix Community Swimming Pool, but perhaps one with a unique perspective. No matter how you decide concerning potential sponsorship, this campaign has accomplished the following in my fund raising and summer resident's eyes:

1. Raised $410,000 in pledges and cash in only one year for a community not used to major fund raising;
2. Gained major support from more groups than any previous campaign;
3. Brought diverse elements of the community together in philanthropy, support and volunteerism;
4. Created the largest fund raising auction in Charlevoix's history;
5. Created admiration in the eyes of your neighbor towns;
6. Targeted over a responsible period of time a logical cost, method of obtaining building and operating funds, a governing and operating control group, a user base, and long range plans;
7. Meticulously researched other pool projects, operating costs, usages and problems;
8. And tried to fulfill requests, answer concerns, solve problems and meet deadlines requested or suggested by responsible powers in Charlevoix County.

I close with one more observation. During the last 15 months I have interviewed informally on my own at least 150 people who were unknown to me; rich and poor, local and summer. I specifically did not tell them what my job or responsibilities were. I just asked them, "Would you like to have an indoor community swimming pool in Charlevoix at the elementary school?" Only four said no! I went out of my way to be impartial and to pick a good cross reference of Charlevoix people. I wanted to prove to myself that what I had been told was really true. It is! The people of Charlevoix do want a pool except for a very vocal minority. With your help I believe they will vote yes in June.

Thank you,
Morris Everett, Jr.

March of Dimes to WalkAmerica

If you care about the 40,000 American babies that die each year before their first birthday, if you can't accept the fact that over a quarter of a million babies are born with one of over 3,000 birth defects, if you are concerned about the skyrocketing costs of caring for sick newborns, you could be just the person the March of Dimes is looking for!

WalkAmerica 1991 is coming up in April and volunteers are needed to plan the event. People with all kinds of interests and skills can help. Team Walk captains are needed to organize teams from businesses and organizations. Volunteers are needed to obtain donations of food, to set up the route and to help on walk day.

If you have a desire to help, even if you don't know what you might be able to do, please call Joy Halverson at 547-4813 or call the March of Dimes divisional office at 947-2488.

Masons rally in cribbage play

The Masons rallied in the eighth week of play in the 61st annual Masons-Odd Fellows cribbage tournament. The Masons outscored the Odd Fellows by 315 points last week, but their rally may prove to be too little too late. They continue to trail by 537 points overall with two weeks to play. Dean Pennell was high man for the Masons with 943 points. John LaRue led the Odd Fellows with 955 points. Play continues at 7:30 Feb. 28 at the Masonic Hall.

Clothing Company antique fixtures repaired after crash

By L. Scott Swanson

Antique wooden display fixtures at The Clothing Company were built to be sturdy, but they weren't designed to withstand being hit by a 5-ton military truck. How could they be? In the 1800s and early 1900s, when the cabinets, tables and dressers were built, there just weren't many 5-ton military trucks parading store aisles.

The military truck, which was part of a convoy passing through town Dec. 8, lost its brakes coming down the south hill on Bridge Street and crashed through the wall of the store at the corner of Mason and Bridge. Fortunately, nobody was in the store at the time. Yet, bricks, clothing and perhaps worst of all, the antique fixtures which have been so much a part of the atmosphere of the little store were battered, scattered and smashed.

One of the first questions to circulate through the crowd which gathered was, "What happened to the display cases? Will they ever be able to be fixed?"

Although it's been no small endeavor, the antique fixtures have been repaired.

Store owners Jim and Sue Mabec have been collecting the fixtures for years. In the past, Jim Tank, of Kitchens North, rebuilt some antique fixtures for the Mabecs. This time, they had a larger project for him.

Tank recalls that when the Mabecs brought them in, some of the fixtures were just sticks and others had fragments of concrete embedded in the wood. Decapitated duck decoys capped off the sad assembly of antiques.

Tank and his staff of carpenters began repairing and in some cases, rebuilding the fixtures. In total, they've worked on about 20 pieces damaged in the accident. They've done major rebuilding on between eight and 10 pieces.

"It isn't like there's any set procedure for this," Tank noted as he described some of the work.

A pine dresser, which Tank speculates was probably built prior to the Civil War, required major repairs. The front left corner had been smashed by concrete.

To repair the top, Tank had to remove the corner, move the top forward, make a pattern of the old piece and add a board to the back of the shelf. Getting the new board to blend in with the rest of the dresser provided another challenge. The new board had to be cedar, rather than pine so that the finish could be matched. Not only that, a few nicks and dings had to be added to the new board so that it looks like it has served more than 100 years along with the rest of the dresser.

"The object really is to make it look like we were never here," Tank says of the repair work.

A sweater display case made of quarter-sawn oak, probably around 1920, had to have its joints redone. The case was one of several fixtures that suffered joint damage from being hurled or skidded across the store during the crash.

Tank seems to enjoy trying to determine who originally built the fixtures and when they built them. Sometimes that's easy and some times it's not. An old oak postal sorter with a multitude of rectangular openings was made in 1915 by the Fumas Office & Bank Furniture Co. of Petoskey according to a stamp on the bottom shelf.

The old pine dresser was made by a craftsman and it wasn't a production line piece. The edges around the drawers are hand-carved relief work. Nails in the dresser aren't the round nails used today, but are the old cut nails with edges. Tank speculates that back in the 1800s some craftsman may have built the dresser for his wife.

Another display case raises a lot of questions. The case has wooden pattern pieces applied to the front. The pieces kind of resemble a man's face with a big handle-bar mustache. There are two pieces, one on the right and one on the left. The two pieces are similar, yet they don't exactly match. For example, there are more grooves in one of the mustaches. Other aspects of the pieces lead Tank to believe that they were machine-tooled rather than hand crafted. The front of the case is nicely finished, but some of the wood at the back is unfinished.

Tank speculated that maybe the case was a production piece and the decorative faces were purchased by the furniture maker to jazz it up a bit. It's difficult to be sure. But that's the fun of speculating.

Repairs to the walls and interior of The Clothing Company are also progressing. The store is expected to reopen later this spring. When it does, the antique display fixtures which are part of the store's charm will be there, this time, hopefully in a no parking zone.

This background of this display case is something of a mystery. Some parts indicate that it was a production work, while other parts, such as the pattern work Jim Tank is looking at, seem more customized.

Jim Tank points to the corner of an antique dresser where concrete chips were embedded after a military truck crashed into The Clothing Company in December. The pine dresser is more than 100 years old.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS Irish concert scheduled

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton

It was watching "America's Funniest Home Videos" last Sunday night when they brought a clip of a little boy holding a dandelion up on screen. You know little boys and dandelions. There's nothing more fun than blowing those fluffy white seeds every where.

There was only one problem though: The little guy forgot the number one primary rule when it comes to blowing dandelion seeds. Never breathe in before you breath out. He held that dandelion in front of his mouth, took a deep breath, and promptly swallowed half the seeds!

Have you ever seriously thought about dandelions before? Their life span is so brief, but when they're in bloom, they bloom everywhere. And I don't just mean in your yard. I mean they're in cracks in the sidewalk. They're in parking lots. Anywhere a nook or cranny or soil is available, those things will bloom where they're planted.

Even though most folks devote a lot of energy towards getting rid of dandelions, I think the good Lord gave us a few lessons out of them. The most obvious is that you've got to bloom where you're planted. Make the best out of whatever situation you find yourself in. Look for hope even if all the signs around you seem to say there is none.

When confronted with a crisis, a lot of us are tempted to bemoan our fate or wonder "why us?" If being Christian means to be a follower of Christ, to be a living example of what it means to be Christ-like, then it means letting our faith have first place regardless of where we find ourselves.

Unlike the dandelion seeds that blow wherever the wind carries them, the seeds of faith God places in your heart will take hold and stay with you forever. They will weave their way into the fiber of your everyday life and make it stronger. They will blossom and flower into some of the most wonderful experiences you can imagine.

Dr. Goodhart's Home Remedy will present an Irish Concert at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, March 9, at the East Jordan High School Auditorium. The concert will highlight the beauty of traditional Irish music with guitar, mandolin, fiddle, bodran, cittern and penny whistle, as well as tightly arranged three-part vocals. Irish dancers and a select group of student fiddlers will also be featured. The concert is sponsored by the Jordan River Arts Council. Tickets are $3.50 at the door, $3 for Arts Council members.

Snowmobiles raced against each other to the top of the mountain during Sunday afternoon competition. Racers came from across northern Michigan.

While adults raced uphill and downhill on Thundertubes, snowmobiles and trucks, kids frolicked on foot up and down the small hill.

Many of the entrants in the truck hillclimb didn't care if they won or lost. They just wanted to know if they could make it up the mountain.

An impressive display of fireworks was shot from the top of Mount McSaubia Saturday evening during the Sno-Challenge. While fireworks have long been a mid-summer tradition in Charlevoix, this was the first time in recent history that there has been a mid-winter (make that late winter) display.

Rayders suffer first league loss Fade in stretch to lose 79-70

Charlevoix lost their first league game of the season Friday evening falling to Traverse City St. Francis 79-70. Despite the loss, Charlevoix can clinch the title for the Lake Michigan Division of the Great Northern Conference with a win over either Kalkaska or East Jordan Friday or Saturday.

Although St. Francis ended up winning by nine, the game was nip and tuck until the final moments. Both teams played end to end defense which created a fast-paced and sometimes ragged game. St. Francis attempted to trap and double-team with its press. Charlevoix played a more straight-up man-to-man press.

St. Francis led by 1 or 3 points through much of the first quarter, but hit a last-second 3-point shot to go up 22-16 at the end of the quarter.

Charlevoix made up the difference in the second quarter and tied the game at 31 with 2:15 left in the half on a Dan Terryberry rebound and long outlet pass to Luke LaBlance for a basket.

Charlevoix went into halftime leading 38-37.

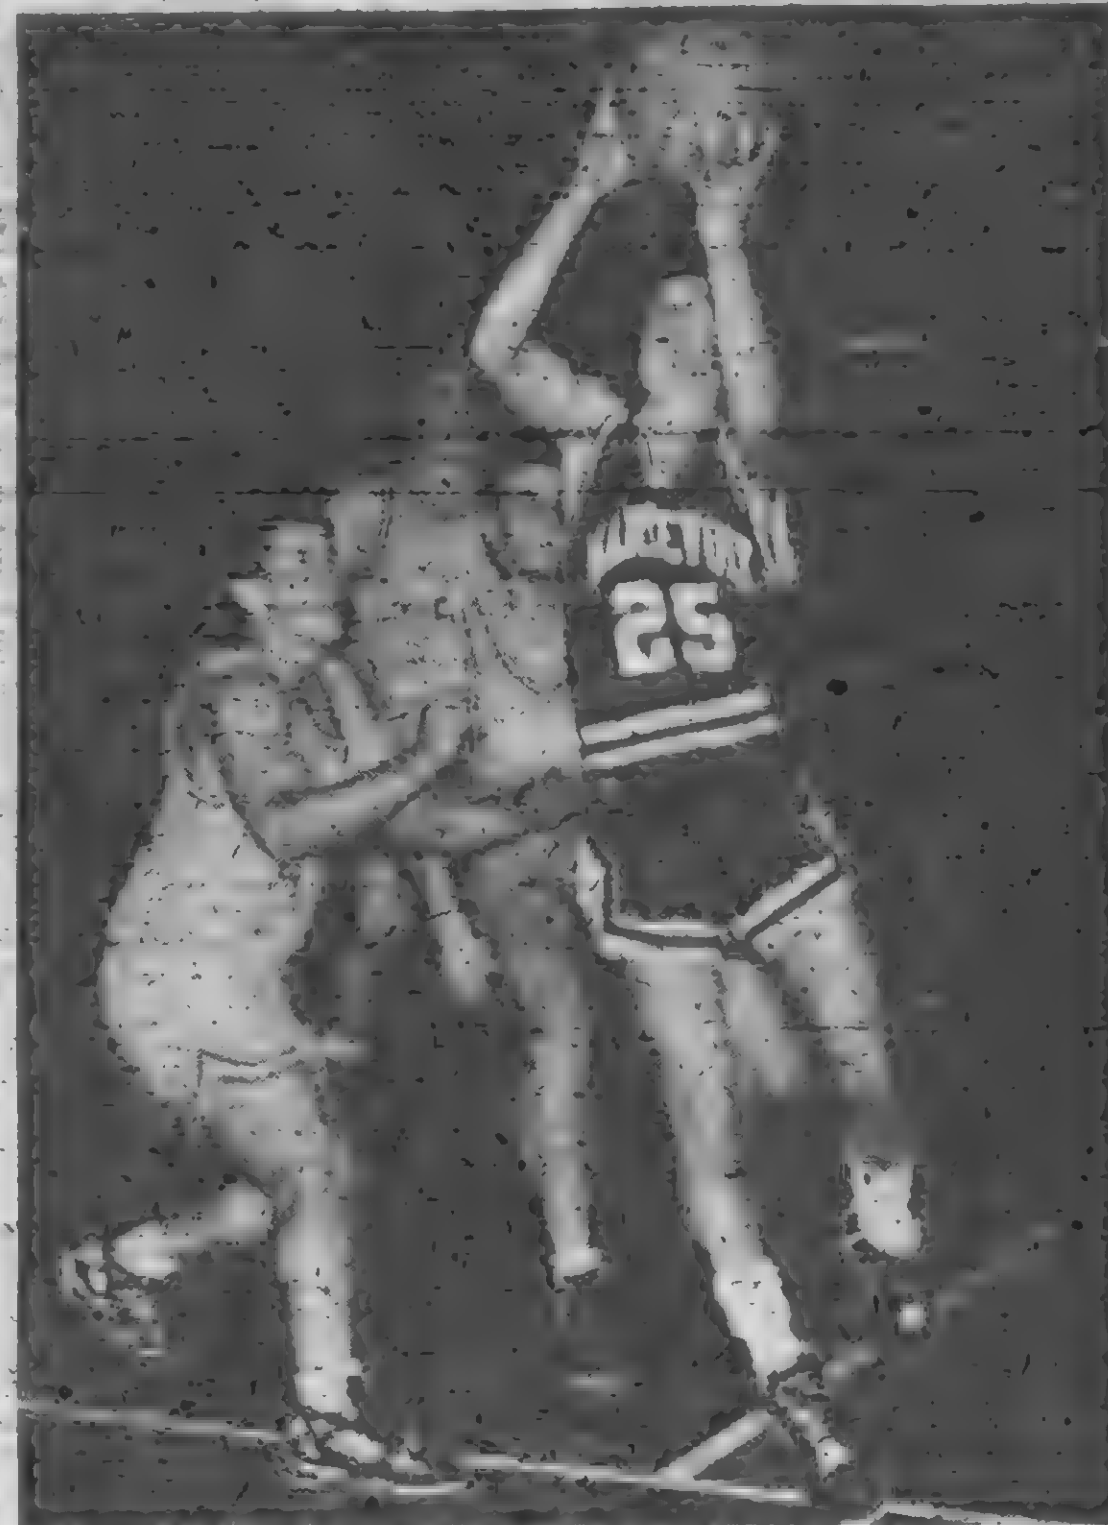

The second half was much like the first: fast paced, with neither team able to draw away. With less than two minutes left, Charlevoix trailed by only a point, 71-70, but St. Francis closed the game with an eight-point run.

Terryberry had a strong all-around game for the Rayders with 16 points, 16 rebounds and five assists. LaBlance had 16 points and Todd Kovach 14.

Charlevoix travels to Kalkaska Friday night and will host East Jordan Saturday night in a make-up game which was postponed earlier due to a snow storm.

Campbell and Hoadley race at state finals

Katherine Campbell placed 11th in the girls' slalom race and Dan Hoadley placed 45th in the boys' slalom during the State High School Ski Finals at Nubs Nob Monday. Campbell and Hoadley were the only two Rayders to qualify. Both are juniors.

Rayder coach Eric Lundteigen said Campbell has been one of the Rayder's most consistently strong performers all season and she turned in another good race at the finals.

Hoadley progressed as the season went along. He would have placed higher at the finals, but had one bad run.

Housing needs being studied

Almost 56 percent of Charlevoix County households are living at or below 160 percent of poverty level—$20,320 annually for a four-person family.

This figure is derived from a study of 1988 income tax returns and is revealed in a study of local housing needs recently completed by a task force of the Human Services Coordinating Committee of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

The task force was set up to study housing needs in the area and as a result of the study, lack of affordable housing for both low- and middle-income families is considered a major problem.

The study shows a breakdown of housing needs of both senior citizens and younger age groups, and cites the availability of housing and its average cost.

Since 30 percent of monthly income is considered a fair amount to spend for housing, this figure is used in making comparisons with what families must pay for available housing in Charlevoix County.

For instance, a two-person senior citizen family (more than 60 years old), with an annual income of $8,988 would pay, based on the 30 percent of income figure, $225 a month for a one-bedroom home. However, the average rent for available housing of this type in Charlevoix County was $329 a month, or 53 percent of the family's total income.

Also, a larger, younger four-person family with an annual income of $8,172 would pay $204 a month for a two-bedroom home, based on the 30 percent income figure. However, the average rent for available housing to meet this family's needs was $376 a month, or 62 percent of the family's total income.

(Rent figures for available housing were obtained from local advertising media, which listed an average of only two to eight available units each week.)

The study further indicates that 5.8 percent of the population of Charlevoix County was receiving cash assistance in October, 1989, an increase of 11.4 percent in 10 years, and only 38 percent of all public assistance recipients had enough in their grants to cover housing costs, indicating that other funds were used to cover this expense.

The problem is ongoing. The senior citizen population of the area increased 12 percent between 1980 and 1985 and continues to increase, and with most senior citizens households on fixed incomes, funds for housing must be taken from other sources of income.

The working poor and those released from institutions also add to the increasing need for some kind of housing assistance.

Last year, 215 new housing units were constructed in Charlevoix County. Of these, only 16 were apartments especially designated for senior citizens, and only 24 were built under the Federal Housing Administration, with rentals subsidized, geared to income.

In October of last year, there were 237 subsidized units in Charlevoix County, and 82 units for senior citizens, with only one two-bedroom unit available for rental.

In response to the results of this survey, a local Housing Coalition is being formed. The Housing Coalition will be a non-profit organization that serves to apply for grants and raise funds to implement projects that will improve the housing situation.

Anyone interested in serving on a coalition should contact John Pickering at 347-2507, Lisa Krugel at 347-9070, or Bonnie Worden at 547-4471.

Bridge Street, between Mason and Clinton Streets, looked like this in the early 1940s. One may wonder how many of the old wooden fronts are hidden behind the modern exteriors. This postcard was mailed from Charlevoix on June 7, 1945 for one cent. (Postcard courtesy of David Couture.)

Oh Boix

Josephine Hendrickson Hoffman, formerly of Charlevoix, celebrated her 100th birthday Jan. 12 in Brown Deer, Wisconsin. Hoffman married Charles Hans Hendrickson of Charlevoix in 1915. Hendrickson and his brother Rasmus were commercial fishermen in Charlevoix. Josephine and Charles lived at 705 Bridge Street prior to his death in a 1933 boating accident.

Frederick Broszyske of Charlevoix has been named to the fall term Dean's List at Northwestern Michigan College. To be named to the list a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 on a 4-point scale.

Charlevoix artist, Meredith Krell, will display a New Michigan Collection of Mono prints and Mono types in the Gallery at the Grand Hotel on Mackinaw Island for the month of June. According to the gallery Vice President Mimi Musser, Krell was selected because her prints display familiar scenes of Michigan in bright, warm prints.

The gallery features three artists each summer season, and various media are displayed. Krell's work is regularly displayed in Ann Arbor, Detroit, Naples Florida, and Kalamazoo.

Substation to be built on M-66

By L. Scott Swanson

The "I's have it. After considering nine possible locations (identified by the letters A through I) for a new electrical substation, the city council chose location I which is at the corner of M-66 and Stover Road. The decision met with the approval of several people who live in Hampton Village, or near the corner of Stover and Ferry Avenue, and who did not want the substation built on the other proposed sites.

Prior to the council approving site I which is on city owned property adjacent to the Catholic cemetery, the planning commission and staff reviewed and recommended the site.

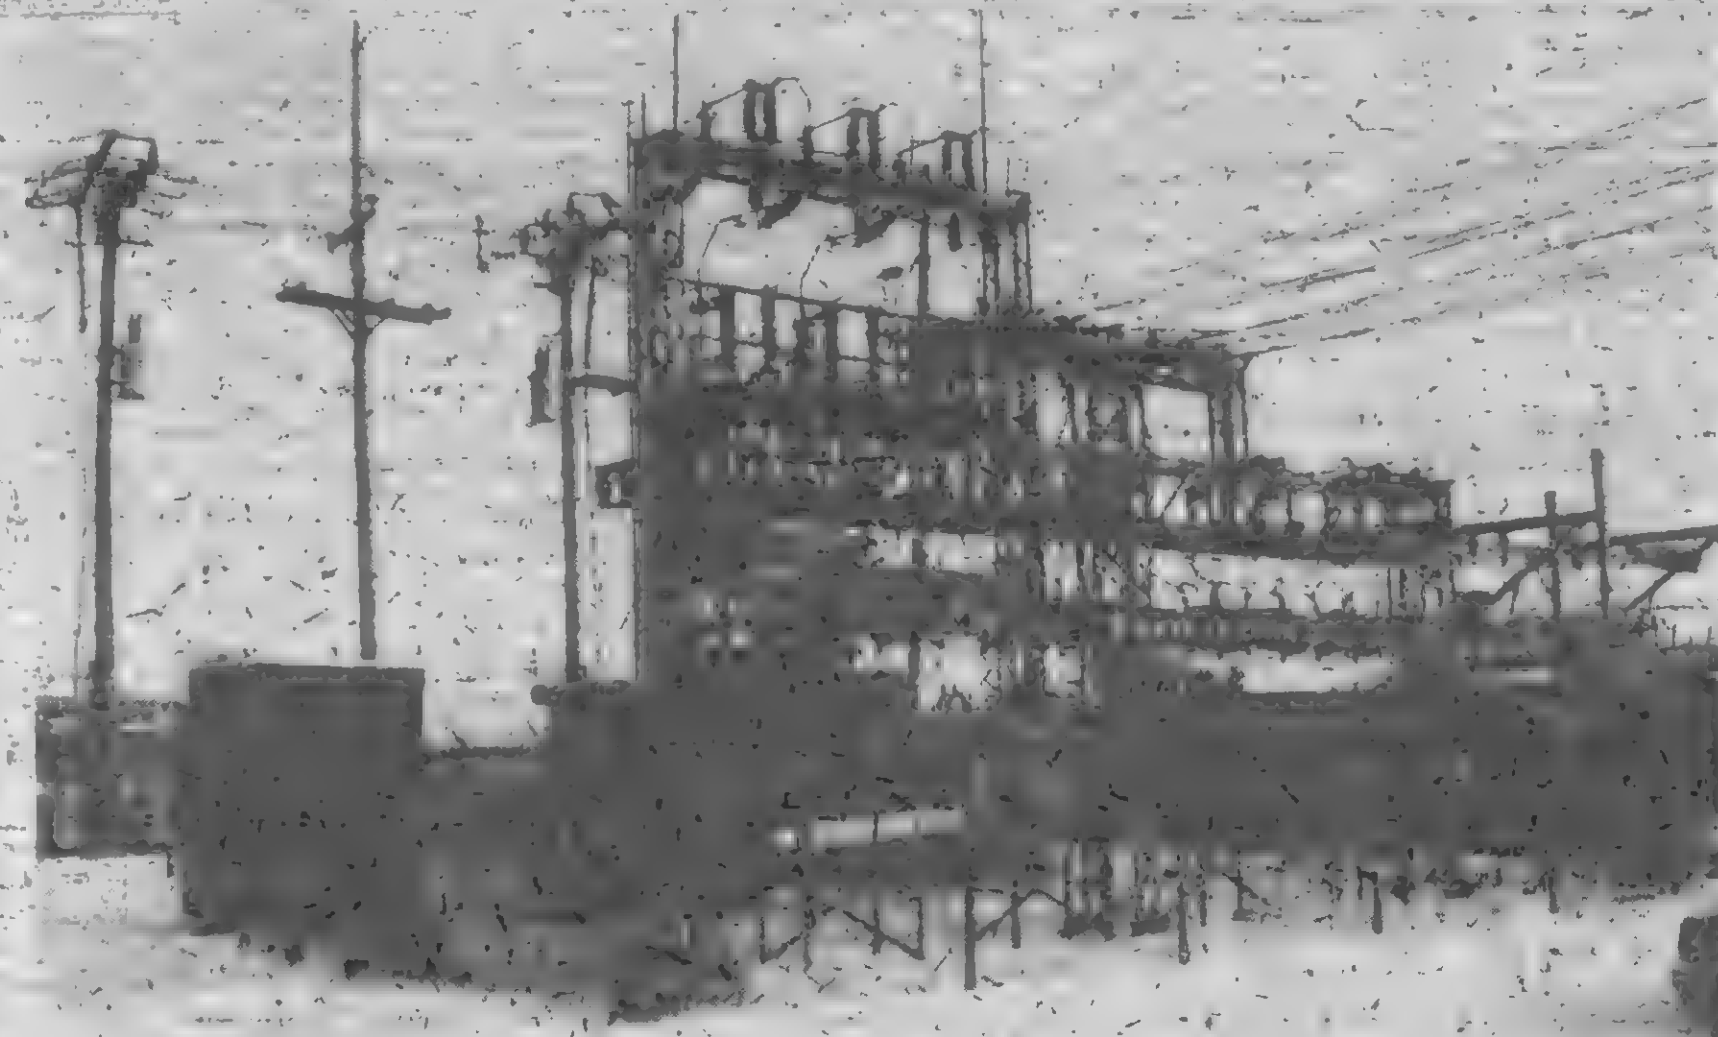

The substation is an integral part of a multimillion dollar electrical system improvement program the city has undertaken. Charlevoix differs from many communities in that the electrical system is publicly owned and operated. Construction of the substation is scheduled to take place later this year.

Initially, the city planned to put the new substation either at or near the site of the old substation which is in front of the city street garage near the corner of Ferry Avenue and Stover Road. Then city officials considered moving the substation up the hill so it would be somewhere behind Wojan Aluminum Co. Advantages of the up-hill sites were that the substation wouldn't block anyone's view of the lake or interfere with street department functions. Moving the substation also will allow the street department property to be converted into park land if the street department is moved in the future.

All of the sites near the corner of Ferry Avenue and Stover Road met with disapproval from someone. People living in Hampton Village or on Stover Road by May Street didn't want the substation in their back yards. At the Feb. 11 council meeting several residents protested the proposed sites. Those who protested claimed the substation doesn't belong in a residential area. Their basic contentions were that the substation may pose a health hazard, is ugly and according to the city's zoning code does not belong in a residential setting.

From a technical standpoint, the substation needs to be located near the 46,000 volt feeder lines which are the source of its power. It will then redistribute the power at 12,000 volts on distribution circuits throughout the community. Moving the substation away from the feeder lines and away from electrical customers would increase construction cost by from $100,000 to $2.1 million, depending on the distance between the lines and the substation. Moving the substation would also increase the cost of operating the electrical system. Again, the amount of additional cost would depend upon the distance from the feeder lines and customers. It could be as high as $3 million over 30 years. Feeder lines come into the community from the north, run pretty much parallel to the lake shore near Mercer and Ferry Avenue and then turn and go up Stover Road. Since the lines go up Stover Road, the M-66 site will allow the lines to hook into the substation in a cost-efficient manner. The additional hook-up cost incurred due to moving the substation to M-66 and Stover Road will be approximately $150,000 to $200,000. Total substation construction costs are expected to exceed $1 million.

This is the old city electrical substation. It is located next to the city street department garage near the corner of Ferry Avenue and Stover Road. A new and larger substation will be constructed later this year at the corner of M-66 and Stover Road.

Prior to the council's decision, city planner Gerry Harsch presented a detailed explanation of the pros and cons of each of the nine proposed sites. The only disadvantage to the M-66 site is that it may

City manager receives $13,500 pay increase

City manager Mike Wiesner received council approval for a $13,500 annual salary increase Monday evening. The action will increase Wiesner's annual salary from $40,500 to $54,000.

The council action was not unanimous. Second ward council member Butch Russell voted against the increase, saying an increase for the manager which exceeded the 4 percent given other city employees will lead to labor negotiation problems.

School board applies for grant and schedules May 13 pool election

by WENDI WRIGHT

The Charlevoix Board of Education voted Monday night to let voters decide the fate of a proposed community swimming pool. Following the recommendation of the Building and Site committee, the Board voted unanimously to hold a special bond election May 13 on behalf of the pool committee. The amount of money requested will be decided by the pool committee and the Building and Site committee of the school board.

The location of the pool will also be decided indirectly in this election. According to state law, money levied by the school for construction may only be used to erect a building on property owned by the school.

Costs of the special election will be absorbed by the pool committee. The board also voted to sponsor a DNR grant application on behalf of the pool committee before the election, so that it may be filed prior to the April 1 deadline. Board members were split on the issue, but the motion passed, with Larry Levensgood, Ken Ross, Arditia Wieland and Ben Cunningham in favor. Max Novak and Doris Pearl against.

Speaking on behalf of the Building and Site committee, Richard Swenor, high school vice-principal, told the board that according to the school's lawyers, if the bond issue does not pass the application can be voided by the board without penalty.

The action taken at Monday night's meeting comes after several requests by the pool committee for school involvement in the pool.

Council approves 1991-92 budget

The city council has approved a 1991-92 budget which calls for a tax increase of .47 of a mill.
A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a home's State Equalized Value (SEV). SEV is half of a home's theoretical market value.
For a homeowner with a $50,000 home, the millage increase means he will pay an additional $11.75 in city taxes in the coming year. The increase does not take into consideration any tax increase resulting from increases in SEV.

The budget calls for city expenditures totaling approximately $10.7 million in the 91-92 fiscal year.

The budget encompasses several different funds. Not all are paid for by property taxes. For example the electric fund, which has anticipated expenditures of $6,044,600, is primarily funded by charges to electric system customers.

The general fund is primarily funded by local property taxes. Prior to approving the budget Monday evening, the council cut two proposed expenditures.

The largest cut was a $21,700 police department request for an additional officer. They also cut $3,300 in general fund costs which had been overestimated.

Council members also cut a motor pool request for $12,500 for a new truck for the city's meter reader. The city is purchasing a new police patrol car. Rather than selling an old patrol car, the old patrol car will be used by the city's meter reader.

The city's millage levy is divided into three categories: operational, infrastructure, and debt retirement. Operational millage pays for the general operations of the city. After Monday evening's cuts, that millage will be reduced from 9 mills to 8.5 mills for the coming year.

Infrastructure millage funds construction of city streets, sewers, water lines and sidewalks. Infrastructure millage will increase from 3 mills to 4 mills for the coming year.

Debt retirement pays off loans for projects from previous years. Debt retirement millage will be reduced from 1.76 to 1.73 mills.

In total, the city millage rate will increase from 13.76 to 14.23 mills.

At Monday's meeting, the council also decided to delete a proposed expenditure of $10,000 for a monitoring system for the street department's underground fuel tanks. Instead of purchasing a monitoring system, the city is going to look into removing the tanks and either replacing them with above-ground tanks or purchasing fuel in some other manner.

Expense distribution by category 1991-92

The graph above was prepared by city treasurer Rick Brandt and included with the city's proposed budget. It shows how expenses are distributed when all city funds are combined. Thirty-two percent of city revenues will be spent for capital outlay items such as the electric substation, motor pool vehicles, water main improvements and infrastructure improvements. The electric fund's 21 percent includes purchased power and other non-capital electrical costs.

limit future expansion of the cemetery.

Public comments made at the council meeting favored the M-66 site. Chester Adams of Midwest International Corp., which is across from the site, was the only one to speak in opposition to the M-66 location. He said placing the substation on M-66 will be putting an "ugly duckling" at a community entry point. In his presentation, Harsch said the city plans to plant a cedar hedge and other screening foliage around the substation so that its visibility will be limited.

Council approval of the M-66 site was unanimous.

In a related matter, the council voted to hire a bond counsel to begin preparing the paperwork required to borrow up to $3.3 million for the electrical improvement project. Borrowing the money will likely require an increase in city electric rates in order to pay off the bond.

REASONABLE TO ME

A strange phone call

I'm hanging out at the Courier office last week when the phone rings. The receptionist picks it up and a second later says, "Scott. Line one is for you. It's some guy who says he's calling from Baghdad."

Imagine my surprise. We're a small, local paper and don't often deal directly with the "Third World." Sure, we get an occasional call from East Jordan and we've got some readers on Beaver Island, but it's just not quite the same.

I picked up line one. "Good morning this is Scott. May I help you?"

The voice on the other end said, "Mr. Scott. This is Saddam Hussein."

Failing to conceal my surprise, I said, "Well Saddam, I haven't heard from you lately. Come to think of it, not many people have heard much from you in the past few days. Where are you calling from?"

"I don't think I dare say. Security, you know."

"You say you've got a security problem, Saddam? That's curious. Most people I've talked to are feeling more secure than they were a few weeks ago. But then, I suppose we just don't hang out in the same social circles. And wars affect different people in different ways. This war has made some people very angry...and they're angry at me."

"Hm," I said, not knowing what else to say. "People are both out of shape at a pleasant, well-meaning guy like you. Hard to believe. Just exactly who's mad at you anyhow?"

"There are many of them Mr. Scott. The Kuwaitis, the U.S. and their allies...even my own people and soldiers are angry at me."

"Really? Even your own people and soldiers? What did you do to them?"

"Not so much. Being a dictator isn't easy you know. You've got to make some tough decisions. And maybe I made a couple of bad calls. I invaded Kuwait and called the Americans some names. Then, the first thing you know, my people and soldiers get the shot bombed out of them for about a month and they're not happy about it. Can you believe that?"

"Well some people are sensitive about such things. What about the Kuwaitis and the U.S. and their allies. Why are they upset?"

"There again Mr. Scott, people fly off the handle about the smallest things. With the Kuwaitis, I didn't like the way they were running their country, so I tried to help them."

"How did you do that?"

"I invaded their country, took everything that wasn't tied down and killed and tortured thousands of their people."

"And you're surprised that they're unhappy?"

"I thought they'd take it as constructive criticism."

"Apparently you misread the Kuwaitis."

"Apparently."

"What about the U.S. and their allies? Do you have any idea why they're not happy with you?"

"It's hard to say Mr. Scott. They've talked of world peace, economic stability, humanity and compassion toward your fellow man. But I have no understanding of such things. These concepts have no role in my governments. At first when I invaded Kuwait, I thought the Americans would look the other way. When they sent troops to the Middle East, I thought they were bluffing. I thought the Americans lacked will power. I thought that if there was a fight, it wouldn't be much of a fight."

"Well Saddam, you appear to have been right on one count. As wars go, it wasn't much of a fight."

"Yes, Mr. Scott. We were very fortunate to win."

"Win? Saddam! Buddy! How thick is that bunker you've been hiding in? Allied forces rolled through Kuwait and southern Iraq. Did your army even slow them down? Put it this way. Speed bumps do a better job of slowing traffic. You don't have to be a West Point grad to realize that massive surrender and full-blown retreat are not military maneuvers generally associated with the winning side."

"But Mr. Scott, it was a moral victory."

"Saddam. Open your eyes. Look around you. Your country is in shambles. Forty of the 42 military divisions you sent into battle were destroyed. Your own people are after you and on the international scene, you're considered a scoundrel. For you, that war was no victory...moral, immoral or otherwise."

"I'll go to my grave believing it was."

"And as I understand it, that may be soon."

"It may be. As I said before Mr. Scott, there are many people who are angry with me. But I am hiding from them. I do not wish to die."

"Wait a minute Saddam. Weren't you the guy who, just a few months ago, was extolling the virtues of martyrdom?"

"That is true, Mr. Scott. But you must understand, martyrdom looks good from the street, but once you get right up to the door, you see that it has some drawbacks. I must go now. Peter Arnett wants to use the phone. Good bye."

"Good bye."

EDITH

Arts funding important

by Edith Gilbert

They say, "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing," and after reading an article in the Feb. 24 Free Press by Greg Kaza I know that's true.

Kaza attacks government subsidy in general and the Michigan Council of the Arts in particular. I question his working knowledge on which he bases his conclusions. From my personal involvement with the arts for over thirty years, his argument limps. Turning back the clock as he suggests is never a solution.

He may be vice-president for policy research at the Mackinac Center, a Midland-based think tank, and the co-author of a book called, Michigan: An Agenda for the '90's, but I don't need to read his book to know we are in big trouble.

My answer to Kaza is that if it weren't for the Michigan Council of the Arts, there would be no Crooked Tree Arts Council or Virginia McCune Arts Center to serve Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Twenty years ago the Michigan Council of the Arts sent a staff member north to hold a meeting and show a film in the basement of the Petoskey Library. Seven of us showed up in a blinding February snowstorm. From this inauspicious beginning the Crooked Tree Arts Council was formed, which now serves 30,000 people in our area. Two hundred students are enrolled in music, art, and dance classes. Monthly travelling exhibits are shown free of charge in the exhibition gallery at the McCune Arts Center. The volunteer docent program presents hands-on experiences to 2000 students a year at the Art Center. This year CTAC presented Karl Haas, the radio personality, to a packed house in the remodeled CTAC theater. Saturday, March 16, the renowned Michigan Opera Company is performing "La Traviata" in Petoskey. But first the company is going to spend a week in area schools to introduce our youngsters to the thrill of opera. I could go on—and I will!

Recently I sat in a packed theater at the McCune Arts Center while almost 300 people roared with laughter at a play performed by a group of talented, semi-professional, local actors that call themselves the Little Traverse Civic Theater. The only reward these entertainers get is a good old fashioned round of applause.

The point is that without the existence of the Virginia McCune Arts Center that houses the Crooked Tree Arts Council, our part of the state might have remained a cultural desert. Retirees and employees need more than fishing and hunting, sailing and golf. The business community recognizes this. People need to participate in theater, to appreciate music and dance, to muse over a painting, to handle a pot and to stroke a carving, to feel an artistic emotion in order to enjoy a well-founded lifestyle.

Financial support and growth for the arts in our area has sprung from three diverse sources, 1) public funds, such as grants of $25,000 a year from the Michigan Council of the Arts, 2) private funds from individuals and businesses, 3) and grants from friendly family foundations.

Cutting $25,000 a year from the CTAC budget as Gov. Engler proposes and Kaza endorses, means instead of offering more popular programs such as the Price Street Players in the schools, more exhibits from the Detroit Institute of Art, more cultural quality entertainment for which there is such a great demand, we will have to cut $25,000 worth of cultural enrichment to our northern community.

Kaza tries to compare 1991 with the renaissance of 1491, when the private wealth of the Medici and the Roman Catholic Church produced Michelangelo's Pieta, Raphael's Transfiguration and Da Vinci's Last Supper. Well, you don't have to be a chicken to recognize an egg. What those poor artists suffered catering to the whims of their outrageous patrons still makes one shudder. Since there was no central government then, as we know government today, who knows what further triumphs could have been achieved if there had been government subsidies to the arts during the Renaissance, as there are in every European country today?

Kaza complains about monies given to institutions and artists that in his judgment should not have been favored. Does this justify cutting the entire art subsidy program in the State of Michigan? We all know that our generation can never be the judge of today's art. Works of art need to be seasoned like old wine. There are many examples of past public outcries against artists and architects, musicians, dancers and writers, who became revered by later generations. You know them as well as I—Whistler, Oscar Wilde, Eiffel, Stravinski, Martha Graham, to name a few.

Kaza quotes Evelyn Waugh who said of Stephen Spender, "To see him fumbling with our rich and delicate language is to experience all the horror of seeing a Severn vase in the hands of a chimpanzee." That's a swell quote, which I'd like to paraphrase—"To see Kaza fumbling with Michigan's rich and artistic heritage is to experience all the horror of seeing a Sue-Bolt vase in the hands of a bear."

Letters to the Editor:

Drunk driving is an outrage

Editor,

The death of a young person is always tragic. When the death is due to an alcohol related car crash it is (or should be to all of us) an OUTRAGE. Auto crashes kill more 15 to 20 year olds than any other cause. Almost 50 percent of these crashes are alcohol related.

In the last month there have been approximately 25 Minor in Possession citations written in the city of Charlevoix. How many of those minors were also drivers on the night they were consuming? How many were driving friends during or after their consumption? Was one of your children a driver or a passenger? We as a community need to stand up and say to our Law Enforcement Officers, Prosecuting Attorney and Judges that it is not acceptable for anyone, regardless of age or occupation to drink and drive. It is not acceptable for anyone, regardless of who they are to furnish alcohol to a minor. It is not acceptable to be punished for any less than what the law calls for. It is not acceptable to have any more life lost or destroyed because of an alcohol related crash.

Please fellow Charlevoixians join me to stop this senseless crime. We need to band together to save our loved ones and say enough is enough.

Thank you,
Carolyn Hawes

Letters to the Editor:

Where was the movie?

Editor,

I was very excited when the movie "Awakenings" came to the Cinema III in Charlevoix. My co-worker and I made plans to see the movie on Monday Feb. 18, however, our plan fell through.

The movie was advertised in the Petoskey News Review to run through Thursday Feb. 21 at 7 p.m. each evening. Imagine our disappointment when we arrived downtown at 7 p.m. Thursday the 21st to find the theater closed and dark. There were several people waiting outside including a couple from out of town. The owner of the theater was next door at 218 Bridge St. Several people went in to ask him to open the theater. They were told he would not open unless there were 12 people. During this time we saw many cars pull up and leave because the theater was dark. There were several times we had more than 12 people waiting. When the same group of people approached him again and requested he show the movie, they were told the movie had already been sent on and was not even in town. The couple from out of town told us they would never come to Charlevoix again to see a movie.

We really feel the owner should not have advertised the movie to be shown through Thursday if he had no intention of doing so. Obviously his engagement at 218 Bridge St. was more important than showing a scheduled movie. This really gives Charlevoix a one and only theater a good name, doesn't it?

Response

"The Show Must Go On" doesn't always hold true these days. Mid-week attendance is always minimal so when the film had to be shipped out to another city for showing the next day it was necessary to cancel that evening's show.

The marquee was changed, the posters were changed, the telephone answering machine was changed and there was a sign in the window indicating "No Show."

Cinema III regrets the inconvenience to the author of the letter.

Band receives top rating at annual competition

On Saturday, Feb. 23 the Charlevoix High School Band participated in the district Band and Orchestra Festival which was held at Petoskey High School and received an overall First Division (1) rating. The 72 piece band, under the direction of Terry Isenbarger, received ones from all four adjudicators at the festival. The concert judges for the festival were: James King from Chesaning, Jane Church from Lansing, Dennis Emmons from Muskegon. The sight-reading judge was James Hewitt from Otsego. The three concert selections which the band performed were "Glory" March by John Cacavas, "The Lion Of Lorraine" by James Curnow, and "Encanto" by Robert W. Smith. This marks the tenth consecutive year that the Charlevoix Band has received a 1 rating at the festival. The rating qualifies the band for the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association State Festival which will be held on Saturday, April 27.

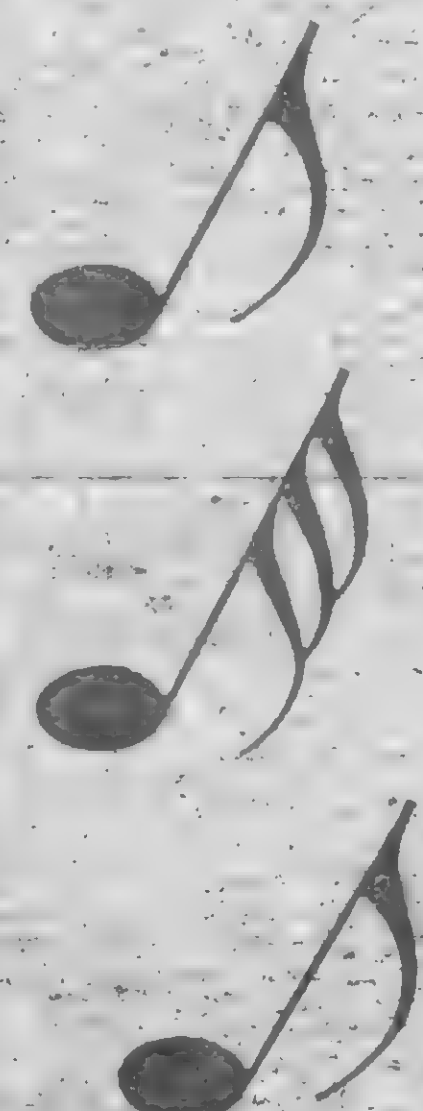

The Charlevoix High School band received a First Division (1) rating at the District Band and Orchestra Festival Feb. 23 in Petoskey.

And you thought rehearsal was all drudgery. Gina Webster's smile says that isn't always the case.

We all have our part to play and sometimes that part to play is to just wait quietly until it comes time to play our part.

VACATION GREETINGS
Charlevoix Board of Commerce

Not in the Far East, not even in Hawaii, but in Charlevoix. This is the old Charlevoix Board of Commerce building located on almost the same spot as the present building. Notice the boathouses in the right rear. (Picture courtesy of Ralph Hamilton.)

These smiling campers are among the thousands who have enjoyed Camp Daggett over the years.

Camp applications available

Applications are now available for Camp Daggett's 1991 summer camp program on Walloon Lake. Parents may pick-up applications at any school or chamber-of-commerce in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Registration begins on March 2 and early registrations are encouraged, since the camp has quickly filled to capacity in recent years.

Applications have been mailed to all children who attended Camp Daggett last year and any parents wishing to have an application mailed directly to them may call Camp Daggett at 347-9742. All children are registered on a first-come, first-serve basis as applications are received through the mail.

The fees for the 1991 season have been set at $135 per week for children attending schools in Charlevoix and Emmet counties, and at $210 per week for out-of-county children. Camp Daggett is held in trust for children as an independent, non-profit organization with no governmental or religious affiliations.

Camp Daggett's summer program is open to all children, 7-14 years old. Children may attend only one of the eight summer sessions. The one-week sessions begin on Sunday afternoons and end on Saturday mornings. The first session begins Sunday, June 23 and the last session ends Saturday, August 17.

The summer camp offers traditional activities including swimming, sailing, canoeing, fishing, arts & crafts, nature study, recreation, campouts, campfires, skits, camp songs and a variety of evening activities.

Summer campers will greet a camp with a whole new look this year, since some buildings have been moved and others replaced altogether. Construction of the new Mori Neff Outdoor Education Center is well underway and should be completed in the spring. The Neff Center, which will house the new Mac Hall, will serve as the camp's new main lodge.

Camp Daggett is operated by a board of trustees made up of representatives of the service clubs in Charlevoix and Emmet counties and two members-at-large from each county.

For more information concerning Camp Daggett's summer camp program, call Paul Bennington, Director, at 347-9742, or write Camp Daggett, 03001 Church Rd., P.O. Box 120, Petoskey, MI 49770.

Spring Musical brings back fond memories

By L. Scott Swanson

Strain your brain and try to think of any local tradition that brings to mind more memories for more people than the Charlevoix Elementary School Spring Musical.

Thursday, March 21 approximately 500 elementary children and more than 1,000 spectators will pack the high school gym for the 1991 production. After rehearsing for several weeks and waiting nervously for the final hour, children will file onto the gym floor and break into a song or dance. Parents and grandparents will beam with pride.

At the center of the event, playing her piano and leading the children in their songs, is elementary school music teacher Marina LaBlance. Harnessing the energy and enthusiasm of 500 six to 11-year-old children is no small feat. Fortunately, when it comes to energy and enthusiasm, LaBlance and her music students are all playing in the same key.

LaBlance began doing elementary school musicals 19 years ago. Some of those little children who she encouraged to sit up straight and sing out strong in the early musicals are now nearing 30 years old.

"There are a lot of fond memories," LaBlance says. The memories are shared by the community. LaBlance smiled as she recalled how, during a recent lunch in a local restaurant, the waitress asked how the school musical was coming and recalled the musical she was in as a child.

LaBlance came to Charlevoix in 1972 for her first teaching job. Her first elementary musical wasn't a spring musical. It was a little operetta in December 1972 with the theme "Stars Over Christmas." Annual spring musicals began in 1973 with a musical called "Sing A Song."

"I just thought it would be nice to have something to show parents," LaBlance said of the first musical. "It just stuck, right from the very first year."

Parents and grandparents provide the foundation for a capacity crowd. It's not uncommon for grandparents who don't live in town to schedule visits to coincide with the spring musical.

"There is no more appreciative audience than parents and grandparents," LaBlance remarked.

Despite having an audience which isn't what you would call a tough crowd, LaBlance and her students strive to give the audience the best performance possible. For between six and seven weeks, the music students focus on rehearsing for the musical.

The musical is something which excites and motivates the children. In the final weeks of rehearsal their desire to do well becomes evident.

"There's a bond," LaBlance says. "It's almost like a big team."

Educationally, the musical provides a springboard for a number of things.

Musically, the show gives LaBlance a chance to expose her students to a broad range of music. Themes from past shows include: Broadway, Country Jambores, Big Band & All That Jazz. LaBlance searches far and wide for a variety of music. She says that sometimes when she's searching for music, she will let the word out that she's looking and people will help her find what she's looking for.

For the past 11 years, art teacher Beth McGraw and her students have provided the sets and backdrops for the show. A Statue of Liberty backdrop done in 1985 brought tears to many eyes. A huge and smiling sun done in 1989 brought similar smiles to many faces. LaBlance's and McGraw's classrooms are directly across the hall from each other and the two teachers frequently pop across the hallway to exchange thoughts about the upcoming production.

Last year the musical's theme was rain forests and the art students designed an intricate rain forest which was displayed at the elementary school. In conjunction with the musical, fourth grade students studied rain forests.

Although elementary students star in the show, high school students lend a hand. In recent years, high school performing arts students have provided the lighting as well as choreographing the dance numbers and helped the elementary students learn the steps. Dances have included everything from a jitterbug to a tango, to square dances and marches.

Having high school students work with the youngsters has worked well for both groups.

LaBlance says the high school students remember their own musicals and are excited for the children.

While, from the other perspective, the kids idolize the high school students and think it's great when they spend time with them.

For some performances, when a big band sound was needed, the high school band has filled that role. Although they had nothing to do with it, the band happened to be there the year the lights went out.

In that musical, the way things were supposed to work is that the lights would be turned off and then hurried back on for another song. Unfortunately, the gym lights are on a timing system. Once they're turned off, they can't be turned on again for several minutes. This was discovered during the show. There sat the masses in the dark. LaBlance had to find her piano and play it in the dark.

As LaBlance tells her students. Even when mistakes happen, the show must go on.

Although she confesses to being nervous during the final weeks of rehearsal (which is what she's in now),

Students collecting bottles

Facing a potential deficit, the Charlevoix Performing Arts students will conduct a Charlevoix-wide bottle drive, Thursday evening March 14.
Sixty-five Performing Arts students will go door-to-door collecting returnable bottles and cans to help underwrite the coming speech season.
"We face an extremely tight budget this year because we lost our major source of funds when we could no longer sell garbage bags," explained Performing Arts Coach Connie Ford.
Pointing out that the year-long series of events in which some 65 students participate is largely underwritten by funds raised by students and parents, Ford said the bottle drive was an emergency effort to see that there would be enough money for the speech team to defend its State C-D Championship in the series of speech tournaments which began this past weekend.

The Performing Arts teams have had a winning year to date with both the Debate Team and the Drama Teams representing Charlevoix in State Championship level competition. The Debate Team came in 5th in the State and Drama Team won 2nd Place honors for its class school.
Operating with a $10,000 budget to cover the costs of travel, music, royalties, research, costumes, set construction, and materials, the Performing Arts students and their parents must raise the majority of these funds.

German student enjoying Charlevoix

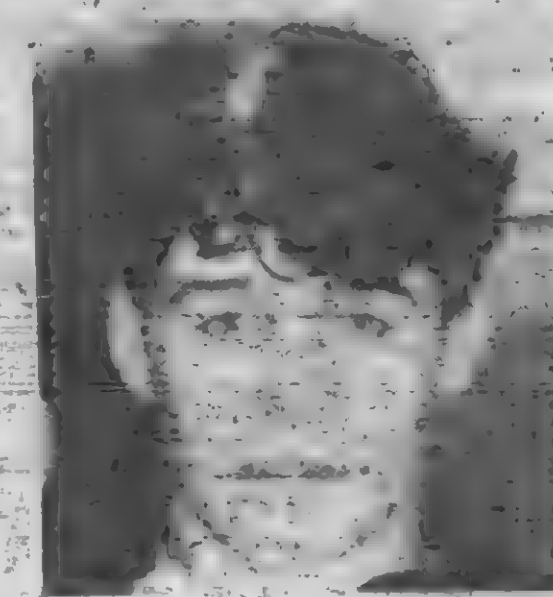

Chris Marshall left his home town of Loesch in West Germany last fall to see what another part of the world is like.

As an exchange student at Charlevoix High School, he is learning about Charlevoix, Michigan in the United States of America on the North American continent, and apparently enjoying the experience.

Loesch is about the same size as Charlevoix. The high school there is about the same size as Charlevoix High School and even high school classes here are about the same as subjects studied.

After studying English for six years in Germany, Marshall has a good command of the language. He is continuing to study English here, along with chemistry, biology, computers, geometry, and history. He says his favorite subject is chemistry.

In addition to his classwork, Marshall was a member of this year's football team and ski team. He hasn't had time to be lonesome, especially with a trip to Florida at Christmas time. He keeps in touch with his family at home by letters and phone calls. His father owns a tour bus company where his mother works in the office. Marshall has an older sister and a younger brother. When asked if he wanted to enter his father's business when he finishes school, Marshall replied, "No, I'll leave that to my brother, but he added he would probably go into some kind of business. He still has three years of high school work before entering college.

Chris Marshall

Marshall is spending the school year with Mark and Donna Cross and their daughter, Renee Gibbard. He is the first exchange student the Crosses have ever hosted, and Marshall, in his humorous way, volunteered, "And probably the last one."

Bridge Street work to begin April 22

Resurfacing of Bridge Street from Huribut north to the city limits near Mercer Boulevard will begin April 22. Bridge Street will be closed to traffic from Huribut to Park Avenue from April 22 to May 17. Traffic will be rerouted down State Street.

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is doing the resurfacing project following sidewalk work done by the city during the past two years. Resurfacing the street will be paid for by federal and state funds and has an estimated price tag of $300,000. According to MDOT officials the job will be completed by June 21.

The theme of this year's spring musical is "Celebrate America." Is it just a coincidence that the theme is so timely given the recent surge of patriotism? LaBlanc selected the theme last spring. BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

In our church family, we like to have Sundays with a special theme at least once a month. We have had Bible Sunday, Cookie Sunday, Where Were You Married Sunday and more. The added enthusiasm for a theme usually translates into more people turning out for a service. I read about another congregation who follows a similar track that offered a special Sunday unlike anything I had ever of. They called it "No Excuse Sunday."

For those who don't come to church because Sunday is the only morning of the week that they can sleep late, eat, pillows and blankets will be set up in the Fellowship Hall. You can check in on Saturday night. Be a little lazy Sunday morning but still make it to worship on time.

For those who have trouble remembering to bring their tithes or offerings, the church treasurer has made special arrangements with the bank to accept Visa or Master Card for your convenience.

For those of you who just will die if you don't follow the fortunes of Michigan State through the NCAA Basketball Tournament, closed caption television sets have been installed in the center front two rows of pews so you can listen to the whole sermon without missing the opening up off.

For those who only come on Christmas or Easter, the florist is helping us out by providing both poinsettias and Easter lilies for our sanctuary Sunday morning to make you feel right at home.

The list of excuses, which of course are repeated here in the tongue in cheek fashion that they were offered, covered a whole lot more things. The idea behind it and this column is to get us to take an honest look at ourselves and the things that keep us from doing what the Lord expects of us.

What about it? God has blessed us in a number of ways. He has provided a means for the forgiveness of our sins. In the Bible, we have an inerrant manual for living. The Holy Spirit is our Counselor, Guide and Friend. The more you consider all God has done, is there any really valid excuse for not worshipping Him on His day?

Rayders lose 79-73 in overtime

The third time is a charm, but after losing to Boyne City twice earlier in the season, Charlevoix lost to the Ramblers 79-73 in the opening game of the District Basketball Tournament.

Charlevoix led for much of the game, but faltered at the end of regulation play and into overtime.

Early in the game, the Rayders controlled the play and led by as many as 13 points midway through the third quarter.

Jason Parrish played his best defense of the season in the first half, taking the ball into the lane for several baskets over the taller Boyne City players.

Midway through the third quarter, Charlevoix began to falter. Boyne City successfully worked the ball into 6'6" senior Eric Smith, who had 41 points for the game. The referees, having paid good money for those whistles, blew them frequently.

Despite problems, the Rayders still led by three and five points throughout much of the fourth quarter. Boyne City did not pull away until there were fewer than three minutes left in the game.

Charlevoix fell behind with time winding down in regulation play, but Luke LaBlance scored on a follow-up shot with four seconds left in regulation play to send the game into overtime at 70-70.

With starting center Parrish and starting forward Tod Kovach on the bench with five fouls, the Rayders were able to muster only a single point in overtime.

LaBlance led the Rayders in scoring with 24 points; Kovach added 20.

The Rayders finished the season as league champions with an overall record of 14-7.

Charlevoix's Jason Parrish defends against a Boyne City player. Parrish also played his best offensive game of the year prior to fouling out in the fourth quarter.

Big Rock reaches milestone

At 9:30 p.m. Sunday, March 3, Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant succeeded in reaching a lifetime net electrical output of 10 million megawatt-hours. The output landmark represents 28 years of power generation by a plant built at the very start of the nuclear age. The plant is currently operating at full power.

"This production record is a major milestone for the little engine that could," said William L. Beckman, Big Rock Point plant manager.

Completed in 1962, Big Rock Point was the fifth commercial nuclear plant built in the nation. Today, only one unit older than Big Rock Point remains in operation — the Yankee nuclear plant in Rowe, Massachusetts.

Big Rock Point's output of 67 megawatts is sufficient to serve a community of approximately 50,000 people. The plant is a fraction of the size of newer units such as Consumers Power Company's Palisades plant, which has an output of almost 800 megawatts. The plant was built small to meet the needs of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), which conducted an extensive research program at Big Rock Point after initial start-up. Its small reactor required less fuel for tests and was less expensive and more flexible to operate than a large unit would have been. Research by the AEC and others at Big Rock Point helped pave the way for the much larger plants now generating electricity around the country. Today, 112 nuclear generating plants are in service nationwide.

Although Big Rock Point may be small, its performance has achieved world-class status. In 1977, the plant set what was then a world record for continuous operation — 343 days without a shutdown. The plant achieved its best output for a calendar year in 1986. Its performance in 1990 was the fourth best in its history.

Ruth Geck (left) has purchased Sally Ann Co. from Sally Keie. Geck has worked at the shop for several years.

Beauty shop sold

After seven years of operating her own beauty shop, Sally Keie has sold Sally Ann Co. to a fellow worker.

Ruth Geck, who has worked with Keie for six years, is the new owner of the shop, which is located in the lower level of Nanny's Restaurant at 219 Ferry Avenue.

Geck is a graduate of Ohio State School of Cosmetology and has lived in Charlevoix for 11 years, coming here from Rochester. Her husband, Ruse, is Electrical Inspector for Charlevoix County. They have a grown son and daughter.

Susan Left and Carlos d'Angelo are the other members of the Sally Ann staff. They offer a full line of beauty care for men and women, including haircutting, permanents, color, shampoos, and sets, as well as manicures and pedicures. The shop opens every morning at 9 o'clock and closes at 8 in the evening on Tuesday and Thursday; at 9 o'clock on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 3 o'clock on Saturday. Walk-ins are always welcome.

Keie is retiring from business to "do all the things I've always wanted to do, like travel." However, she says she will miss her customers, who she thanks for "having been with me through the years." She also hopes they will continue to patronize the shop.

SCRAPBOOK

This is a picture of the old Charlevoix Carnegie Library which was built in 1909 at the corner of State and Clinton Streets. The cornerstone of the old building is still there, next to the First State Bank of Charlevoix, which now occupies the site. The present library building on Clinton Street was built in 1967. Mary Smith Warner, who loaned the Courier the postcard with this picture, writes: "This postcard was sent from Charlevoix to Route #1 Charlevoix on April 26, 1913 with a one-cent stamp. During the 1920s, our family lived out Barnard Road on a farm and our mother (who had been a school teacher) saw to it that all six of us children had library cards. She would help us all get our books and then we would go out and sit on the steps while Mother had time to pick out some books for herself. To this day, all six of us get great enjoyment out of reading."

Signs of spring abound

By Peg Ohio

Here in northern Michigan, the first day of spring is usually greeted as just a mark on the calendar. People think of that day, if they consider it at all, as perhaps the time to begin thinking of melting snow, soft winds, and more hours of sunshine.

This year, things seem to be a little different. The snow is almost gone except in areas where it has been piled by snowplows. The wind has been from the south on several days, bringing with it just an inkling of warmth. The sun has shone brightly for an entire week, chasing away the gray doldrums of midwinter.

Squirrels have given up the protection of their winter habitat and come out into the sunshine to play hide and seek and tease the neighbor's dog as he catches their scent in his uplifted nose.

Students of wildlife have many stories to tell. Jan Gless, who sketches flowers and animals year-round, has noticed unmistakable harbingers of spring: The bloodroot in a protected area of her yard is an inch high. Colors of the trees are changing because their sap is beginning to run. The blue jay's call has changed, becoming more melodic to welcome spring and mate. A grackle and red-wing blackbird fight over seeds at the feeder. The color of the sky has become more blue as it reflects the water that a short while back was ice. Pussywillows are getting ready to pop. Daffodils in a warm, sunny area next to her house are five inches tall. And the grassy areas that were covered with winter snow are now exposed, exuding spores to incite allergies.

Around town, the call has gone out for Little League sign-ups. The Elementary School is

$2.29 million pool

by WENDI WRIGHT

How public does a public hearing have to be? The school board considered that question Monday night. The board planned to, and ultimately did, host a public hearing on the school's intent to apply for a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) grant to build the proposed community pool.

Beyond a line item on the board's meeting agenda, no public notice was given that the hearing was to be held Monday night. Gordon VanWieren, school superintendent, said that was enough, as the agenda is a public document, and available to anyone who would like to see it.

Richard Swenson, assistant high school principal, said he contacted the Petoskey News-Review twice about publishing the notice but it was never published.

Larry Levensgood, board member, said he didn't feel sufficient notice had been given. He suggested the board should wait and have the hearing at a special meeting if necessary, because of the April 1 filing deadline for the grant.

VanWieren said he didn't see the need to wait. "I think everyone who has an opinion about the pool is here tonight."

A member of the audience disagreed, pointing out that of the seven people in the audience, five were either connected with the school, or were pool supporters.

Scott Beatty, board member, suggested the board have the hearing, and then check with the board's attorneys to see if legally the board had given

Reibel claims he's a victim of brutality

Claiming to be a victim of police brutality, Arthur Reibel appeared before the city council Monday evening and handed council members copies of a federal law suit seeking at least $1 million in compensatory damages plus at least $1 million in exemplary damages. Although Reibel has drafted the suit, the suit has apparently not yet been filed. There was no court file number or filing date on the document Reibel distributed.

Reibel's contentions stem from a Feb. 28 incident in which Charlevoix city police officer Peter Shrift arrested Reibel, citing him for having an expired driver's license, fleeing and eluding and operating under the influence of liquor. According to Reibel's suit, police later added a charge of attempted resisting and obstructing of a police officer. Those charges were listed in Reibel's document, but as of Monday evening, he had not been arraigned.

The suit, as drafted, names Shrift, Charlevoix police chief Dennis Halverson and the City of Charlevoix as prospective defendants.

In an affidavit attached to the suit, Reibel alleges that Shrift began following him south on State Street at about 1:50 a.m. Feb. 28. Reibel continued driving until he arrived at his home on M-66. Reibel claims that when he got out of his vehicle to go into his home, Shrift got out of the patrol car, shouted at Reibel as he approached him and then struck him in the face with what Reibel believes to have been a large flashlight.

According to Reibel's affidavit, he lost consciousness and when he regained consciousness he was sitting in the snow and bleeding profusely with his hands handcuffed behind him. The affidavit says that Shrift and another officer took Reibel to the sheriff's department and that a sheriff's deputy later took Reibel to the hospital for treatment.

In speaking to the council, Reibel asked for an independent investigation

K-5 students "Celebrate America"

President George Bush and his wife Barbara have other engagements and won't be able to make it to the Charlevoix Elementary School Spring Musical this Thursday, March 21, at the high school gym. But that's OK. In fact, odds are the gym will be packed anyhow and it might be difficult to find a seat for the President and the First Lady.

Dress rehearsal for the performance will take place at 9:30 a.m. with the evening performance beginning at 7:30 p.m. There is no admission fee. Doors will not open for the evening performance until 6:30 p.m.

The theme "Celebrate America" will feature a variety of patriotic songs and dances. The theme was selected last spring, long before the problems in the Persian Gulf began.

The elementary students sent a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Bush inviting them to this year's spring musical. Debbie Wilson, from the White House staff, phoned to say the President and First Lady appreciate the invitation, but are currently out of the country and will have to miss the musical.

Wilson said President Bush wishes the children a very successful performance Thursday night.

enough notice. If not, another hearing could be held.

Following the hearing, the board was to vote on the amount of the bond issue, based on the Building and Site committee's recommendation. But the committee did not make a formal recommendation. According to Beatty, the committee felt the final figure should be decided by the full board. The monetary number discussed was $2.29 million. He explained that the amount is higher than that suggested by the pool committee at earlier meetings, because the committee felt the bond issue should be for the total required to complete the project, rather than relying on the DNR grant.

Swenor added that the Building and Site committee, at the suggestion of two experts, has expanded the original plan developed by the pool committee, to include a children's wading pool and a viewing area. The Building and Site committee's plan is to apply for the full $750,000 available from the DNR grant, and if the grant is approved, that money will be used to make the pool into a full community recreation center. The reasoning behind this plan, Swenor noted, is that if the bond issue passes, but the DNR grant falls through, the school can still build the pool.

Following discussion, the board declined to vote on the amount of the bond request. Richard Kelly, business manager, will do further the incident. He said he does not want the investigation done by the state police as Halverson's father is a former director of the state police.

The city has an established policy for investigating circumstances where local police are involved in traffic accidents or physical conflicts. In accordance with that policy, the state police would be the investigating agency.

City attorney James Young advised Halverson, in a March 14 memo, that the city has a right to investigate the matter consistent with its own procedures.

Young wrote, "In summary, Mr. Reibel has no right to dictate how you have this matter investigated, so that as Police Chief you have the best possible information to decide what actually happened. Once the investigation is complete, you may make additional referrals or take such other action, if any, as you deem appropriate."

In speaking to the council, Reibel indicated that between Feb. 28 and present he has corresponded with city manager Mike Wiesner. Reibel said that a letter he received from Wiesner said, "If you feel you have rights or options, use them as you see fit."

After asking for an independent investigation and passing out copies of the drafted suit, Reibel said, "And depending on what happens, I'm going to exercise my rights and options."

Reibel left the meeting immediately after completing his statement.

Council members discussed making a motion to not take any action until the state police investigation is completed. The council then decided not to make any type of motion, but to simply take no action.

When contacted later by the Courier, Halverson said he felt it would be inappropriate to make any comment at this time since the department has a policy of not commenting on cases until after a person has been arraigned.

EDITH

by EDITH GILBERT

Barbara MacArthur writes from South Carolina. "Would you believe—we got an ad here at the cottage and on the back was Heather Kleiber's picture along with the notice of the young Charlevoix girl's mysterious disappearance. I hope the national ad campaign works!"

Josh Barnes and his street light committee will be interested in a letter from Anne Higman Olmstead, who now lives in La Crescenta, California. She's been following the fuss raised in Charlevoix about the proposed new street lights. She sends us this clip from the Los Angeles Times: "Electric lighting was installed in L.A. streets in 1882 despite what one pioneer recalled as arguments that 'it was hard on the eyes, produced color blindness and optical illusions, was bad for ladies' complexions, and kept chickens awake all night.'"

Don't miss the AREA ART INSTRUCTORS EXHIBIT at the McCaspe Arts Center this month! It's terrific. Juried by Ralph Wolfe, who has an MFA degree from the U. of M. and now lives in St. Ignace, this show must become an annual event. Featuring 26 instructors, Wolfe credits the exhibit as "a show of the finest quality."

Diane Drayer showed me a neat article about Beaver Island in the February issue of an international, glibly-magazine plainly called ISLANDS. It's written by John Stewart, who says he grew up on the upper eastern shores of Lake Michigan, and that he could see the Beavers from his grandmother's house overlooking Lake Michigan.

In the article he recounts asking the barmaid at the Shamrock the whereabout of an old acquaintance, Archie La-Freniere. "Look for him at the church tomorrow morning," she suggests. "If you miss him there, just walk down to the house four buildings past the medical clinic, next to the church. If he's not there, check in here. I'll let him know you're looking for him."

Keeping tabs on each other is the island's way of life as anyone who's ever been there knows. You might stretch that a bit and call it looking out for each other. It's certainly not snooping. If you want to get the real feel of the place, be sure to stay overnight and visit the Shamrock and swap tall tales for which the local Irish are just as famous as their Blarney-Stone kissing cousins.

The island is enjoying a remarkable rebirth as a summer haven.

Syrup straight from the tree

Somewhere buried away in a dark, corner office at Michigan State University or some similar institution, distinguished botanical engineer Dr. Barkley VonTreeley toils away hoping to fulfill a life-long dream. As with so many things, one man's dream is another man's nightmare and if VonTreeley ever finally succeeds in his endeavor, there will be problems for the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

For Dr. VonTreeley's dream is to one day refine the maple tree to the point where it will go beyond giving sap for syrup and just give straight syrup. No more endless boiling and bottling, just pure, sweet maple syrup straight from the tree.

"Bahhh!" scoff the local Kiwanians, who have long made and sold syrup to raise funds for their community projects.

"This VonTreeley fellow must be mad," they say with obvious scorn.

But Dr. VonTreeley's previous successes in developing hybrid trees make him a scientific force which is impossible to casually disregard. In the 1950s Dr. VonTreeley developed a dwarf cedar tree which had neither branches nor greenery. Those trees made some of the finest fence posts man has ever seen. Not only did fence post manufacturers suffer, but farmers took to planting Dr. VonTreeley's dwarf cedars in straight lines around the perimeters of pastures. Cows, sheep, horses and stock of that nature did well, but stock in post-hole digger companies plummeted.

Although the advent of steel fence posts kept him from cashing in directly on his dwarf cedars, Dr. VonTreeley did benefit financially in an indirect way. Dr. VonTreeley's work with dwarf cedars inspired the lumber industry to fund his research on the syrup maples. None of the lumber industry moguls have ever owned up to it, but people familiar with VonTreeley's work speculate that the lumber industry wants to keep him busy with syrup maples so that he doesn't turn his attention to other things. Were Dr. VonTreeley ever to take a notion to develop barkless trees which grew straight in rectangular shapes of various dimensions, lumber mills throughout the country could soon find themselves turned.

But for the time being, Dr. VonTreeley shows no interest in developing dimensional lumber trees. Currently, the syrup maples are his only passion.

Dr. VonTreeley doesn't look like a scientist. He is a short man. Instead of a lab coat, he wears bib overalls. There are a few test tubes in his laboratory, but the bulk of the space is cluttered with drill bits, tree taps and small potted trees. Everywhere there are small potted trees, each with its own identification label.

Although he won't reveal how he has overcome some of the obstacles to creating a syrup maple, Dr. VonTreeley will tell an interviewer what some of those obstacles have been.

"To begin with, sap is much too thin," VonTreeley explains. "It takes 50 gallons of sap to make one gallon of syrup. My goal has always been to have each tree produce a gallon of syrup a day. That meant I had to remove 49 gallons of water. No small task."

But why should a tree be able to produce a gallon of syrup a day?

"Because a gallon a day should be enough for most families."

More than enough, one would think.

"It depends on whether or not the family has children. You know how children are with syrup. They dump it right on."

Eliminating boiling certainly would save a lot of the time involved in making maple syrup.

"It would not only save time, but it would save waste," Dr. VonTreeley explains. "When sap is boiled, some of the syrup escapes with the steam. Not only is this a waste of syrup, it harms the environment. It's bad for the ozone."

Does it put holes in it?

"No, it makes it sticky."

Dr. VonTreeley says he has solved all but one problem in developing a syrup maple tree. That one problem has proved vexing and has had him stalled for years.

"The difficulty is getting the syrup to run," he says. "In a normal tree, a change in temperature causes the sap to flow, but I'm unable to duplicate that change in a household setting. Or, to be more specific, I can't duplicate it in a manner which is acceptable to the home owner."

"An OSP (Optimum Sap Flow) condition requires cold nights and warm days, i.e. radical temperature fluctuations. Having the temperature fluctuate between 10 degrees and 50 degrees outdoors is one thing, but when you start talking about having that happen indoors, people get upset."

presenting its Spring Musical. Recreational vehicles are beginning to return from the southland. Doors are being opened to exchange stale winter airs for the fresh aroma of outdoors. Kiwanis Club sap buckets are hanging on maple trees up and down the streets. Merchants have prepared for the early Easter with displays of bright merchandise. And ads are appearing for summer help.

Perhaps it seems more like spring in northern Michigan on the "first day of spring" this year because the whole winter has been different. As of last week, we had had 100.2 inches of snow, compared with 143 inches last year. The average is 120 inches. One reason for the lower snowfall is that the temperature has been higher than usual, with precipitation coming down as rain. On March 5, we had 1.1 inches of rain, which Sam Creswell of the Waste Water Treatment plant says would have been 20 inches of snow.

The average temperature here in December for the last 10 years was 24.8. This past December it was 26.6. The average January temperature the last 10 years was 22.3, but a few cold spells in January dropped this year's average to 20.5. Then came February. The average temperature for that month in the last 10 years was 21.7, but this year the average rose to 27.3.

Creswell, who supplied the above figures, has not compiled them for March. However, last week, with seven days of sunny weather, must have been above average. The sunshine was especially pleasing as we saw pictures of people in neighboring states fighting ice and snow.

Area group plans to address housing needs

Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity was approved as an affiliate project of Habitat for Humanity International on March 1, 1991. Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity is now one of 352 local Habitat organizations in North America. Habitat International also is building at 105 locations in 29 other countries.

Habitat for Humanity is a Christian non-profit organization committed to eliminating poverty housing and homelessness. Habitat volunteers build homes with people selected as homeowners-partners. The homes are then sold to the homeowner-partners on a no-profit, no-interest basis. One of its better known volunteers, Jimmy Carter, has said: "I know of no better investment to help restore human dignity than Habitat for Humanity. That is why Rosalynn and I have joined the Habitat team."

Stanley McDougall, a member of the local Habitat board, believes that the project will play a vital role in raising consciousness about the issues of the inadequate low-income housing in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Millard Fuller, Habitat for Humanity founder and executive director, believes that "all of God's children should at least have a decent place to live."

With that belief, Habitat projects have constructed and renovated over 5,000 houses for families since 1976. "Habitat's solution to housing problems is a hand up, not a handout. It seeks to break the cycle of poverty by working in partnership with needy families to construct new homes. In the process, we build dignity, self-confidence and self-reliance."

Habitat for Humanity's method is simple yet unique. Because the majority of materials and labor are donated, Habitat can build affordable homes. The organization makes no profit off the homes and charges no interest for its loans which are repaid over 15 to 25 years.

Families that apply for a house are selected on the basis of need, ability to repay the loan, and character. Race and religion play no part in the selection process. As the loans are repaid, the money is recycled to finance the construction and renovation of additional dwellings.

Payments average $200 per month, including taxes and insurance. The payoff can be extended or decreased depending on the resources of the homeowner.

Homeowners are required to help build their home with what Fuller calls "sweat equity." Each family must work a designated number of hours on their own or someone else's house. This philosophy makes the organization's volunteers "co-workers," Fuller points out.

Anyone interested in helping Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity can contact the group at P.O. Box 156, Bay Shore, MI 49711 or phone 347-7354.

United Way raises $43,000

The Charlevoix County United Way's recently concluded 1991 fund-raising campaign achieved a record $43,000 in donations. The record total was aided by many new contributors.

"For the first time, East Jordan residents were solicited and they responded in a positive way," said Nancy Porter, Charlevoix-United Way president. "In addition, K-Mart employees joined us for the first time through a payroll-deduction plan. Payroll deduction is the easiest and most effective way to give. I encourage other employers to make this option available."

Employees of the Big Rock Point nuclear plant used the payroll deduction process to make the largest group contribution—a total of $6,330—to the Charlevoix campaign. Medusa Cement provided the largest corporate contribution, $3,900. Summer residents also provided significant support.

The Charlevoix County United Way provided funding for a variety of human services agencies in Charlevoix County including Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, the ALANO Club, Women's Resource Center, the Chip Counseling Center. "Virtually everyone in the county benefits in some way from the programs funded by United Way," said Porter. "We all come out winners when the community supports the United Way."

Chairing the 1991 campaign were Kathy Stason and Bob Hoffman.

Kane - Schnackenberg

Herbert and Margot Kane of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Ann Kane, to Randal Clark Schnackenberg. He is the son of Richard and Leola Schnackenberg, also of Charlevoix.

The intended bride graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1979 and her fiancé graduated in 1982. She later attended Lansing Community College and he graduated from Michigan State University with a bachelor of science degree.

They are both employed in Charlevoix, she by Village Inn Pizza and he by Marion Construction.

The wedding will take place May 18 at the Community Church of God.

See and believe

Patients having cataract surgery at Charlevoix Area Hospital will have faster recovery of their sight due to the addition of new equipment. Cataract removal and the implantation of an artificial lens in the eye can now be performed through a much smaller incision, according to staff ophthalmologist Jeffrey Chauk, M.D.

The smaller incision requires only two stitches instead of the customary six to eight stitches following removal of the lens. This means a quicker recovery of sight as well as a reduction in operating time during surgery.

Charlevoix Area Hospital was able to purchase the highly advanced surgical instrument called a "phacoemulsifier" with funds from the 1990 Kappa Sigma Charlevoix Home Tour, Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild contributions, and Christmas contributions from area donors.

The surgery involves removal of the patient's lens which has become clouded by a cataract. Usually at the same time, the patient has a new artificial lens implanted.

This instrument, along with new surgical techniques, has reduced the incision needed to perform the surgery by more than 50 percent. Dr. Chauk explained. Now the cataract procedure, which is done on an outpatient basis, can be performed through an incision of about 3/16ths of an inch. However, the intraocular lens required a larger incision during implantation, he said, until recent advances in artificial lens design.

A new "narrow profile" lens was recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration, and allows the surgeon to implant it in most patients through the smaller incision. Certain preoperative criteria must be met for use of the lens, however.

Persons seeking more information should contact Dr. Chauk's office at 547-2901.

Book recalls High Island House of David colony

By Peg Ohio

While most older Charlevoix residents know there was a Mormon colony on Beaver Island during the early part of the last century, fewer know about the House of David colony on neighboring High Island during the first part of this century.

This is probably because the House of David colony was smaller, more peace-loving, and without the political power of Beaver Island's King Strang.

What is apparently the first book ever written about the House of David colony on High Island was recently written by a former colony resident.

Ramon Nelson went with his family from House of David headquarters in Benton Harbor to the High Island colony in 1920 and spent seven growing-up years there before the colony was disbanded in 1927. His father was sent to High Island to work with fellow members of the House of David in felling and milling the island's forest. His mother was to work in the communal kitchen and provide the many domestic support services expected of the women of the island. Ramon was to work, also, in ways appropriate to a child, and to attend the island school.

After he and his family and the other residents left High Island in 1927, natural growth began to wipe away the fragments of the colony. Today, there is only a temporary DNR building on the land but the natural harbor still entices boaters as it did Native Americans and the people of the House of David many years ago.

Nelson's book, titled "Island Life/Island Toil," was written with the assistance of John B. Woodward of the Sarah Jennings Press in Ann Arbor, who published the book.

The House of David was a religious cult founded in Benton Harbor in 1903 which prospered for many years on resources surrendered by its recruits and the labor of its diligent and skilled workers. One of its enterprises was a lumber business which was kept in stock by the High Island colony. Members of the colony went to the island from Benton Harbor for many reasons, including disciplinary, while others were just shipped off without question.

The House of David operated its own sailing vessel, the Rosa Belle, in which it shipped lumber from High Island to Benton Harbor and for other commercial purposes.

The Rosa Belle is pictured in as well as a portion of a poem by the late poetess Sarah Teasdale, who summered in Charlevoix:

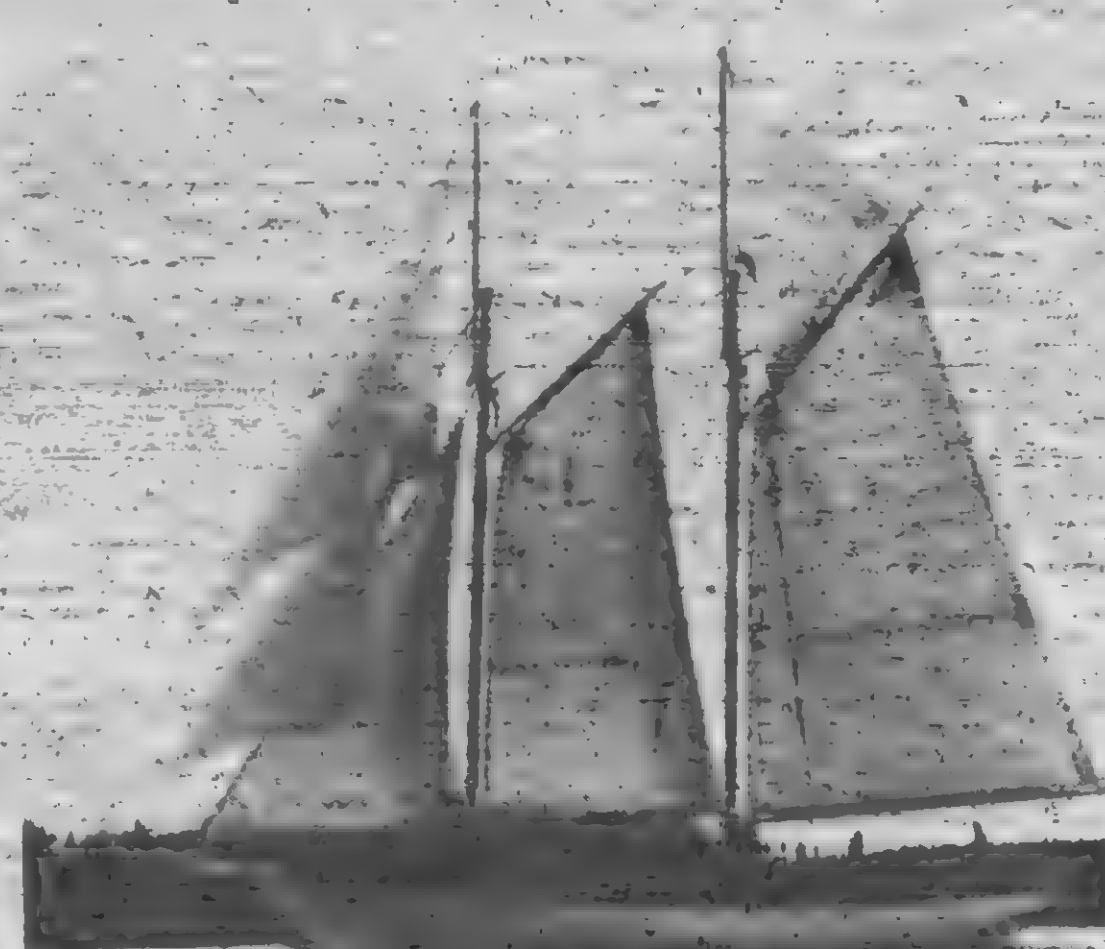

"Where is the scarlet Rose Belle/That brought the mill its grain/Her white sails dripping in the sun/Or grayed against the grain?"

"Island Life/Island Toil" is a 179-page hard cover book containing 88 pictures, maps, and a bibliography. The pictures are largely from Nelson's own collection, with others from another High Island source. They tell the story of a once-thriving colony only a few miles off the shores of Charlevoix.

For those who do not know about the House of David, there may be some recollection of the long-haired House of David baseball teams which toured the country for many years and the world-class amusement park in Benton Harbor operated by the House of David.

The House of David fell in 1927 when its leader, Benjamin Punell, was accused of sexual indiscretions. However, author Ramon Nelson defended his religious leader to the very end.

There is a copy of "Island Life/Island Toil" in the Charlevoix Public Library. Inquiries about the book may be directed to the Sarah Jennings Press, 2222 Fuller Road, Cruise ship to arrive this spring

The Appledore IV, an 85-foot sailing schooner capable of carrying 49 passengers, is scheduled to arrive in Charlevoix prior to Labor Day. A captain and a four-man crew are bringing the ship from her present port of Booth Bay Harbor, Maine.

Bay Breeze Yacht-Charter of Traverse City plans to operate the Appledore IV out of Charlevoix, beginning this spring and continuing through the color season in October. Current plans are to have the ship go out four times a day for cruises lasting approximately an hour and a half. The ship will also be available for private chartering and special events.

Earlier this winter, Bay Breeze officials received approval from the city council to dock the ship at the municipal docks, near the north end of the harbor.

In addition to the sailing schooner, two motor cruise ships have also expressed plans to operate cruises out of Charlevoix this summer. One will be operated by Ward Brothers Inc. and the other by Beaver Island Boat Company.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Philip G. Shairbaum

There is no temptation that remains as frequently as the one that tells us that our life really ought to be trouble free. The ideal life, we are led to believe, is one where peace of mind gets us through our days undisturbed, and a deep serenity overrules all difficulties that come our way. In reality, such a life is impossible to live, for trouble seems to be built into our world at every corner.

Not even Jesus was immune to trouble. He was beset by the same problems and uncertainties that we have. In a moment of exasperation he exclaimed, "Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say?" His words are a reminder that we cannot avoid trouble, but that we can make something of it.

Perhaps the world is so fashioned that trouble serves us in some important ways. What alloy is to gold, trouble may be to success, to every joy and happiness. There is a suspicion that what really keeps us from falling apart is not good fortune, but our learning how to manage our troubles creatively. Too often we are impatient with trouble, not easily reconciled to its limitations and hindrances. What we might do instead is let our troubles shape us and lead us into a greater understanding of ourselves and a deeper appreciation of life.

Here are some lessons which only trouble can teach us:

- It can make us wiser by bringing us into contact with the "other side" of life. As knowledge enlarges the mind, so trouble enlarges the heart.
- It can help us see others in their true light and increase our sensitivity towards them. Unless we ourselves have gone through some deep valley of darkness, others will always remain strangers to us.
- It can test and develop our unused faculties and make us more versatile human beings. Growth is always bound up with strain and tension.
- It can deepen our spiritual life as we discover resources that we never knew were there. Our trust in God is increased and our faith renewed.
- Jesus never tried to avoid trouble. To the contrary, he said in a critical moment, "For this cause came I unto this hour." Once we recognize the value of our troubles, then we shall be able to endure all things through Christ who makes us strong.

VFW leader receives national appointment

William P. Behrens, VFW Post 1153, in Charlevoix has been appointed by VFW National Commander-in-Chief James L. Kimery, to serve as a National Aide-de-Camp for 1990-91. Behrens is a resident of Charlevoix.

Kimery, head of the over-two-million member organization of overseas veterans commented, "It is because of the tireless efforts of civic and patriotic minded citizens like comrade Behrens that the veterans and the communities the VFW serves have been affected in a positive manner."

"Our programs touch every citizen in the community, veteran and non-veteran alike. I am pleased to make this appointment because I know Comrade Behrens will do an outstanding job for the VFW, the veteran and the community."

Campbell skis in Junior Olympics

After finishing the season with the Charlevoix High School ski team, Katherine Campbell spent last week competing at a Junior Olympic ski program at Mount Sunapee, New Hampshire. Campbell was one of seven 15 and 16 year old girls from the midwest on a team which competed against skiers from the northeast.

Campbell qualified in the slalom during a series of four CUSSA (Central United States Ski Association) races in Michigan and Minnesota. Although she qualified in the slalom, she also raced in the giant and super giant slalom races in New Hampshire.

Campbell left Charlevoix March 10 and arrived back in town March 17. While in New Hampshire, she spent two days training and three days racing. Campbell did not fare as well as she would have liked in the races. She fell in the Super Giant and Slalom races and had a slow time in the Giant Slalom. She was particularly disappointed about falling in the slalom as it's her strongest event and she had a good run going prior to the fall.

Ski slopes in the northeast tend to be longer. Consequently skiers from that region fare better in the giant and super giant slalom events. Midwest skiers generally are more adept at handling the tight turns of the slalom courses.

Next year, Campbell will be skiing in the 17 and 18 year old age bracket. She said she hopes to again qualify for a place on the midwestern team.

Charlevoix hosts girls' basketball tournament

Sixteen area elementary and junior high girls' basketball teams competed in tournaments at Charlevoix Middle and High School this past weekend. Nine teams participated in the tournament for grades 6, 7 and 8 while seven teams participated in the grades 8 and 5 division. Teams from Charlevoix, Ellsworth, Petoskey and Grayling participated.

Ellsworth defeated the Charlevoix Dudes 17-12 in the elementary championship game. Jeremy Drenth led the winners with 11 points. Carrie Blanchard had 6 for the Dudes. In the consolation game, the Charlevoix Pistons beat Petoskey 24-23. Lyndsey Blochel had 15 points for the winners.

Ellsworth defeated Charlevoix 34-28 in the junior high division. Angie Peterson had 20 for Ellsworth while Liz Grunch had 20 for Charlevoix. Two Charlevoix teams played in the consolation game with the Bulls beating the Pirates 30-23. Waja Wojcik had 16 for the Bulls, while Angela Schmidt had 10 for the Pirates.

Medals were awarded to all players on the top three teams in each division.

This was the first year for the Charlevoix Recreation Department girls basketball program. Nearly 100 girls participated.

Girls from four area schools gathered in Charlevoix this past Saturday for a elementary and junior high school girls basketball tournament.

Out of 62,212 fires reported statewide in 1989, 80 occurred in Charlevoix County. AAA-Michigan reports.

The latest available data shows there were 1,143 casualties statewide that year, with children under age 11 accounting for one-fifth of the injuries and deaths.

"Parents can help prevent children from becoming fire injury victims by taking measures in the home and teaching proper evacuation techniques," said AAA Michigan Community Safety Services Manager Robert V. Cullen. "The most important step to alert family members to fire threat is to properly install and maintain smoke detectors.

"Smoke detectors should be placed in areas of the home where smoke would gather and where the noise would awaken sleeping persons. Each unit should be checked monthly to make sure it's working properly. Batteries should be replaced annually," he added.

Parents should develop a fire-safety plan to teach children what to do if a fire occurs and practice family fire evacuation drills frequently. The following are life-saving techniques that families should practice:

- Identify two escape routes from a room, through a

During the last two months, the Great Lakes Basin has experienced below average precipitation. This is in contrast to the above average condition that prevailed for the last four months of 1990. Lake Superior, which underwent the least amount of change in 1990, is expected to continue to drop in March and to begin its seasonal rise in April. All the other lakes should begin their normal seasonal rises in March.

The Great Lakes forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, shows the Lake Superior is expected to remain below its long-term average levels during the next six months. Lakes Michigan-Huron are expected to remain slightly below their long-term average throughout the forecast period. Lakes St. Clair, Erie, and Ontario are projected to continue above their long-term averages throughout the forecast period.

District Health Department No. 3 has moved its HIV Counseling and Testing program from East Jordan to its Charlevoix headquarters. This location is in addition to those in Gaylord and Petoskey, where the program has been underway for over two years.

HIV is a virus which attacks human immunity to disease and can develop into AIDS.

Persons desiring HIV counseling and testing may call any of the three District Health Department offices mentioned. The Charlesvoix number is 547-6543. They should ask for an AIDS or HIV test appointment, which is free of charge, confidential, and anonymous.

Persons are signed up for two sessions. The first one consists of pre-test counseling and covers such topics as confidentiality, anonymity, risk benefits of the test, methods to reduce HIV transmission, and information on contact notification.

The second session occurs three weeks later. During this session, test results are given, risk reduction information is reviewed, voluntary contact notification is stressed, and HIV positive individuals are referred for medical evaluation. Post-test counseling may vary depending on a person's concerns, risk group, and test results. Referrals will be made for additional counseling and guidance as indicated.

Carol Faxton, Director of Health Promotion for District Health Department No. 3, stresses that persons requesting the HIV test are identified by number only and receive the professional services of a counselor who has special HIV training by the Michigan Department of Public Health.

door and window. Practice opening them with youngsters. Show them how to operate door locks and identify an object that will break a window, if necessary.

Since smoke rises, the only fresh air will be near floor level. Upon hearing a smoke alarm, children should drop to the floor and crawl low under the smoke toward the nearest escape route: If in bed, crawl to the bedroom door and feel it with the back of the hand. If it is too hot, do not open and proceed to the window exit. If the door is not hot, open slowly with right shoulder against door. If smoke is not too dense, crawl low to the main exit. If smoke is thick, close door and proceed out the window exit, still crawling low.

Do not attempt to return to the home for treasured items or pets.

A fire-ladder should be stored at the bottom of the window that can be hung outside for small children to use if their room is on an upper level.

Designate a meeting place for family members safely away from the fire.

The most important thing to stress to children is not to panic in a fire," Cullen said. "Instead, they should react quickly and rationally to the danger."

More than 250,000 Michigan smelt dippers and those who enjoy a meal of the tasty fish won't appreciate what experts are saying about this year's migration.

The annual AFA Michigan check of fisheries biologists from the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) reveals a pessimistic outlook for the annual spawning runs in April and May.

Most expect poor smelt dipping conditions again this spring, although no one can pinpoint why runs have been so disappointing the past several years.

Low water levels; overfishing by commercial and sports angler, predation by other species and increased spawning along lake shores instead of tributaries are some explanations advanced by biologists.

Predicting smelt runs is a chancy proposition given the unpredictable nature of this 3 to 4-month fish.

Smelt spawning runs peak when water temperatures reach between 42 and 44 degrees. The best action usually occurs with warm days and warm rain in the evening.

The fish usually ascend tributary streams to spawn over gravel beds although some deposit eggs over the lake's gravel shoals.

Heaviest runs are expected during the middle of April for East and Southeast Michigan and Ontario. West Michigan runs are best from mid to late April. In the Upper Peninsula, heaviest concentrations are expected from late April to early May.

The best dipping action usually occurs between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m. since smelt spawn at night and return to lakes by morning.

Runs may begin slowly or all at once. Dippers should remain flexible and try various locations if the first spot produces poor results.

Equipment includes buckets, nets, warm clothing, waders and a flashlight. Long-handled nets come in handy in areas with deep water and strong currents.

There is no limit to the number of smelt that may be caught, but a Michigan fishing license is required to dip in state waters. For more information about dipping regulation, consult the Michigan Fishing Guide available at DNR offices or where fishing licenses are sold.

Sap flows through a pipe from the tank in the back of the gathering truck into a pan and then on into the boiling room.

Sap is gathered from maple trees by drips and drops. If you want to boggle your mind, try figuring out how many drops of sap the Kiwanis Club collects each year. They plan to make about 200 gallons of syrup and it takes about 50 gallons of sap to make one gallon of syrup.

Plans made to stop zebra mussels

The Michigan Zebra Mussel Task Force has called for a four-point approach to controlling the spread of the zebra mussel.

In a report to the legislature, the task force, which was created by legislative mandate, outlined legislative, research, education and monitoring initiatives to minimize the transport and dispersal of non-indigenous aquatic "nuisance organisms."

"It will take a combined effort by federal, state and Canadian agencies as well as business, industry and members of the public to address this very serious problem," explained Director David Hales of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

These species, which are not native to the Great Lakes and were brought into our lake in ballast water carried by European vessels, pose a serious threat to the Great Lakes ecosystem and recreational boating and fishing, Hales added.

The zebra mussel is native to the Black and Caspian Seas of Europe. It is presumed the mussel arrived in the Great Lakes Basin in 1986 during a ballast water discharge in Lake St. Clair by an ocean crossing vessel which had taken on the ballast water in a European freshwater port where zebra mussels were present.

Zebra mussels multiply quickly and form dense layers on water intakes, threatening drinking water and industrial water supplies.

They are also able to invade cooling water systems in boat engines, restricting water flows and causing engines to overheat and burn up. In addition, the mussels contaminate beaches when thousands of dead mussels are washed up on shore causing unsightly and odorous conditions.

Members of the task force included representatives from the DNR, Michigan Sea Grant, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Great Lakes Environmental Research Lab, Department of Public Health, Consumers Power Company, Detroit Edison, Michigan Boating Industries Association, local units of government and universities.

The task force recommendations are listed below:
1. Pursue Congressional legislation and appropriations through the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to establish a Cooperative Research Unit Program in Michigan. Establishment of the Unit will enable researchers to access additional Federal funds for Great Lakes zebra mussel management.

2. The Department of Natural Resources with assistance from the Great Lakes Commission should prepare and submit to the nationally-appointed Aquatic Nuisance Species Task Force, a comprehensive management plan for funding of State activities under the Federal Aquatic Nuisance Prevention and Control Act of 1990. This plan should identify where technical and financial assistance is needed within the state to eliminate or reduce the environmental, public health and safety risks associated with aquatic species (State Management Plan).

Research
1. Michigan research institutions and agencies should assist Michigan Sea Grant in the development of a database of ongoing and planned research with compilation of results integrated through the United States Great Lakes Non-Indigenous Species Coordinating Committee. This effort will minimize the duplication of research while providing quick access to results.

2. The Department of Natural Resources should dedicate a percentage of the State's appropriated funds for zebra mussel research to be administered through the Michigan Sea Grant RFP (Request for Proposal) process to aid in the coordination of research efforts.

3. Research agencies should place high priority on research which will identify and evaluate the likely ecosystem and environmental effects and changes that the zebra mussel is likely to produce at each state of its life history.

Education
1. The Michigan Zebra Mussel Task Force, with assistance from the Office of the Great Lakes should update zebra mussel public information brochure "What Recreational Boaters and Anglers Should Know" and expand distribution to Secretary of State branch offices.

2. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources should request utility companies to provide billing inserts to customers identifying zebra mussel concerns.

3. All agencies and institutions developing information on the zebra mussel should work cooperatively with the Michigan Sea Grant College Program to provide support for a centralized non-indigenous aquatic species information center with a focus on the zebra mussel.

Monitoring
1. Agencies in the Great Lakes Basin involved in monitoring the spread of the zebra mussel should work with the U.S. Coast Guard in the implementation of the Federal "Aquatic Nuisance Prevention and Control Act."

2. Utilize existing monitoring programs in the Great Lakes Basin that identify the mechanisms by which zebra mussels are dispersed throughout the region including inland waters to document and forecast distribution pattern. This task should be coordinated through the U.S. Great Lakes Non-Indigenous Species Coordinating Committee.

Local families looking forward to return of soldiers from war

By L. Scott Swanson

If you call Dick and Linda Putman's house these days and they're not home, you hear an interesting message on the answering machine.

"Operator, I'll accept any calls to my answering machine from Saudi Arabia." The Putman's son, Shawn, can get through any time, day or night.

Mike Crain is dusting off his tennis racket. He's preparing for one of the biggest matches of his life. It must be a big match. Crain's son, Scott, will soon be traveling halfway around the world to play in it.

In the last week or so, local families of soldiers and sailors serving in the Persian Gulf have been receiving phone calls and letters from the troops for the first time since the ground war began approximately a month ago. Most of the troops say that if all goes well, they'll be coming home soon.

Due to time differences and the availability of phones, the soldiers and sailors have had to simply call when they can. Middle-of-the-night and early-morning calls have been common.

Scott Crain called home at 6 a.m. March 19 from Saudi Arabia and talked to his mother Anna. He said he hopes to get back to the United States this week. As things now stand, when he gets back, the Army's going to give him a four-day weekend, then he will have to go back to Fort Benning, Georgia for about two weeks and then he will be able to come home for two or three weeks.

When asked if Anna was glad to hear from her son, Mike said, "She was higher than a kite after she talked to him."

Crain was in a scout squad with the 24th Mechanized Unit and was among the first units to go into Iraq. His squad was under fire and two members of the unit were wounded. His group took Iraqi prisoners. Crain told his mother that the Iraqi soldiers his unit captured were in such pitiful condition that the Americans felt sorry for them. Many of the Iraqi soldiers just wanted to give themselves up.

Shawn Putman was in the same unit as Crain and they've seen each other occasionally although they aren't stationed in exactly the same place.

Prior to the March 19 phone call, the last time the Crains heard from Scott was mid-February. Scott told his mother that living conditions for the American soldiers have improved since the end of the ground war.

Charlevoix voters will be asked for $2.29 million and the state will be asked for $750,000 to fund a swimming pool and community center at the elementary school.

Voters will decide the $2.29 million bond issue May 13. The board has yet to decide the specific language which will be on the ballot. Although the $2.29 million figure is set, the board still hasn't determined how many years they would want to take to pay back the bond. The board is expected to address that issue in the near future, possibly as soon as Wednesday, March 28.

The payback period will affect the amount of additional millage required to finance the bond. Interest charges will add to the $2.29 million figure. The amount added will depend on the time taken to pay off the bond.

The board is presently considering three possibilities. The payback time tables and associated total payback amounts are:

10 years and 10 months - $3,394,483

11 years and 10 months - $3,459,583

15 years and 10 months - $3,996,892

Those figures are based on projected interest rates of 7 to 7.25 per-

...$2.29 million for pool

At a special meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education hosted a second public hearing about the board's intention to apply for a $750,000 Department of Natural Resources (DNR) grant, to be used to build a community center in conjunction with the proposed community pool.

Richard Swenor, high school vice-principal, explained that if the voters approve the bond request for money to build the pool in the special election May 13, the additional money provided by the grant would be used to add 7,000 square feet to the pool plan. This additional space could be used as a multipurpose community center.

As last week's meeting, Swenor explained that it was the Building and Site committee's recommendation that the board make the bond request for the total cost required to complete the pool, rather than relying on the DNR grant to complete the project as the pool committee had proposed at earlier meetings. In addition, he said, the Building and Site committee recommended that the board apply for the full $750,000 available from the grant, rather than the smaller amount suggested by the pool committee.

If the bond passes, Swenor explained, this approach would still allow the school board to build the pool, even if the grant award turns out to be smaller than expected, or if the application is denied completely by the DNR.

Monday night's hearing was brief. Few questions were asked by the audience, and no objections to the application were raised. Following the hearing, the board passed a resolution to authorize the building of the community center if the grant money is awarded to the school district.

Ground broken for local nursing home

Northern Michigan Hospitals and Charlevoix Area Hospital officials announced the name of a new nursing home to Charlevoix during official ground-breaking ceremonies March 22.

The new 60-bed nursing home will be called Boulder Park Terrace.

On hand for the ceremony were Northern Michigan Hospitals' (NMH) Board Chairman Lawrence Dr. Buhl, NMH President Jeffrey T. Wendling, and NMH Vice President of Finance Jerry Worden. Charlevoix Area Hospital (CAH) officials present included Board Chairman Al Ranger, CAH President Dick Krueger and CAH Finance official Bill Jackson. Several Charlevoix residents and city officials also attended the ceremony.

Boulder Park Terrace will be located off Upright Street and behind the physicians' office buildings near Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Construction plans call for 49 skilled care beds and 11 Home for the Aged beds for those who do not require constant care. Goodin and Bigelow Construction of Traverse City was awarded the contract to build the $2.4 million building.

The one-story building will have semi-private and private rooms, with an attractive dining area and day rooms featuring cathedral ceilings with skylights. The day rooms will open onto a landscaped courtyard.

Clarification

A paragraph in a story in last week's Courier said that at the March 18 school board meeting a school official indicated he contacted the News-Review twice about publishing advance notice of a public hearing on a proposed swimming pool, but no advance notice was published.

An official from the News-Review news room subsequently contacted the Courier and said the school did not contact them about publishing an advance notice of the hearing.

yard. Separate dining facilities for private family dining will be available. Activity rooms, physical therapy facilities, in-house laundry and kitchens are also included. Northern Michigan Hospitals and Charlevoix Area Hospitals strongly supported the need for another nursing home in the area. The two hospital presidents, Wendling and Krueger, joined in expressing appreciation to Ralph McRae of Charlevoix, who says the need for a nursing home was instrumental in seeing it come to realization.

The nursing home in Charlevoix is not the first project the two hospitals have cooperated on. They both own share in HealthWares, Inc., a durable medical equipment and home nursing care company.

OPINIONS

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Terry's Place is really spruced up with new curtains, new carpet, brass railings, a high ceiling and fresh paint. Patti did a great job of redecorating and says she's not finished yet. Terry's loyal following will be much pleased this summer not only with bright, fresh look of the place, but with the same old fine food. My dinner guests Tom Laine, John Riley and Karl Schmidt loved the place.

Those three young men had the leads in the Michigan Opera Theater Production of La Traviata in the new middle school in Petoskey. The new auditorium was filled to its capacity of more than 500 people Saturday, and it was good to see so many Charlevoixians in the crowd. We include chorus director Fran Tollas, who told me she felt a little strange seated in the audience this time, instead of being on the stage as usual.

Both the audience and the performers raved about the acoustics, which are superb. Carl Moser, middle school principal, told me the architectural firm hired an acoustical engineer to oversee the project. The MOT troupe says this is the finest auditorium on the whole statewide tour, bar none, and now we can look forward to enjoying a great many lively performances not far from home.

There is only one glitch. The orchestra pit drops down about 12' below the stage so that it is impossible for the audience or the performers to see the orchestra, or for the orchestra conductor to see the performers! Can't for the life of me figure what happened here, but hope this miscalculation can be corrected soon. The night of the La Traviata performance, the piano had to be placed on the stage back. As it turned out the performers all loved this innovation.

There's one more thing you need to hear about my experience hosting the three charming young opera singers in my home during their stay that will warm the cockles of your heart.

Manners are not dead!

Not only were they delightful, charming and entertaining houseguests, but they never left a mess at the table. They picked up their glasses and plates, took them to the kitchen and rinsed them. They left the bathroom with towels folded. They made their beds so neatly I couldn't tell they'd been slept in. They stood up when I entered the room. They wrote down telephone messages; they answered the doorbell when I rang. They helped me on with my coat. They opened the car door for me. To tell the truth, they made me feel just like their very own opera star, Violetta!

Those of us who live in a resort, and who are used to a steady stream of houseguests, know what a special joy it is to entertain young people, who are good company, and who practice good manners too.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

A royal problem

Take it all around, being a king or a queen ain't a bad job. Yet it's got its drawbacks. For example, King Hussein and Queen Noor of Jordan have been having a terrible time lately.

For those of you who aren't news junkies and who cringe when faced with the Geography category in Trivial Pursuit, Jordan is a little Mideastern country which has the misfortune of being parked in the midst of Iraq, Kuwait, and Israel. Yes, Jordan is caught between Iraq and a hard place.

Perhaps you remember hearing about Jordan during the Persian Gulf War. They got quite a bit of air time during that fracas. You may recall seeing pictures of Jordanians marching in the streets chanting anti-American slogans. You may recall seeing the King explaining Jordan's one-way airspace. You may recall seeing Jordanians auction off parts of downed U.S. aircraft to raise money for Iraq.

Apparently the U.S. Congress recalled those things and consequently took a vote the other day and decided not to send Jordan some $50-odd million in foreign aid.

Picture the poor old King when he receives this news. He is sitting in his office, on the throne behind his desk, doing whatever it is that kings do when his secretary buzzes him and says, "Your Royal Highness, the Prince of State is here to see you."

"Well, I'm pretty busy today, but send him in."

The poor Prince of State is a bundle of nerves and all in a sweat. Heads don't roll like they used to, but beating bad news to a king still isn't a pleasant assignment.

"King, I hate to have to tell you this," the Prince says, "but the Americans are cutting us off."

"Why would they do that?" the king asks.

The Prince tries to explain. "Even though we told them we were neutral in the war, they've somehow gotten it in their heads that the anti-American chants, one-way airspace and auctioning parts from downed American planes kind of indicated that we sided with their enemy."

"Hm," the King says. "I suppose I can see where they might get that impression. But up until now, a little thing like that never kept them from sending us millions. This is quite a departure from their previous policies."

The Prince leaves and the King begins pondering the situation. What to do? What to do? Finally, he hits upon a plan. It will require some delicate diplomacy on his part, but it just might work.

That evening, the King and Queen are seated at the table in the royal dining room. They have just finished eating and the palace staff is clearing away the plates and silverware. The Queen seems to be in a pretty good mood, so the King figures now would be a good time to bring up what he's got on his mind. You don't get to be King without having a sense of timing.

"Queen, dearest," the King says with a warm and kingly smile. "I have a delicate diplomatic mission which only you can handle."

The Queen wasn't born yesterday and her lovely head serves as something more than a crown holder. She sees right through the King's smile and says, "Forget it. I'm not going to try to patch things up with the Americans. We've got ambassadors up in our ears in this palace. Send one of them."

"But my Queen," the King argues. "The ambassadors all pale in comparison to you. Next to you, they are as camels to the fine Arabian charger. My Queen, you are American born. The Americans will listen to you."

"Don't try buttering me up with that Arab charger stuff," the Queen says. "It's not going to work this time. If you're so hot for explaining things to the Americans, either send an ambassador or do it yourself."

"I would gladly go myself," the King says. "But my last explanation to the Americans is still too fresh in their minds."

"Yeah, you did a real bang-up job of that," the Queen says with a smile. "The Iraqis shot Saudi missiles at Israel and when Israel threatened to fly over us and retaliate, you explained that Jordanian airspace is sovereign and could not be violated. When those dogs from the Western press then asked why you weren't complaining about Saudi missiles flying over Jordan, you said you had no way of actually verifying that they were flying over Jordan."

"I handled it as best I could," the King maintained. "I don't know for sure that the Saudis flew over Jordan. I only know that the missiles were shot from Iraq or Kuwait and landed in Israel. I can only speculate on their route of travel. Maybe the missiles didn't take the direct route and fly over Jordan. Maybe they went the other direction and flew all the way around the world and then hit Israel. After all, they are called 'long-range' missiles."

After hearing this, the Queen decides that maybe it would be better if she is the one to do the explaining to the Americans.

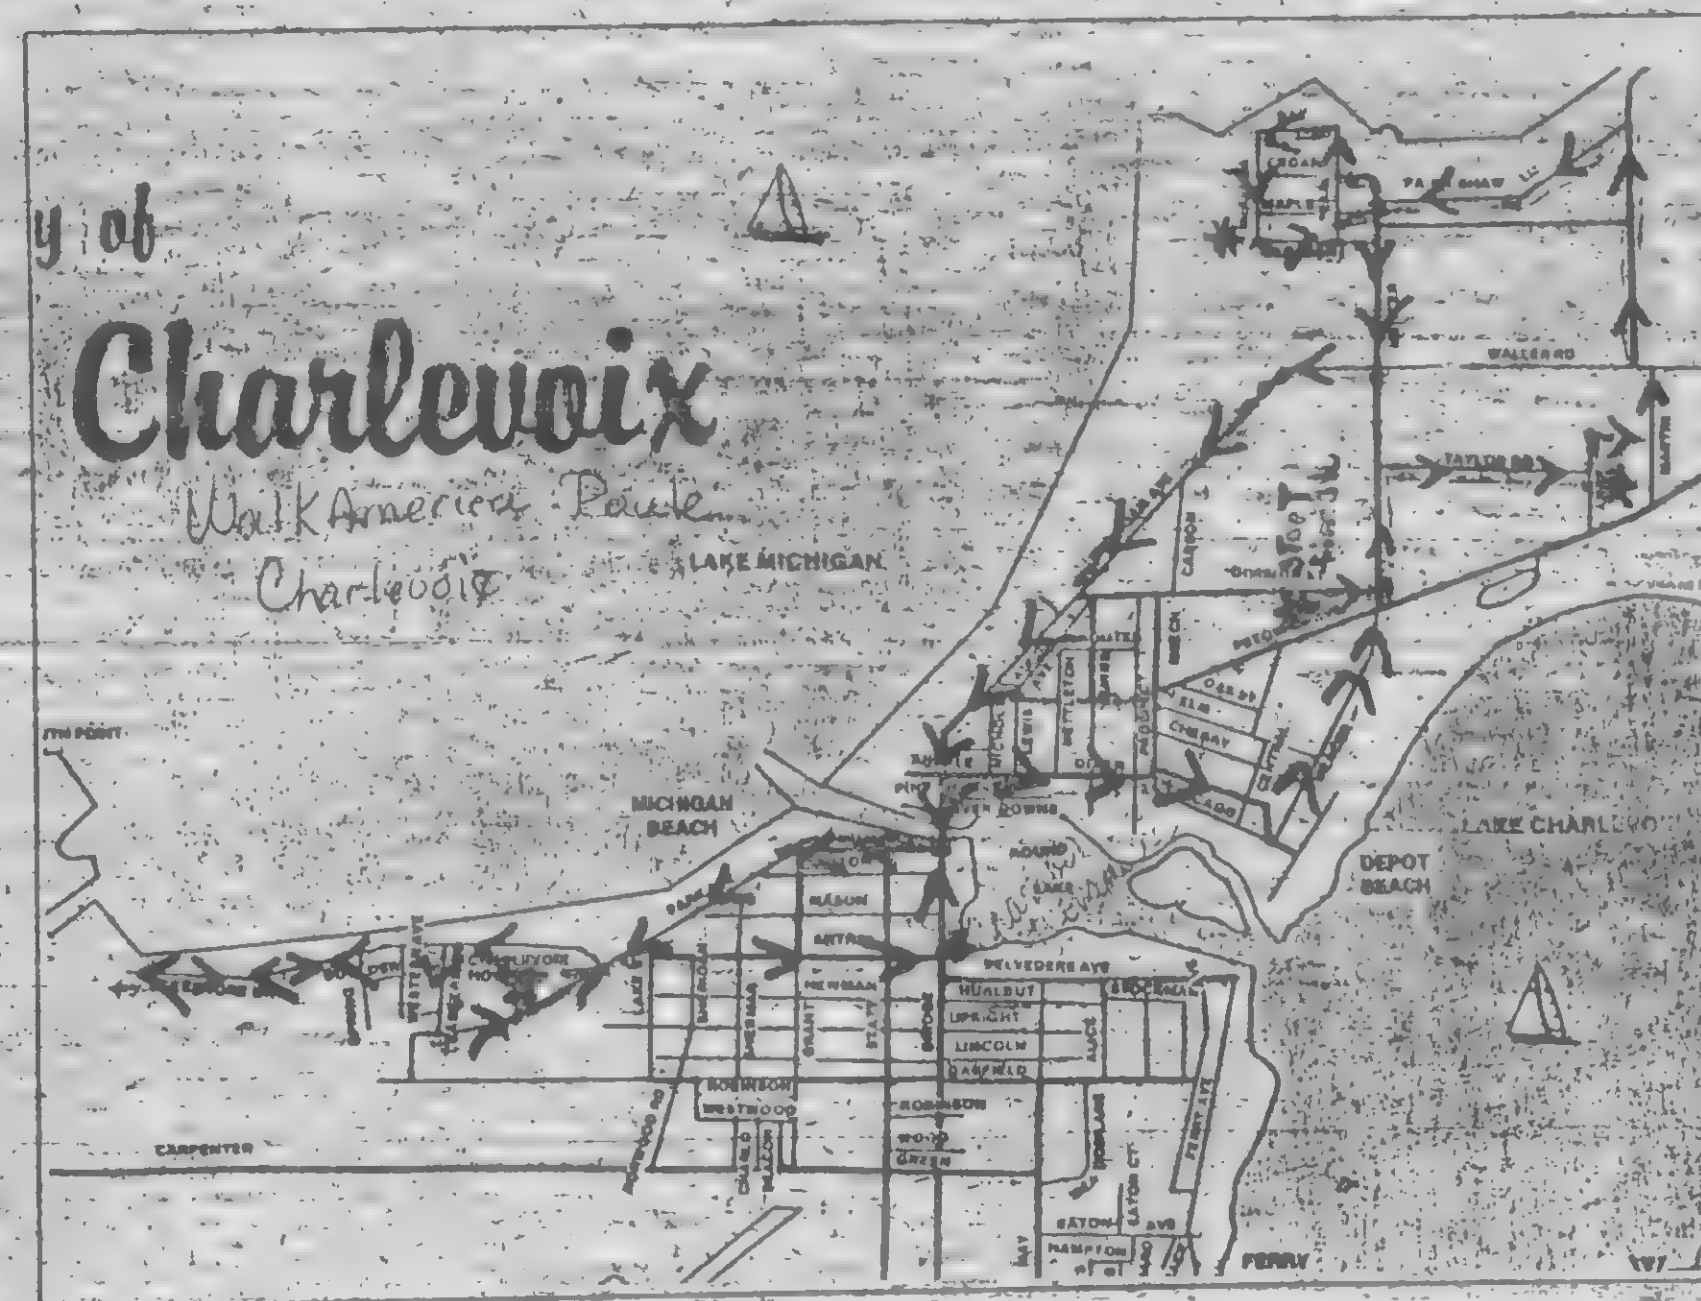

So Monday morning, as I ate my Cheerios, I watched Barbara Walters' interview Queen Noor. The Queen did her best to make a case for Jordan. But it was an uphill battle. Too steep even for a queen. It was part of the downside of being a king or queen.

WalkAmerica scheduled April 27

WalkAmerica is coming! The March of Dimes announces key leadership and plans for WalkAmerica 1991, the Foundation's largest event which will be taking place across America (and in Petoskey and Charlevoix) on April 27. The WalkAmerica committee is excited to report that there will be new, scenic routes in both Petoskey and Charlevoix. The routes will be shorter and will be going through residential and waterfront areas. They will still be patrolled, with checkpoints providing water and refreshments.

Checkpoint sponsors are being secured, each one providing signs, refreshments and encouragement on WalkAmerica day. Sharon McGarry, Division Director for the March of Dimes reports, "Checkpoint sponsorship has proven to be a great way for organizations to get involved in walk, show their spirit to the whole community and have a lot of fun."

A new primary corporate sponsor has joined WalkAmerica this year. Grand Traverse Community Hospital in Traverse City and Mercy Health Services North, with hospitals in Cadillac and Grayling, will be co-sponsoring the event in all of Northwest Lower Michigan this year. "By providing the funds for supplies, promotion and communications with walkers we have been able to continue growth with WalkAmerica and still have all the funds raised by walkers go towards our mission of healthier babies," advises Ms. McGarry. "We are thrilled to see these organizations become involved in this event that ties together our mutual goals of healthier communities."

Team Walk, the corporate arm of WalkAmerica, will be enhanced this year by the involvement of Stafford Smith as Honorary Chair. He recently hosted a Kick-off breakfast at the Perry Hotel for prospective team captains to introduce the concept of walk and distribute materials. "We are thrilled to be working with Stafford," said Mike Coglier, March of Dimes Chapter Chairman. "He really cares about the goals of the March of Dimes and hopes to see more people and organizations get involved."

Teams are signing up now and will be encouraging their employees and members to walk. "We have enjoyed having a team in WalkAmerica," reports Sue Hoschield, team captain for Northern Michigan Hospitals. "With over 100 babies dying every day in this country and thousands more born with birth defects, WalkAmerica offers something that everyone can do to help. It is also a healthy thing to do for ourselves. Please join us in WalkAmerica and take the first steps for healthier babies."

...awaiting soldiers' return

He said that he got to sleep inside a building for the first time since shortly after he arrived in the Persian Gulf last fall. For several months, his nights were spent in foxholes and bunkers.

Mike Dohm said his son Bill is expected to arrive in Jacksonville, Florida sometime this week. Bill and his wife currently live in Jacksonville. Bill is in the Navy, aboard the U.S.S. Montgomery. His father said Bill ended up in the Red and Mediterranean Seas during the fighting. The U.S.S. Montgomery ended up staying out of the midst of the battle, but did stop several ships as part of the embargo. One ship had to have a shell fired across its bow in order to persuade it to stop.

Gary Moore served on a Navy mine sweeper in the Persian Gulf from Oct. 1 through Feb. 1. He's been home in Virginia since Feb. 1, but expects to be sent back to the Gulf to help with clean-up operations. The crew on his ship is rotated every four months.

Gary's mother, Mary Moore, said that when Gary shipped out last fall, he took it quite well, but she was upset. Mary said that Gary told her his sun on the boat wasn't so bad, but getting to the airport to come home got a bit scary. Allied bombers were flying missions from the same airport Gary flew out of to come home.

Dave Olach is still awaiting word from his brother Darren. Darren sent his father a letter which was dated about two hours before the ground war began. Darren Olach is with the reserve unit out of Traverse City. Dave said that at last report his brother was driving a fuel truck about 90 miles outside of Iraq, near the middle of Saudi Arabia.

Dave said he expects to be getting a letter any day and added, "I hope to see them back yet this spring."

Public TV completes funding campaign

CMU Public Television fell just short of its $307,000 goal as it concluded Festival '91 March 17. 4990 pledges generated $304,795 during the on-air event which began Feb. 28.

Twenty five percent of the total was the result of businesses and organizations offering challenge grants, a means of matching individual pledges called in during a certain block of time.

"We depend a great deal on the generosity of our corporate sponsors and community organizations," said Linda Hyde, public information coordinator. "They offer a consistent base of support to CMU Public Television."

More than 350 volunteers travelled to studios in Mt. Pleasant to help answer telephones during Festival '91.

"Because we did not raise as much as last year, and because the Michigan Department of Commerce has withdrawn $50,000 from CMU Television's budget, some programs may be dropped from the schedule," said William Origiunas, director of CMU Public Broadcasting.

"It was heartening to see such a favorable response in these tight economic times," said Monte Higgins, station manager. "The average pledge was up $2.33 over Festival '90."

The CMU Public Television Network included WCMU-TV, Channel 14 Mt. Pleasant; WCMU-TV, Channel 6 Alpena; WCMU-TV, Channel 21 Marquette; WCMU-TV, Channel 27 Cadillac; Channel 46 Traverse City and Channel 69 Leland.

Band students receive #1s

At the State High School solo & Ensemble Festival Saturday in Big Rapids, four Charlevoix High School Band students passed proficiency one with first division (1) ratings. The students are: Janet Campbell, clarinet solo; Mike Ochs, bass clarinet solo; Jake Porrah, flute solo; and Amy Shupert, piano solo. The students qualified for the state level festival by receiving 1 ratings at the district festival earlier in the year.

At the state festival the students are required to play scales from memory and to sight read a musical etude which they have never seen before in addition to performing their prepared solos. There are three proficiency levels at the state festival, with the memorized scales and the sight reading becoming more difficult at each proficiency level progressing from level one to level three.

School board seeking public input in superintendent search

People interested in expressing views on the characteristics and abilities the next Charlevoix school superintendent should possess are invited to a public meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 27 in the Charlevoix High School study hall.

Charlevoix's present superintendent, Gordon Van Wieren, is resigning effective in June. The board of education is currently seeking a replacement. The board has retained Kara Funk, a consultant, to assist them in their search. One of Funk's initial goals is to talk to people from the community to find out what qualities the community is looking for in a superintendent. Funk will conduct Wednesday evening's meeting.

A letter from board president Max Novak announcing the meeting said of the superintendent search: "It is our (the board's) intent to widely recruit and search for a superintendent, and to use all possible suggestions for evaluating candidates in order to secure the best possible person. To this end, we are desirous of getting all possible input."

BEACONS

by Dr. Clarence E. Fretz

I recently received a book, quite a small one, in fact fewer than one hundred pages. On its cover was a truly tremendous title: "How to Do Everything Right."

This book reminded me of an incident which occurred some years ago. A rather shy young man, a college student, was urged by his parents to attend his college's banquet and to invite a certain lovely young lady as his guest. He rather reluctantly complied. Later, when he refused to duplicate the same date for another occasion, he explained "You can't judge a book by its cover." His parents understood.

About 3000 years ago, the Lord gave instruction to His prophet in words that contained a similar truth: "Man looketh on the outward appearance but God looketh on the heart (1 Sam 16:7)." In other words, God alone possesses the ability to judge righteously the inner complexities that influence and govern human behavior.

Before "Desert Storm" there was a great urging for prayer on the part of many of our leaders. Now that we have come through successfully, much thanks have been heaped on our marvellous equipment, our highly skilled leadership, and our wonderfully trained, brave personnel. Surely all of this praise is much deserved. However, there seems to be little mention of the God who was, is, and ever shall be the sovereign of the universe. It reminds us of the occasion related in Luke 17:14-19: Ten lepers were healed by our Lord. Only one, a foreigner, returned to give Him thanks.

I do hope and pray that as our Lord contemplates our nation today, that He beholds genuine thanksgiving in the hearts of the multitudes, even though some of our leaders may have forgotten His mercy to us in a time of dire need. We do well to enter into the spirit of Kipling's famous prayer poem: Lord, God of hosts be with us yet, lest we forget.

Even more important at this blessed Easter season, beneath all the beauty and glory of a joyous celebration, may His grace enable us to receive the sufferings of our Savior on Calvary. May He behold a genuine faith within these hearts of ours - yes, a faith triumphant in the "power of His resurrection" - one that shines forth without apology or covert.

The recent Open House of District Health Department No. 3 was not only an occasion to show off its new headquarters building but an opportunity to distribute the Department's bi-annual report and a short history of its 60 years of health service to northern Michigan.

District Health Department No. 3 was formed in the fall of 1930 by the Boards of Supervisors of Antrim, Chadoeyox, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. It was named "No. 3" because it was the third District Health Department organized in the state. However, Districts No. 1 and 2 later disbanded for brief periods of time, thus making the local District the oldest continuously operating Health Department in the state.

Today, the Health Department provides services to the general public in four major fields: Adult Health, Environmental health, Family Health, and Health Promotion. Every person in our four-county area is touched by these services in one way or another.

Selected services under Adult Health include clinics for hypertension, foot care, influenza, and other immunizations; home health visits for both evaluation and basic care; and coordinating patients' needs with other agencies.

Environmental Health services are also broad-based: Licensing and inspecting food service establishments; overseeing slating and construction of septic systems; issuing permits for location of water wells; evaluating water and sewer systems for mortgage seekers and builders; evaluating social service facilities such as foster homes; day care centers, and children's camps; inspecting campgrounds, public swimming pools, and mobile home parks; and investigating complaints about possible environmental health hazards.

As the name implies, Family Health Services provides care for men, women, and children. As proof, they are the WIC nutrition and food program for pregnant and post-partum women; and infants and children up to age 5; screening for Medicaid recipients under 21; hearing and vision screening for children; maternal care for women Medicaid recipients; immunization for communicable diseases and prevention and control measures of communicable diseases; and children's special health care and services to crippled children.

Health Promotion Services include developing a community action plan to address the issues of mental health, sexual health, and substance abuse by teenagers; a health promotion program for workplaces; family planning clinic; AIDS counseling; and a general health education program.

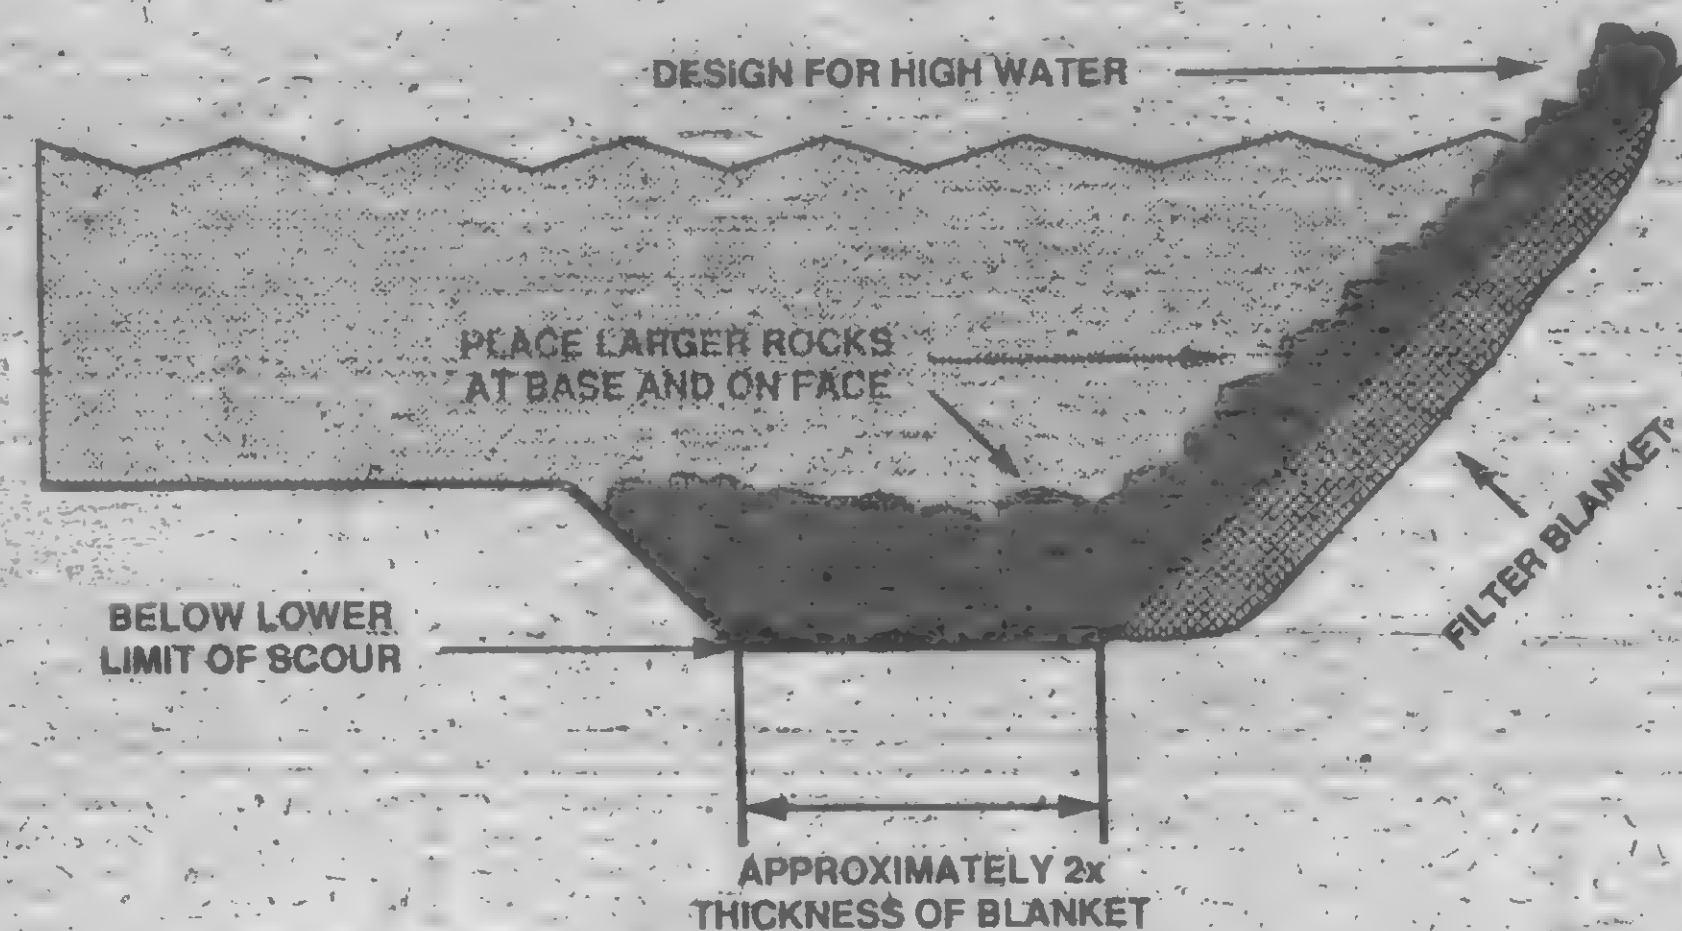

In addition to these District services, the Health Department works with other Districts in such programs as emergency medical training and assistance.

District Health Department No. 3 is funded 47.6 percent by fees, 25.3 percent by state and federal funds, 20.8 percent by local funds, 3.5 percent by state cost-sharing, and 2.8 percent by the cigarette tax.

Last year, the Health Department spent 68 percent of its funding, or $2,407,806, on its personal health programs; 15.8 percent, or $558,691, on environmental health programs; 12.3 percent, or $436,515, on other programs; and 3.39 percent, or $137,672, or administration, for an annual total of $3,540,774.

The new headquarters building for District Health Department No. 3 is located at Garfield and Grant Streets in Charlevoix. Gerald M. Chase, Public Health Administrator for the District, has his offices there, as do Nancy Bottomley, Director of Adult and Aging Health Services; Linda Yaroch, Director of Family Health Services; Carol Paxton, Director of Health Promotion; and Christine Vogelheim, Director of Administrative Services.

There are also District Health Department' Nb. 3 offices in Petoskey, where Dr. Brian L. Youngs, Medical Director and Health Officer, has his offices; and in Bellaire and Gaylord.

The diagram above shows how rock will be used to stabilize portions of the Jordan River's bank.

Grant to help protect Jordan River

The Antrim Soil and Water Conservation District (ASWCD) received a grant of Federal Clean Water Act funds last fall from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR). The purpose of the grant is to correct twenty-six problem areas throughout the Ijordan field that you wouldn't mind getting rid of, please contact Doug Fuller, Water Quality Technician, at (616) 347-1181. In addition to getting rid of some unwanted rock, you would be making a significant contribution to the protection and improvement of the Jordan River.

New shop combines art and antiques

The son of a career Army man and his Netherlands-born wife have brought their knowledge and love of European art to Charlevoix with the opening of their North Seas Gallery on Mason Street.

Rex and Ineke McCarthy specialize in late 19th and early 20th century European paintings by minor but listed artists. While most of their collection is by Dutch artists, there are also pieces by French and German artists. They were all purchased in Europe and brought to this country by the McCarthys.

In addition to paintings, the North Seas Gallery features furniture of the Nouveau period, as well as glassware, bronzes, porcelain, pewter, and similar items in both Art Nouveau and Art Deco styles.

While his father was serving overseas, Rex lived and attended school in Paris and London and several other cities. He spent 10 years in the Netherlands, where he met and married Ineke. "We worked and studied and developed a deep appreciation for fine art," McCarthy explained.

Both his parents are native Michiganders. His father grew up in the Traverse City area and his mother in West Branch, so he learned about northern Michigan as a young boy. Rex and Ineke first considered Mackinac Island as the best place for their gallery, because he has relatives there and knows the city. However, a drive through Charlevoix changed their minds and they chose Charlevoix as the home of North Seas Gallery.

Besides running the gallery, the McCarthys will participate in antique shows. Eventually, they plan to keep the gallery open nine months a year and spend the other three months in Europe replenishing their stock.

The gallery is now open on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Beginning in mid-May, it will be open daily.

The McCarthys are living in Charlevoix with their two children. Wendy graduated from high school last year and Tim is a junior at Charlevoix High School.

Rex and Ineke McCarthy will celebrate the grand opening of North Seas Gallery this week. The gallery will specialize in late 19th and early 20th century art.

Drenth graduates from banking school

A Charlevoix banker, Marlene Drenth of Charlevoix County State Bank, is among 30 graduates of the Class of 1991, Northern Michigan School of Banking (NMSB) at Northern Michigan University.

The NMSB, sponsored by the Michigan Bankers Association, Groups 1 and 2, was initiated in 1964 to meet the need for continuing education in banking. Students attend for two weeks in each of two consecutive years to add to their banking skills and learn new concepts in banking. More than 600 bankers from the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula have graduated from the program.

1991 Spring Musical

Misty Przybylski snaps to attention and offers a salute during one of the songs.

Back drops for the musical were done by the elementary school art department.

DNR to inventory state forest

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the U.S. Forest Service are cooperating to begin inventorying the state's forest resources in April.

"This is an extremely important project," explained Director David Hales of the DNR, "because it is critical for us to know how to meet future demands for wood, recreation, wildlife and other resources."

Hales added Michigan's forest-based economy contributes more than $7 billion to the state's economy each year.

The inventory will estimate the extent of forest land in the State, the volume of the timber resource, and how fast the timber is growing and being harvested. In addition, information will be collected on who owns forest land, the number of trees by species, and number of acres of forest by forest type.

The inventory will also record the presence of cavities in trees to help determine the quality of habitat for cavity-nesting birds and mammals. In addition, the field crews will examine woody shrubs to evaluate the habitat potential for other wildlife species.

Congress requires that the Nation's forest resources be periodically inventoried. The upcoming inventory will be the fifth for Michigan, with the two most recent ones conducted in 1966 and 1980. The last inventory revealed that forest land had decreased from 19.4 million acres in 1966 to 18.4 million in 1980. Despite this acreage decline volume increases 27% during this same period.

The first step in the inventory is to estimate the State's forest area and composition by examining aerial photographs. Next, in April of this year, foresters and forestry technicians from the North Central Forest Experiment Station will visit some of the locations on the aerial photos to verify and correct the preliminary estimate of forest area and to set up new sample plots for making measurements.

They will also remeasure old plots established in 1980 to determine timber growth, mortality, and removals. They will visit and measure a total of 7,635 forested plots scattered all across the state. These plots are a sub-sample of over 210,000 points examined on aerial photographs.

The field phase of the inventory will begin in the Upper Peninsula, with the staff working out of Manistique and L'Anse. Statewide fieldwork is expected to be completed in about three years. After the field work is completed, the process of compiling and analyzing the data begins.

U.S. Forest Services' North Central Forest Experiment Station scientists expect the data to provide more information than has ever before been known about Michigan's forest resources. Published reports that discuss the findings will be made available to the public.

Watch out for the power lines

March in Michigan is a contrasting time of year; there's enough cold to let you know that winter hasn't yet given up its grip.

But there are enough sunny days with warm winds that give a hint that spring is unlocking the grasp of winter and bringing children outdoors to play.

Consumers Power Company has suggestions for parents and educators to help make youngsters' outdoor playtime safer. The company urges adults to teach children to be careful climbing trees and around power lines.

"We ask kids to follow a simple rule," says Timothy J. Pietryga, Public Information Director for Consumers Power. "When it comes to outdoor fun, look up, stay away from overhead electric lines and stay alive."

Tree climbing and kite flying are two springtime activities where accidents occur because youngsters forget about safety. Children should be told - and re-told - to be on the lookout for danger.

Kites should never be flown near electric power lines. If a kite gets entangled in an electric line, don't try to get it out - let it go. A child should never climb a utility pole, a tree or a broadcast tower to retrieve a tangled kite. In the long run, buying a new kite can be a lot cheaper and a lot safer.

Parents should look over areas where their children might climb trees to make sure there are no overhead electric lines. Children should be taught to look for wires in or near trees before they attempt to climb.

Consumers Power offers some basic rules that will help both young kite flyers and tree climbers to have fun and avoid trouble:

- Keep away from overhead electric lines.

- If an electric line falls, keep away from it.

- When buying or making a kite, make sure it is constructed of wood, plastic and paper - do not use anything made of metal.

- Use dry string when flying your kite, not wire or anything metallic.

- Fly your kite in open areas in dry weather. Avoid streets and highways and keep away from television and radio antennas.

- Consumers Power offers films and videotapes on electrical safety for free use by schools and community organizations.

Togan Lawson, Mariya Kent, Jennifer McClellan, Gerald Marquardt hold certificates they received for completing a March Reading Partner program with their parents.

Parents join their children as partners in reading

Approximately 120 first, second and third grade students crashed the books with the assistance of their parents during the month of March. In an elementary school Reading Partner program parents were asked to spend at least 15 minutes a day for at least 20 days out of the month reading with their child.

The children received a calendar at the beginning of the month to keep a record. The parents and children could handle the reading in whatever manner they were comfortable. The parent could read to the child. The child could read to the parent. Or they could both read quietly together.

Each child who completed the course received a certificate recognizing them and their parental reading partners.

Students participating in the program were from the entire first grade, Sue Tillotson's second grade Chapter I reading class, Stan Martin's second grade reading class and Karen Pierce's third grade Chapter I reading class.

Students completing the program were:

Council approves DDA coordinator

By L. Scott Swanson

A budget amendment which will lead to the hiring of a person to bring year-around businesses to Charlevoix's downtown area was approved by the city council Monday evening. The $16,000 budget amendment came to the council from the Downtown Development Authority (DDA). The Chamber of Commerce brought the idea before the DDA.

Chamber of Commerce executive director Jacqueline Meria and Robert Hoffman of the chamber's board of directors explained the merits of the proposal to the council.

Meria said the idea is to attract more year-around businesses and a wider variety of businesses to Charlevoix's downtown area.

"There's always been a lot of turnover in the downtown stores," she noted.

Hoffman said the chamber would like to see a better mix of stores in the downtown area.

Council member Bill Haggard voiced the only reservation about the proposal saying it seemed like attracting business to the downtown area would be more the responsibility of the Chamber of Commerce rather than the DDA.

County board districts to change

By Peg Ohle

The recently released 1990 census figures for Charlevoix County, which the Census Bureau warns are not the "final final" figures, indicate that Charlevoix County has grown by 1,561 in the last 10 years, up to 21,468.

When the "final final" figures, which may be the same as the present ones, are received about the first of June, the commission to apportion the county into county commissioner districts will go to work.

This commission is composed of the County Clerk, County Treasurer, County Prosecuting Attorney, and the chairman of the County Republican and Democrat parties. These five people will begin the process of dividing the county into not less than five and not more than 15 new county commissioner districts from which to elect members of the County Board of Commissioners.

Since 1982, there have been six county commission districts: No. 1, consisting of Hayes, Bay, Evangeline, and Melrose Townships; No. 2, consisting of Boyne Valley, Hudson, Chandler, Wilson and East Eveline Townships; No. 3, consisting of the City of Boyne City; No. 4, consisting of the City of East Jordan and South Arm Township; No. 5, consisting of West Eveline, Marion, Norwood, Charlevoix, Peaine, and St. James Townships; and No. 6, the City of Charlevoix.

These districts were set up as provided by law to be "as nearly of equal population as possible." Based on the 1980 population of Charlevoix County, each district would be as near 3,318 as possible. (County population of 19,907 divided by the six districts).

The 1990 population of District No. 1 is 3,894; of district No. 2, it is 3,766; of District No. 3 it is 3,428; of District No. 4 it is 3,658; of District No. 5 it is 3,616; and of District No. 6 it is 3,116. If the county were to be divided into six districts again this year, the districts would have to be as near as possible to 3,578 in population. (County population of 21,468 divided by the six districts).

As noted, District No. 6, City of Charlevoix, falls far below the average for a six-district apportionment. However, if Norwood Township (population 515) were added to District No. 6, the population would rise to 3,632 which might be near enough the average to be acceptable. But then, District No. 5, which now includes Norwood Township, would have to be adjusted, and so down the line.

The apportionment commission might keep the six districts and rearrange the political units; it might reduce the number of districts to the minimum of five; or it might divide the county into any number of districts up to 15. Charlevoix County was divided into 15 districts for many years before being reduced to six districts.

While all this may seem like "much ado about nothing," the apportionment procedure provides for "one man, one vote," which is an important part of the political process. Population changes (see accompanying chart) make for district changes.

Eveline Township is part of both District No. 2 and District No. 5. For this analysis, its total population of 1,100 is divided into half for each district.

ACOA/Alanon support group will be held from 8:45 to 8 p.m. at St. Mary's Catholic School, Charlevoix, followed immediately by a 12-step work book study group.

Charlevoix Township Board meets at 7:30 p.m. at Stroud Hall. A representative of the Swimming Pool Steering Committee will give a presentation.

Woman still missing

The Charlevoix Sheriff's Department continues to investigate the disappearance of Katherine McCleese. McCleese, 28, was last seen Friday, March 22 at a large party near Bay Shore.

Police have interviewed more than 100 people who attended the party. Deputies and other officers searched the area near the party site for the sixth time Monday. Search efforts have included the use of tracking dogs and the U.S. Coast Guard helicopter out of Traverse City.

Officers spent much of this past weekend interviewing people who attended the party. The sheriff's department initially looked at interviewing 40 to 50 people who attended the party, but have now revised that figure to more than 150. As of Monday, officers had interviewed 103 people. The sheriff's department is encouraging people who attended the party to contact the department for an interview. The purpose of the interviews is to see if someone at the party might have heard or seen something which will help in the investigation.

In a news release issued Monday, Sheriff George Lasater said, "We are hopeful that we find Katherine McCleese alive, but we can not rule out all other options and we are conducting our investigation with those options in mind."

The party took place at a house and garage south of Bay Shore. According to people who attended the party there was a live band and perhaps as many as 200 to 300 people attended during the course of the evening.

McCleese went to the party with a friend, but they became separated at the party. McCleese's truck was still parked at the party after it ended. Her purse and money in the purse were found in the truck. Searchers found McCleese's shoes and jacket in an area behind the house.

McCleese is 5 feet 5-inches tall and weighs approximately 125 pounds. She recently dyed her hair light blond. In addition to the white shoes and jacket found by searchers, when she was last seen she was wearing a white shirt and blue jeans. McCleese requires daily insulin shots.

Although the sheriff's department is heading up the investigation, other area law enforcement agencies are providing assistance.

Wild turkeys have invaded Charlevoix in recent weeks. This flock spent some time in the park near the west end of Clinton Street. Larry Sullivan photographed them. Earlier in the week, the turkeys were in his back yard.

Pool pay back would take approximately 12 years

School board members have voted to pay back a bond for a community swimming pool over an 11 year 10 month period should the bond issue pass in a May 13 special election. The decision means the estimated total pay back of the bond plus interest would be $3,459,583.

In the special election, voters will decide whether or not to borrow $2.29 million to build a swimming pool at the elementary school. If voters approve borrowing the money, school district property taxes will be increased to pay off the bond and interest on the bond.

The amount of interest cost and back cost was lower.

The annual pay back on the 11 year 10 month plan was estimated to require an increase of approximately 1 mill (.98 or .99 of a mill) from 1992 through 1999 and .76 of a mill to .94 of a mill from the year 2000 to 2003.

The annual pay back on the 15 year 10 month plan was estimated to require an increase of between .74 and .82 of a mill from 1992 through 2003 and between .66 of a mill and .71 of a mill from 2004 through 2007.

All of the figures are estimated and are based on an assumed interest rate of 7.5 percent and assumed growth in the school district's state equalized value (SEV) of six percent in 1992, five percent in 1993, four percent in 1994 and three percent in each succeeding year. School business manager Rich Kelly called those figures very conservative.

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a home's SEV. SEV is half of a home's theoretical market value.

All school board members with the exception of Doris Pearl voted in favor of the 11 year 10 month pay back. Pearl was absent from the meeting.

Church music is like chili

Church music is kind of like chili. Depending primarily on the maker, it can range from wonderful to awful.

Sitting in the Easter service at the Charlevoix Community Church of God on Huribut Street Sunday morning, I suddenly felt a measure of pity for people attending other services. While people at the service I attended were fortunate enough to be listening to wonderful music, I knew in my heart that other folks, many with more delicate ears than mine, had to make do with less. Poor souls.

A quartet of Larry and Jackie Boog and Dan and Lynn Crowley sang two times Sunday. They were superb. On the chili scale of church music, the quartet's music would have been at the very least a top contender in the big cook-off.

During one of the songs, my 16-month-old daughter, who was parked on her mother's lap, began swinging and swaying to the beat. Despite the inherent restrictions of Sunday-go-to-meetin' shoes, many adults in the congregation took to tapping their toes.

The quartet music was followed with a piano duet by Barb and Amy Shupert. This too was entertaining and enjoyable.

Although it was a duet, there was only one piano involved. I believe the appropriate term for such piano music is "a four-handed number." The piano is a wonderful instrument that way. Two people can play it at once. You can't do that with other instruments.

When I was in junior high school, I played the trombone a bit. Imagine two people trying to play a single trombone at the same time. Obviously, it would be one too many. In fact, I soon found that even when I played the trombone alone, it was obviously one too many. I gave it up. The world of music was quick to recover from the loss.

Although it wasn't a Methodist church I attended Sunday, I considered the music to be "virtually Methodist." Any time I hear church music that I enjoy, I consider it to be "virtually Methodist."

This stems from my college days when my roommates and I used to attend churches by streaks. None of us were too hung up on denominational debates so we went to various churches around the little college town. Which service we attended usually depended on which one we woke up in time to make. If we got up in time, we were Presbyterians. If we slept longer, we became Methodists. Sometimes, when we really had a tough time getting out of bed, we found our selves to be Lutherans.

Each of the churches had its own appeal. But the Methodist church in that town had far and away the best music. You couldn't attend more than one service at this particular church before it became obvious that there was a church where the choir gave a hoot about music and every hoot they gave was right on key. This choir was a group that believed in making unto the Lord a "joyful noise," not just any noise.

For a while this church's musical prowess was a mystery to me. I figured it had something to do with the people in the choir, but I couldn't be certain. For all I knew, it might have just been something about that particular building that made the hymns sound better. Perhaps like Carnegie Hall, sound carried properly because the building was designed to have excellent acoustics.

Eventually, I found out how that Methodist church got such a good sound. I got talking to another student after one of the services. This student happened to be a music major. According to the student, several members of the choir were professors from the faculty of the university's music department. No wonder they sang well.

The Lutheran Church in that town was kind of interesting. It was very much a student-oriented church. Their music tended to be less traditional. It was more folk music, leaning more to guitars than pipe organs.

I knew one of the students who played guitar at that church. He was an interesting guy, a free and versatile musician. One of the things he did was to take the music from popular modern songs and incorporate the words from religious songs. This mix of music and words produced hybrid songs, which felt somewhere between hymns and tunes by the Beatles. I know it sounds bizarre, but when you heard them they weren't half bad. The guy also did a commendable impersonation of Elvis, but to the best of my knowledge he never sang "Jailhouse Rock" in church.

...DDA coordinator

Metcalf said the chamber already does several things in an effort to benefit both the downtown area and the rest of the community. She said the contract with whoever is hired would be for one year.

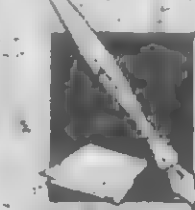

City manager Mike Wiesner indicated that although the contract would be for one year, he hopes the council will look at the program as something which would continue if it is successful. He said that thus far DDA funds have been invested to address the physical needs of the downtown area. He added that he felt this type of investment, into the business climate needs, should have a greater return on the dollar.

Council member Cheri Hoffman asked Robert Hoffman if the person hired would be seeking community input in regard to what type of stores the community wants to see attracted to the downtown area. Robert Hoffman replied that he feels that would be an important aspect of the coordinator's job. He said that in order for businesses to operate year-around, they will have to appeal to year-around residents as well as summer residents.

Bruce MacArthur asked the council what type of qualifications they would be looking for in a coordinator. Mayor Dave Novotny indicated that criteria hasn't been fine-tuned yet, but the coordinator assignment could go to a person or perhaps some type of firm.

All council members present at the meeting voted in favor of the amendment. Council member Ted Felter was absent.

In addition to the $16,000 for a coordinator, the budget amendment included $2,000 for an architectural study of the building which houses the Chamber of Commerce and Municipal Marina offices. That study will be jointly funded by the chamber.

Senior center needs support

How many of you nice people have seen the new Senior Center of Charlevoix? It's an annex to the old Charlevoix Township Hall. The hall was donated to the senior citizens from the Township residents via ballot vote.

The new building was erected so the Charlevoix seniors would have a place to have weekly luncheons, continued education, arts and crafts, exercise classes and many other activities to get the seniors out of the rocking chair, which means a more fruitful, healthful, and longer life.

The new building is up and enclosed, but the interior drywall, paint, electrical and plumbing fixtures, kitchen equipment, table and chairs, and a lift for the handicapped are needed.

The big problem is of course no money. I'm talking big bucks. Just about $30,000 would take care of these needed items. Unfortunately, the State grant has been exhausted.

These senior citizens worked hard all their lives, paid their taxes to improve the city, contributed to many needy organizations, and no doubt helped sponsor the very church you are attending. They have a Fund Raiser Drive. Your name will be put on a plaque if you donate $100 or more. Wouldn't it be sensational if some of the manufacturers and merchants as well as residents of the community contributed to this worthwhile project. Consider it an investment. Sooner or later, we all can use the facility.

Drop in at the County State Bank on Bridge Street and take a look at the scale model of the Senior Center. There is also a glass jar so you can make a donation. Let's give these Seniors a much deserved break! Perhaps you would like to donate one or more of the items needed. You can contact Sherri Black, the director at 547-5361.

Thank you,
Rita Orlovski

Charlevoix Elementary PTA plans annual Spring Carnival

The Charlevoix Elementary School Spring Carnival will welcome students back to school next week.

Sponsored by the Charlevoix Elementary PTA, the carnival gets underway 5:30 p.m. Friday, April 12, at the elementary school and runs until 8 p.m.

Games, prizes, face painting, balloons and fun carnival food will highlight the event which raises funds for special equipment and projects at the school.

Games will include the Bean Bag Toss, Putt Putt Golf, Knock the Cans Down, Alley Oop, Fish Bowl, Sucker Tree, Obstacle Course and a Cookie-Cake Walk among others. The Charlevoix Co-op Nursery School will offer games for pre-school children in its room.

Other activities like face painting, helium balloons, jewelry engraving and rookier decorating are sure to delight carnival goers, too.

Back by popular demand this year are live goldfish which will be given away as prizes for one of the games. New this year will be the sale of goldfish bowls and other equipment, with part of the proceeds going to the carnival.

Other new prizes include the very popular "bubble necklaces."

Food will include pizza by the slice, nachos and cheese, hot dogs, pop milk, malteds and ice cream treats.

Tickets for the food, games and activities cost 25 cents each and will be sold at the door the night of the carnival. Most games will take two tickets. Some will take three.

Food and drinks also will take several tickets.

So that all elementary school children can enjoy the carnival, an anonymous donor has agreed to provide tickets for several needy children from each grade. The PTA will match this generous donation to make the carnival a special event for all. Teachers will identify children for this special donation.

Also adding excitement to the carnival is a raffle featuring a getaway weekend for two at the Terrace Club Quality Inn, Grand Rapids. A breakfast buffet and $100 cash are included in the package.

A total of 27 Charlevoix merchants donated to the raffle making it one of the largest ever. All prizes are valued at $15 or more with most worth $25 or more. Among the other raffle prizes are a 5-inch portable color TV, three $50 savings bonds, two car detailing packages, 1992 Mount McSaubia ski pass, children's birthday parties at Burger King and McDonalds, older children's pizza party at Pizza Hut, brunch for five at Nanny's Old Place, lunch for two at Stafford's Weathervane, dinner for two at Terry's Place, $45 worth of Waste Management garbage bags, Charlevoix sweatshirt, herbal wreath, fishing equipment, theater passes, bowling passes and much more.

Tickets for the raffle are $1 or six for $5. Tickets will be available only during the carnival.

Carnival organizers have been delighted by the community support for the event. More than 40 businesses have donated to the carnival.

"I've been really impressed," said Sally Sikavitsas of the donations. "Even with the economy tightening it's clear that Charlevoix businesses think young children are important and want to do the little extras for them."

Volunteers still are needed to work the games and supervise activities. Sign-up letters were sent home last week with students. Parents or grandparents and friends of the elementary school who would like to help out should contact carnival chairwoman Jenny Martinus, 547-9629, for more information.

Opinions voiced on new superintendent selection

By Scott Swanson

Help Wanted: Charlevoix School District seeking new superintendent. Man or woman hired must possess vision to set district's educational goals. Must be willing to take risks and be held accountable. Must be able to articulate school district needs to community. In coming years will deal with issues which may include: hiring new teachers to replace retiring staff members; incorporating technological advances into school curriculum; new construction to replace an aging middle school building; cost containment; static or declining enrollment. Advantages of position include competitive salary and northern Michigan living conditions.

That hypothetical want ad incorporates the concerns and desires expressed to Kara Funk at a March 27 public meeting. Funk, who is assisting the school board in its search for a new superintendent, hosted the meeting in an effort to find out what members of the community are looking for in a school superintendent.

Between 25 and 30 people attended the meeting. School board members were not present. Funk listed feelings expressed by people at the meeting and will convey those feelings to school board members were not present. Funk listed feelings expressed by people dent, Gordon VanWieren, announced his retirement this winter and will conclude his service to the school system in June. Funk said the time table the board is operating under calls for a new superintendent to be in place by Sept. 1.

Funk is a consultant from the Michigan Association of School Boards (MASB). Charlevoix's school board is employing her to assist them in establishing candidate criteria, locating candidates and developing interview criteria. She will not interview candidates nor will she make recommendations as to who the board hires. Funk's services will cost the school district $3,000 plus up to $750 for expenses.

In her introductory comments at the March 27 meeting, Funk said that hiring a superintendent is "the most important thing a board ever does." She said the search for a new superintendent will be nationwide, but that in recent months there has been a dwindling in the number of qualified candidates.

Funk, who has assisted several other school districts in a similar manner, called the crowd of 25 to 30 people an extremely good turnout for a public input session. She said that in many communities the turnout for such a meeting is not more than half-a-dozen people. In addition to the public input meeting, Funk has met with numerous other school board members in a similar manner, called the crowd of 25 to 30 people an extremely good Ministerial Association.

Discussion at the public input session was broken down into four categories: Strengths of the school district; critical issues; the new superintendent will face in the next three to five years; important duties of the superintendent; and qualifications the new superintendent should possess.

Strengths of the school district raised at the meeting included: geographic location, financial condition, cultural diversity, large professional community and community support.

Critical issues facing the school district included those mentioned in the hypothetical help wanted ad at the beginning of this story.

Some people at the meeting said they would like to see a new superintendent who has some professional experience outside of the field of education. These people felt that such a person could bring new and innovative approaches into Charlevoix's school system.

To be eligible for the superintendent's position a candidate must have a Masters degree plus an additional 30 hours of educational course work. Given that criteria, Charlevoix won't be hiring someone with a background completely separate from the established educational system. However Funk Charlevoix's school system.

professions for a while and are now coming back into education. There also may be candidates who began their careers in another field and later switched into education.

The school board met immediately following the public input session and established a tentative schedule for interviews. The deadline for applications will be May 17. The board will paper screen to final candidates May 22. Interviews will take place May 28, 30 and 31. The board is likely to interview five to eight candidates. Paper screening of candidates is likely to be done in a closed session, but the interviews will be public.

Local Odd Fellows contribute to Grandvue

The Charlevoix International Order of Odd Fellows chapter #293 also known as Round Lake Lodge recently contributed $600 to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility to refurbish one of the rooms. Grandvue officials had sent a list of facility needs to various public service groups in the area. The local Odd Fellows selected the room project from the list.

The Odd Fellows are also making plans for the annual spring Invitational Field Day for handicapped children which they cosponsor with other Charlevoix service groups.

BEACONS

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton

A note to our brothers and sisters in Christ at Charlevoix Assembly: I, for one, hope you will consider making "The Victor," an annual Easter tradition. There is something truly soul stirring about seeing the last days of Jesus brought to life. To take the Bible's most dramatic and glorious moments and put them in flesh and blood form takes a special anointing. You were blessed with one.

Whether you saw that drama or not, I hope you recognize something. As a believer, God is looking to you to put flesh and blood into the life of Christ every day. You are not just His child. You are the one He is looking to to carry on the ministry of His Son in our world.

If Jesus is at home in your heart, you know the difference He makes. You have been encouraged by His compassion. You have been renewed by His grace. Your hopes have been stirred by His vision. You are aware of His guiding hand in all that you do.

Don't you agree that there are others that need His indwelling presence too? Never forget who God called to reach them. Never forget who He has asked to be His flesh and blood in today's world. Why else do you think the church is known as the body of Christ?

In the Community Good Friday service, Terry Salmonson portrayed a roman soldier. He went through the audience and recruited members for his crucifixion party. The sound of nails piercing wood is one that you will never forget. Many sanctuaries include the cross in their decor. Remember that God's son hung on a cross for you. He paid the penalty for your sins, washed away your guilt, and brought peace to match every fear.

I'm afraid that so many are in a hurry to forget the Christmas season on December 26, an equal number will put Easter behind them on this April Fools' week. If the very real presence of our Lord can get pushed out of your heart that easily, then something is wrong.

We need to live and breathe the spirit of our Lord more and more. The tears I saw in more than one person's eyes Sunday night testify to that. The tears I shed at the foot of the cross this holy week will not let me forget that God loves you and I love you too.

Mayoral appointments approved

Six Commission and committee appointments made by mayor Dave Novotny received city council approval Monday evening.

The appointments were: Mary Feindt and Hugh Mason reappointed to four-year terms on the Downtown Development Authority.

Barbara MacArthur reappointed to the Shade Tree Commission.

Hal Hill reappointed to the Compensation Committee.

Nancy Wood reappointed and Mel Renaud appointed to three-year terms on the Planning Commission. Renaud replaces Russ Lewis who did not seek reappointment.

City attorney James Young has also advised Novotny that in order for the city to comply with state statutes the Planning Commission is going to have to be expanded from seven to nine members. Novotny has instructed Young and city planner Gerry Harsch to begin the paperwork which will lead to the expansion.

Grandvue hires new administrator

Penny Drury, who has served as office manager of Grandvue Medical Care Facility for the last seven years, has been appointed supervisor of the facility. She will assume her duties April 5, succeeding Regina Shafer, who has accepted a position with Beacon-Dongan Manor in Fort Myers, Florida.

Drury is only the fourth supervisor in Grandvue history. Hilda Haulip-Watkins took over the job in 1949 and served for 28 years, retiring in 1977. She was followed by Ron Conkle, who served for 10 years, until 1987, when Shafer was appointed. Appointments are made by the County Social Services Board, which oversees operation of Grandvue.

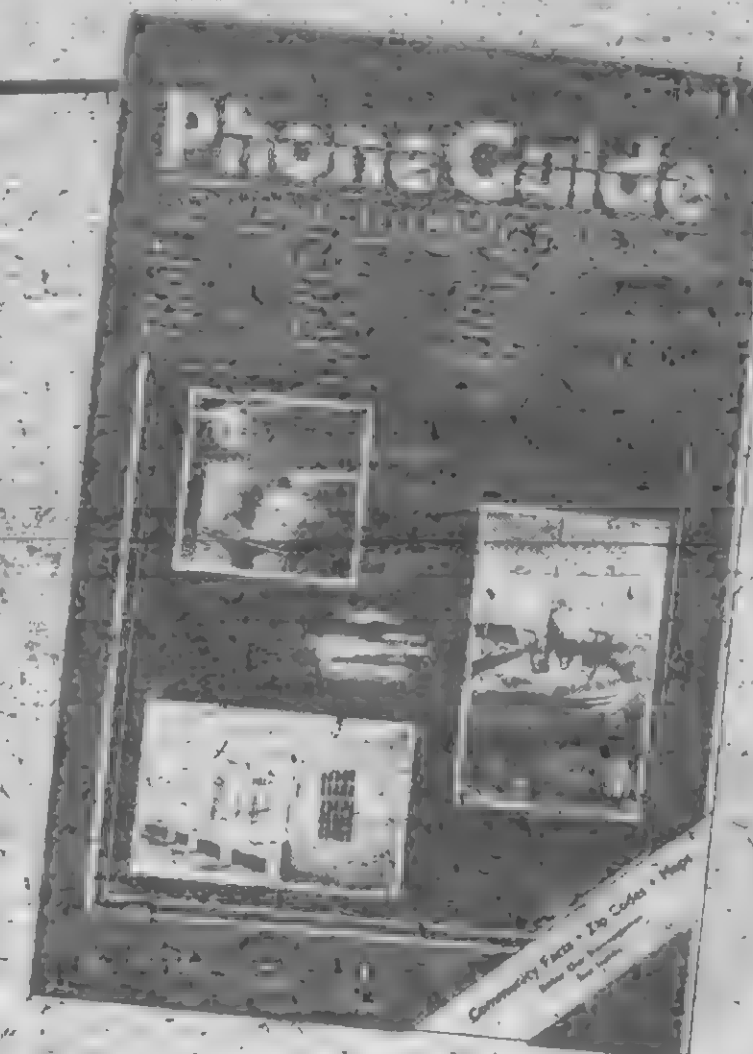

The new supervisor grew up in Florida and moved north because she and her family liked the area and wanted to be near friends here. They live in Wilson Township.

In addition to her duties at Grandvue and at home, Drury is continuing her studies in a Central Michigan University program for Health Services Administration. She has a diploma from Michigan State University as a Licensed Nursing Home Administrator.

Project WILD workshop offered at nature station

Calling all teachers, parents, camp counselors and other youth leaders interested in wildlife! SEE-North (Science and Environmental Education-North) will sponsor a Project WILD workshop on Saturday, April 13 at the University of Michigan Biological Station, from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Project WILD is a nationally acclaimed wildlife education program for children in kindergarten through high school, and has been eagerly received by educators in 48 other states. The premises for Project WILD's approach is simple: wildlife is a source of fascination and interest to almost everyone who is given an opportunity to experience it, and, using Project WILD, children and their teachers or leaders can experience wildlife in many different ways. For example, they might learn about animal adaptations through a lively activity called "Quick-Frozen Critters," discover the diversity of wildlife through "Interview a Spider," create their own birds in "Adaptation Artistry," or struggle with land-use decisions in "Dragonfly Pond."

Project WILD activities are interdisciplinary. They teach basic wildlife concepts while teaching basic educational skills: Reading, writing, math, social studies and art are woven into the curriculum, which begins with simple awareness of wildlife and ends with responsible human actions toward wildlife and the environment. The program was designed to help students and teachers understand sound biological principles, and to help students learn "how" to think, not "what" to think about issues that affect people, wildlife and their shared home, earth.

Project WILD is sponsored in Michigan by the Michigan Alliance for Environmental and Outdoor Education. SEE-North staff members who are trained as Project WILD facilitators will lead the workshop on April 13. The cost for the workshop is $30, and includes lunch, and Elementary or Secondary Project WILD guide, and an Aquatic Project WILD guide. This is a popular workshop, so register now if you want to get WILD! For more information, call 539-8406.

This sketch shows what the new First State Bank building will look like. Bank officials want to begin construction this spring and be in the new building within a year.

Site plan for new bank approved

A site plan for a new First State Bank building received the approval of the city council Monday evening. The new bank building will be located at the corner of Clinton and State Streets, on the other side of Clinton Street in relation to the bank's present building. The new bank will be larger than the current one; Architect Lonnie Zimmerman explained that the new building will have two stories, including a 5,000 square foot first floor where the majority of the banking operations will take place. The second story will be leased as office space until bank operations require additional space.

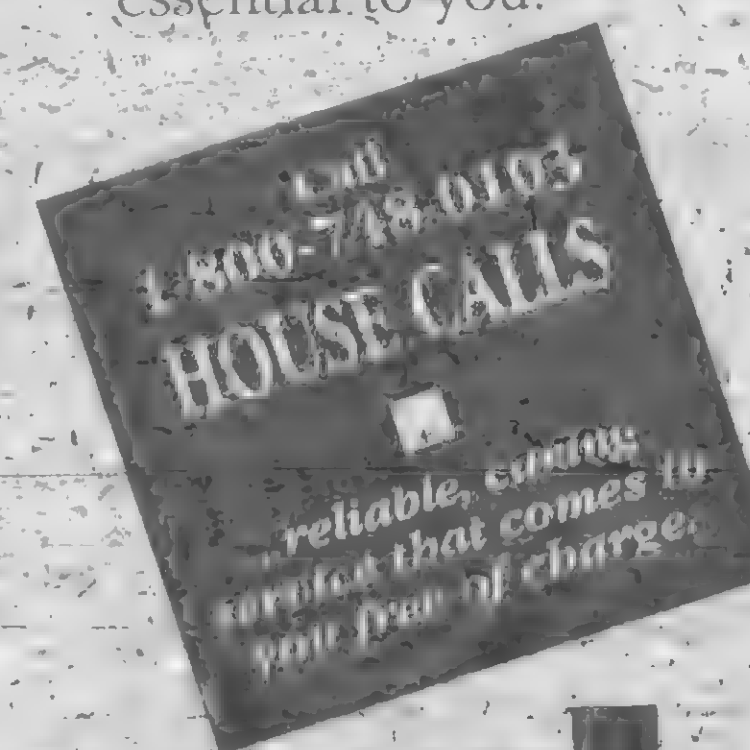

Zimmerman said the bank has been designed to be architecturally compatible with surrounding buildings. It features a stone entryway, white wood siding and cedar roofing.

At the planning commission and council meetings there was some concern voiced about the building creating additional traffic in the alley between Clinton and Mason Streets. People weren't concerned about bank traffic using the alley to get back onto State Street, but they were concerned about people taking the alley around to Mason Street. Bank president Lou Hollow said that if it will appease those who are concerned, he will put a "left turn only" sign at the driveway to the alley.

BUSINESS

Local plant among the leaders in the wire industry

By Ralph McRae

Hoskins Manufacturing got its start 84 years ago in Chicago. The company was founded by Albert Marsh whose patent on a technique for combining nickel and chromium created a new industry.

The technique made it possible to make wire which previously melted down in three hours able to handle electricity for years. This allowed manufacturers to produce toasters, irons, hair and clothes dryers, toasters, water heaters and heat treating devices. Marsh's scientific achievements became known throughout the world and his company patented 150 special alloys involving wire products.

After moving to Detroit in 1905, the company prospered and outgrew its factory space. Both World Wars generated additional business for the company.

Marsh died in 1944. Several years later, a company official who spent summers in Walloon Lake selected a site on M-66 south of Charlevoix as the location for a new Hoskins plant. That plant was built in 1960, doubled in size in 1966 and made major improvements to its warehouse facilities in 1989.

The Charlevoix plant is one of five in the Hoskins group. Two of the others are also in Michigan - in Mio and Hamburg. Another is in Indiana. The fifth is in Kildare, Ireland to secure a foothold in the European market.

The plant in Hamburg serves as the home office and is the home of the sales, purchasing, engineering, accounting and management departments. Foundries at the Hamburg plant produce the metal alloys. These alloys are cold pressed into rods and then into one-inch rods. The rods are shipped to Mio and Paris for intermediate downsizing and reduction to spools and rolls of wire. The spools of wire are then delivered to Charlevoix to be finished.

Charlevoix's Hoskins plant encompasses more than an acre and includes shipping and receiving departments along with a massive processing area. The processing area includes a vast array of machinery which thins, flattens, strands and braid wire from the spools. The machines operate 24 hours a day. Some of the employees oversee and control banks of wire.

Wire is pulled through diamond dies. One mile of wire can be drawn out to 100 miles of wire. All of the working parts must be cooled by heat dissipating fluids. Wires constantly move up and down, around and through inlets and outlets.

Wire coming out of several machines are guided into the center of a twisting apparatus. The strands are twisted into small cables. These cables, later coiled and cut into 8 foot lengths, become the heating elements for many dryers. Miles of flattened wire, coiled on spools are sent to the AC Spark plug company. Smaller wires go into thermo-couplers, some of which were used to record the heat of jet engines on US fighter planes. Trucks in Operation Desert Storm had wires from Charlevoix to help keep motors from overheating.

Some of the wires go through progressively smaller dies until they are almost invisible. It takes 100 of the smallest wires to make a strand 1/16th inch thick.

Before leaving the factory, most of the wire must be annealed. The wires pass through heated pipe in a de-oxygenated atmosphere. This makes the wire less brittle, more flexible and leaves it with a clean bright surface. Finished spools of wire weigh between a quarter of a pound and 1,000 pounds.

When diamond dies become out of round, they are reground for use in larger openings. Wire rejected during inspection is returned to the foundry.

The local Hoskins plant employs 68 people, 64 of them women. The average wage is $10.14 hourly plus health insurance. Perfect attendance for 73 days gives a person one week day credit. An unplanned day absence is difficult to cover.

The shop is not unionized. Instead a committee of three women negotiates management when necessary.

Barbara Skeel recently retired after working at the plant for almost 30 years and serving as plant manager for the past 13 years. Mary Reibel, a plant inspector, has been with the company for 29 years.

The plant's annual payroll is approximately $1.3 million. Hoskins annual property taxes exceed $20,000. The electric demand at the plant brings the Charlevoix City Electric Department monthly payments of approximately $11,000.

The Armada Corporation of Detroit went from being a major stockholder to full owner of the Hoskins company in 1974. The Armada Corporation also owns a tool corporation, the world's largest producer of welding rods. Mary Reibel is the chief executive officer of Armada Inc.

Michael A. Paliwoda recently succeeded Skeel as plant manager. Paliwoda previously managed the Mio plant. His family is currently in West Branch, but will soon be in Charlevoix.

New Probate Court programs help control costs

Members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners received good news last week from Judge Frederick R. Mulhauser of Probate Court.

He presented a report showing that last year Probate Court expenditures dropped $204,346 from 1989. The savings were spread throughout both the Child Care budget and the General Fund.

Child Care costs have long been a problem in Charlevoix County. As far back as the fiscal year 1984-1985, these costs amounted to $312,000. This caused then County Board chairman Lee Moerland to write to the State Director of Social Services for help, explaining that this cost represented "16 percent of the revenue we generate from property taxes." Costs were even higher in succeeding years until 1988, when the costs were $338,219.02.

Last year's Child Care costs were cut to $201,041.23. While many factors contributed to the reduction in Child Care costs, Judge Mulhauser notes that the greatest reduction was in foster care placement. This is a direct result of the philosophy of the Court of keeping children at home while providing intensive services.

When children are placed out of home or receive other Court services at county expense, the Court sets reimbursement levels for parents. When juveniles or adults are legitimately liable to pay required reimbursements, they are assigned work in the community.

The Court has also developed a non-secure detention home where young people who are sentenced to short term out-of-home placement can serve their time on weekends and during school vacations. This keeps them in school, in home, and in the community while still giving the message that loss of liberty may result from crime.

Also, delinquents who are suspended from school are required to attend "court school" during their suspension. Court school runs to 5 p.m. and is a constant study regime. Saturday school is also held. Young offenders are required to perform community service hours in addition to making restitution.

The Court's Diversion program is credited with keeping 63 young people away from the Court last year. This program is designed to reach young offenders early to prevent escalation to more serious crimes. Two volunteer programs have also cut the Court's caseload. Community members volunteer to work as Big Brothers/Big Sisters in "Volunteer in Probation" and as facilitators between delinquents and the injured parties to resolve the payment of restitution in the "Victim Offender Reconciliation" program.

This year, the Court will operate a Community Garden project with the help of community contributions for tools, seeds, and garden space.

All of these programs were carried out under the supervision of Court Administrator David A. Biter.

The decrease in costs did not mean a decrease in work load for Probate Court. The report shows there were 264 Probate hearings and 699 Juvenile hearings. The latter resulted in the acceptance of 173 delinquent cases and 40 neglect-abuse cases. In 1989, there were 303 Probate hearings and 310 Juvenile hearings.

When the Court began its 1989-1990 fiscal year, it had 52 delinquent cases and 42 neglect-abuse cases. When it ended the year, it had 114 delinquent cases and 32 neglect-abuse cases.

General Fund expenditure reductions were made largely in professional and contract services, Court ward transportation, and attorney fees. Much of this reduction is the result of Court policy requiring agencies to use their sliding scale pay fees, foster parents providing transportation, parents providing directly for services.

In the report's "Looking Ahead" section, Judge Mulhauser describes the Family First project, which is just getting under way. Court workers will respond to family crises on a seven-day 24-hour call basis to help prevent Court placements.

Also for future development, some Court workers have been trained in substance abuse assessments to help handle the increasing number of these problems.

The non-secure detention home may be modified to provide for respite care to keep families together while working on their problems. This would decrease long term out-of-home placements.

All of these "Looking Ahead" programs are designed to cut the number of out-of-home, out-of-county treatments of juveniles which can cost as much as $350 a day.

IT MAKES SENSE. NOT JUST MONEY.

Cash Management CHECKING

People who do business on Wall Street manage their money every day to get the highest return. So what about those of us who live and work on Main Street? There's a very attractive answer. The Cash Management Checking account from First of America. Every day, it automatically invests your money to get you a highly competitive return.

And, from now until June 30, 1991, it earns a bonus rate of 7.25 percent APR on balances over $5,000. All it takes is $1,000 to open. And it's FDIC insured up to the full extent allowed by law at one of America's best-run, most stable banks.

Available on individual accounts only, you can write all the checks you want. Balances over $5,000 (after June 30) are invested daily at a rate tied to the weekly average Federal Fund rate, the same rate that banks earn on overnight deposits of a million dollars or more. Below $5,000 you earn our money market checking rate. Contact your local banker for current rate information.

Open a Cash Management Checking account today. Because for most of us, it makes sense. Not just money.

ORV licensing changed

Beginning April 1, off-road vehicles (ORVs) are now licensed through the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and must display ORV decals to operate in Michigan.

The license decals must be purchased annually from the DNR for a 12-month period, beginning April 1 and ending March 31 of the following year. Only owners of unexpired ORV registrations previously obtained through the Department of State for a three-year period do not need to renew licenses.

A new ORV law transferred the ORV licensing process to the DNR from the Department of State in Michigan last year. Tiding of ORVs will continue to be handled through Secretary of State offices, beginning April 1.

Cost of the new ORV license decals is $7 this year to both residents and non-residents. They are available at ORV dealerships, the DNR regional and district offices, at the DNR License Control Section of (517-373-1220) in Lansing. They are available by mail by contacting the DNR License Control, ORV, Box 30181, Lansing 48909.

DNR regional and district offices can provide a list of ORV dealers where the licenses may be purchased.

Parents beware of strept throat cases

Parents should be aware that cases of strept throat have been reported to the Health Department. Although this is common during the school year and easily treated with antibiotics, an aggressive form of streptococcal disease has been reported in the United States and possibly in Michigan.

An individual with strept throat may have any of the following basic symptoms: fever, sore throat, enlarged and inflamed tonsils, and tender and swollen lymph nodes in the neck area. There may be few symptoms. High fever, headache, nausea and vomiting may accompany severe infections. Sometimes you can have a rash which is often mistaken for another childhood illness such as roseola or measles.

Strept throat with a rash (scarlet fever) has been reported in the area. Untreated people may develop middle ear infections, mastoiditis, and throat and neck abscesses. Other important problems are heart (rheumatic fever) and kidney (glomerulonephritis) disease. Although not a problem locally, rheumatic fever outbreaks have been reported nationally and appear to be increasing. Recent reports of invasive disease, causing blood borne disease, a toxic-shock syndrome, wide-spread tissue infection, and pneumonia have become a concern in the United States. Therefore, it is very important to see a physician when you or your children are ill.

Parents should be aware of the fact that strept throat is a treatable illness. Antibiotics will prevent most complications to include rheumatic heart disease. Therefore, the Health Department urges parents to contact their family doctors if they think their children may have strept throat, even if they feel better in a few days. Children should not return to school, day care or nursery setting until at least 24 hours after beginning antimicrobial therapy. And until they are afebrile. Close contact with other children during this time should be avoided.

Handle eggs with caution

While the risk of contracting an illness such as salmonellosis from raw or undercooked eggs is extremely small, eggs are a perishable product and should be treated as such. Proper storage and cooking of eggs are necessary to prevent the growth of potentially harmful bacteria.

Special precautions are needed, however, when eggs are served or sold to people in high-risk categories who are particularly vulnerable to Salmonella infections: the very young, the elderly, pregnant women (because of risk to the fetus), and people already weakened by serious illness or whose immune systems are weakened.

Consumers at home should be aware of the following:

1. Avoid serving raw eggs and food containing raw eggs (i.e. Caesar salad, Mofandaise sauce, and cookie dough). Products such as homemade mayonnaise, ice cream, and eggnog should also be avoided, but commercial forms of these products are safe to serve since they are made with pasteurized eggs.

2. Cook eggs thoroughly until both yolk and white are firm, not runny. There may be some risk in serving eggs lightly cooked, soft-cooked, soft-scrambled, or sunny-side up, for example.

3. Realize that serving lightly cooked foods containing eggs (i.e. meringues and French toast) may be particularly risky for people with weakened immune systems and other high-risk groups.

Egg Handling Practices (Shell Eggs) should include the following:

1. Use grade AA or A eggs with clean, uncracked shells. Do not wash eggs before storing or using them. Washing and sanitizing shell eggs is a routine part of commercial egg processing; rewashing is unnecessary and may be harmful.

2. Practice good rotation of eggs in your home refrigerator. Buy only the amount needed for prompt turnover; time, first in, first out.

3. Leave eggs in their original container. Refrigerate as soon as they are delivered, and keep refrigerated at a temperature between 30 degrees and 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

4. Use shell eggs within two to three weeks of purchase. Use left-over yolks and/or whites within four days. Never leave them out of refrigeration for more than two hours.

5. Serve cooked eggs and egg-rich food immediately after cooking, or refrigerate once for serving later. When refrigerating, do so in a manner that will insure the item will cook quickly (i.e. shallow dish, several small dishes, etc.).

6. Refrigerate hard-cooked eggs and use within a week of hardcooking. This includes Easter eggs.

Clarification

Confusion between Charlevoix school officials and the News-Review has been resolved. A story in the March 22 Courier about the March 20 school board meeting referred to a school official saying he called the News-Review about a notice for a public hearing, but no notice was published. An official from the News-Review says from subsequently called the Courier and said they were unaware of a request for a notice. Since that time, the school official has talked to the News-Review to clear up the matter. He called, but due to a miscommunication no notice was published.

Agencies join to celebrate children

Imagine... a place where more than 20 community service agencies will honor children from birth to 12 years with fun, educational events and hands-on activities.

Imagine... an event where your family can learn about dental care for children, learn how to rollerblade safely, and explore firetrucks and police cars.

You really don't have to imagine this at all. These events and more are part of a free, special Health Fair in celebration of "April - Month of the Young Child." Sponsored by Northern Michigan Hospitals' Center for Women and Children, in conjunction with Burns Clinic and several community agencies, the fair will be held from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 10, at NMH.

The all-day fair is tailored for children and families. Children are invited to bring their dolls and Teddy bears to the fair for a health "check-up." There will be story telling by Ron Fowler, a sing-along with Sean Ryan from 7-8 p.m. in the Algonquin Room (hospital cafeteria), and plenty of your favorite characters to help you wind your way through the Health Fair route including Big Bird and a Ninja Turtle.

Parents, too, will learn valuable educational material through child care resource booths. Material on health awareness activities, emergency and safety education, as well as car seat and food safety tips will be available.

Area School children were asked to create a mural relating to the Health Fair themes. "Imagine..." Paint, magic markers, crayons and chalk were used to help students express themselves. The collected murals are being displayed throughout NMH during "April - Month of the Young Child."

Community agencies participating in the April 10 Health Fair include Woodland Counseling Center, District Health Department Number 3, The Studio, Life+Link ambulance, Emmet County Department of Social Services, the Kiwanis of Michigan Foundation, Little Traverse Conservancy, C.O.P., Intermediate School District, Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood, the Petoskey Department of Public Safety, Bannock Sports, Petoskey Public Schools, Petoskey Pediatrics, MSU Cooperative Extension Service, Petoskey Children's Nursery, the Women's Resource Center, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, and the Northwest 4-C's Council.

Children and families are asked to enter near the tent by Gamble Auditorium. For more information about the free Health Fair, contact HealthAccess at 1-800-248-6777.

Police arrest suspect, recover body in murder case

By L. Scott Swanson

Andrew J. Wynkoop faces charges of first degree murder, kidnapping and first degree criminal sexual conduct in the disappearance and death of Katherine McCleese.

The 28-year-old Charlevoix woman disappeared from a party near Bay Shore, March 23. Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater and Sgt. Mike Wheat arrested Wynkoop, 19 of Charlevoix, Thursday, April 4.

Friday, police found McCleese's body near the entrance of Fisher's Island State Park, known locally as Bell's Bay. Based on autopsy results, law enforcement officers believe McCleese was sexually assaulted and manually strangled.

Although Wynkoop wasn't arrested until April 4, court records indicate he became a prime suspect soon after the investigation began.

The party took place late Friday, March 22 and went into the early morning hours of March 23. Lasater said his officers have interviewed more than 140 people who attended the party.

One of the people interviewed was a woman who said that she was sitting in a parked car at the party when a man started rattling the door and attempting to open it. The woman locked the car. The man shouted something and subsequently walked away. According to court records, this took place around 1:30 a.m.

After the man walked away from the car, the woman returned to the party, but saw McCleese walking toward the area where the cars were parked. About 15 minutes later the woman and another man, who was a friend of McCleese, went to check on her, but did not find her.

On March 26, the woman picked Wynkoop out of a photo line-up, identifying him as the man who approached her car.

During one of several searches of the area near the party site, police found McCleese's shoes and jacket.

Police also interviewed a friend of Wynkoop's who had gone to the party with him, but left with someone else. McCleese's shoes and jacket were found in an area between McCleese's truck and where Wynkoop had parked.

Police obtained a warrant to search Wynkoop's car, a 1976 Buick 4-door with a white top and maroon body. Police found a shovel in the trunk of the car. There was dried mud and dirt on the point of the shovel and the handle appeared to have been recently broken.

Strands of blonde hair were also found in the car and on a blanket in the car. Blood stains were also found on the blanket. The hair and blood stains were analyzed by the Michigan State Police crime lab in Grayling.

On March 26, after obtaining a warrant, Lasater seized a black leather jacket belonging to Wynkoop. The crime lab found a spot of blood on the jacket as well as what appeared to be pink lipstick. Two tubes of pink lipstick were found in McCleese's purse which was in her truck.

Lasater and Wheat placed

Wynkoop under arrest following a lengthy interview at the sheriff's department office. According to Charlevoix County Prosecutor

Only two incumbents file for school board

Only incumbents Ken Boss and Ben Cunningham filed petitions for school board seats prior to the deadline 4 p.m., April 8 deadline.

Boss is seeking to a one-year term which is the remainder of a term initially won by Janet Rathke. Rathke resigned when she moved to another community. Boss was appointed to fill out the year until the June election. Boss is a long-time board member who had taken some time off prior to being appointed to fill out Rathke's term.

Cunningham has served on the board for the past year, filling out the term of Bob Drenth who was killed in a 1989 traffic accident. Cunningham is now seeking a four-year term.

The school district general election will take place June 10.

The school board is currently in the process of seeking a replacement for superintendent Gordon VanWieren. VanWieren announced his retirement earlier this year and will leave the school system in June.

The board has retained a consultant from the Michigan Association of School Boards to help them in the interviewing process.

Currently, the school has placed ads in educational publications. Board members will paper screen and interview candidates next month.

...Suspect arrested in murder case

Kraag Lieberman, Wynkoop told Lasater where to find the body.
Police began digging for the body Friday morning. The digging was done slowly and meticulously to avoid disturbing evidence in the site. Police found the body early Friday afternoon.
Lasater expressed relief at the conclusion of the intensive investigation. He said he worked closely with McCleese's family during the investigation and said that despite the tragedy of McCleese's death at least her family can get on with their lives. Lasater added that the investigation was assisted by several agencies. He made a special point of acknowledging the work of the State Police crime lab.

Wynkoop was arraigned on an open murder charge Friday morning in 90th District Court. The charge was subsequently amended to first degree murder, first degree criminal sexual conduct and kidnapping.

Bond was denied and attorney Bryan Graham was appointed to defend Wynkoop. A preliminary examination is being rescheduled.

So far there's no new evidence in Kleiber case

Despite public rumors and speculation, police insist that the arrest and arraignment of Andrew J. Wynkoop in the Katherine McCleese case hasn't brought in any new hard evidence in the disappearance of Heather Kleiber.
Wynkoop faces charges of kidnapping, criminal sexual conduct and murder in the death of McCleese. Kleiber disappeared in August of last year. Wynkoop is reported to have been the last person seen with her.

Kleiber was 13 at the time of her disappearance. She and Wynkoop were both at a gathering near Michigan Beach Aug. 16. Wynkoop reportedly told police that Kleiber rode her bike away from the party while he followed her in his car. He said he stopped following her when he turned to go home and she continued toward her destination.

According to court records, Wynkoop's testimony is contradicted in part by other witnesses. The court records also say that Wynkoop failed a polygraph test. Kleiber's disappearance is also the subject of an ongoing one-man grand jury investigation. Wynkoop reportedly has testified before the grand jury.

The Kleiber case has received state and national attention. It was included in a segment of the Fox network television show "America's Most Wanted" and a picture of the missing girl has been distributed through several means.
Although police say the arrest of Wynkoop has not resulted in any new evidence in the Kleiber case, it has refocused their efforts in the investigation and led them to check into some additional possibilities.

Jail running short of space

A case under District Court in the "On the Record" section of the Courier might read:

"Jack Adams, 23, Charlevoix, impaired driving, $350 fine and costs, six months' suspension of driver's license with restricted license, court referral program, and three days in county jail with credit for one day served; two days held in abeyance."

Court records indicate that instead of serving the full jail sentence, more and more offenders are being given "abeyance" time. This is because the Charlevoix County jail is full for overflowing and there isn't room for everyone being sentenced.

District Court Judge Harvey C. Varnum explained that the major reason for the overcrowding is that downstate prisons are full so offenders from Circuit Court who should be sent downstate to prison are being lodged in the local jail until there is room for them downstate.

Varnum said that days held in abeyance hang over an offender's head the whole time he is on probation. "If he screws up during that time, I'll put him right back in jail," the judge affirmed.

The Charlevoix County jail, which usually houses 14 to 16 offenders, had a population of 39 one day and returned on Friday.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

Consider the following situation: You want to buy something. For this example we'll say an electric coffee maker, but it could be anything.

So you walk into a store and say to the salesman, "I want to buy an electric coffee maker."

And the salesman says, "Have I got an electric coffee maker for you."

The salesman shows you an electric coffee maker and you look it over and it looks all right. It's got a place for the filter, a glass jar to catch the coffee, a handle on the jar and whatever else you might want in an electric coffee maker.

So you say to the salesman, "This looks OK to me. How much does it cost?"

And the salesman says, "You don't get to know how much it costs until after you've agreed to buy it. Just hand me your credit card and you'll find out how much it costs when you get the bill in the mail."

Now if the salesman told you that, what would you do with the coffee maker? Better still, what would you suggest the salesman do with the coffee maker?

Fortunately, business isn't generally conducted that way. The only instance I can think of locally is in teacher contract negotiations. In Charlevoix, as in virtually all other Michigan school districts, not only are contract negotiations secret, but so are the terms of the contract until after it has been ratified. Even after there's a tentative agreement, the public is kept in the dark until the contract is ratified. In other words, even though taxpayers are going to be paying the bill, they don't get to know the cost until after the sale is made.

This is an issue I've been interested in for years. To my mind, there's just no way this secrecy can be justified.

This matter was brought to mind this past week by an article in the Michigan Press Association (MPA)

Bullpen

The article said, "Settlement of a seven-month contract dispute between Traverse City teachers and the school district was followed by an interesting twist after the school district decided to allow the local newspaper to publish the details of the contract well before its ratification."

"The decision to release the full contract to the Traverse City Record-Eagle was unprecedented and unexpected, given that the newspaper had just lost a lawsuit on the issue. The Record-Eagle's suit contended that school districts should be obligated to reveal contract details after a tentative agreement, but before ratification. The newspaper claimed taxpayers had the right to voice their opinion before multi-million dollar contracts are signed and that disclosure would not impede negotiations."

"The 13th Circuit Court ruled against the newspaper - a decision upheld by the state Court of Appeals. The Michigan Supreme Court refused to review the case in December. The newspaper filed a motion for reconsideration in January which was turned down."

"Record-Eagle Publisher Gilbert Bogley said he's pleased with the school district's decision to release contract details because taxpayers will have time to comment on the package before ratification."

"I hope this historical decision in Traverse City sets a precedent for all future public contract negotiations," Bogley was quoted in the Record-Eagle.

And I won't buy any more
Of those you can't take the bottoms off
They'll just sit there in the store.

Letters to the Editor:

New post-war policy needed

Editor,

As Americans celebrate the safe return of the men and women who served in the Persian Gulf and grieve for those Americans who lost their lives, it is important to remember all the victims of the war in the Gulf, not only American victims, not only Kuwaiti victims, but also the hundreds of thousands of Iraqi victims.

Iraq has been "bombed back to the pre-industrial age," according to all sources. Hundreds of thousands of Iraqis are buried in the rubble of Baghdad, Basra and smaller cities.

Iraqi fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, wait vainly for the return of soldiers who never wanted to go to war and now lie in mass battle field graves. Civilian casualties are mounting. Children are dying of diseases directly attributable to the destruction of sewage systems and safe water sources. Those hospitals which still stand lack medicines. Food is scarce. There is a real threat of mass starvation as well as major epidemics.

The United States won a battle in the Middle East. We came out almost physically unscathed, but the price in human suffering is only beginning to be counted.

We must not let the euphoria of victory blind us to the consequences of our policy. Not only is it inhumane to bomb a country and people into oblivion, but the process creates millions of new enemies.

Do we now have a post-war policy for the Middle East which is constructive? How long will our troops occupy parts of southern Iraq? Should the United States use its military might to impose solutions on people whose aspirations, history, and culture we barely comprehend? Does this war in the Persian Gulf herald an American policy of reliance on military solutions to political problems?

To ask questions is a fundamental responsibility of an informed electorate in a democracy. Please join me in asking,

Sincerely,
Sara Gay Dammann

Formal organizer says thanks

Editor,

On behalf of the brothers of Lambda Chi Alpha at Central Michigan University, I would like to thank the City and people of Charlevoix.

Over the past weekend, we participated in our annual Spring Formal which was held at Points North. The Formal was utilized as an opportunity to enhance the brotherhood and a retreat away from Mr. Pleasant and the books. We distributed awards to outstanding members, and enjoyed a fine dinner by Wharfside Deli and hosted at Points North.

As a Charlevoix resident, I am very proud to bring my fellow brothers to the place I grew up and share my hometown with them. They were not disappointed at all. They all enjoyed the scenery and wonderful people of Charlevoix.

We are excited to hold the event here next year. We all shared a wonderful experience.

Thanks to all who helped us and to the City of Charlevoix.

Sincerely yours,
Michael K. Thompson

Letters to the Editor:

Prevent unwanted litters

Editor,

April has been designated as "National Prevent a Litter" month by the Congress of the United States.

The Charlevoix County Humane Society would like to remind all the residents of Charlevoix and surrounding counties of the benefits of having your pets spayed or neutered.

The basic disposition and temperament of your pet will not be changed by removing his or her reproductive capability. Neutering a male can make him more tolerant of other males, but neither neutering or spaying will by itself turn your pet into an obese, lazy animal. That is the result of excess food and insufficient exercise.

Benefits of spaying include not having to worry about accidental breedings, the stress and inconvenience of confining the female in season, and unwanted puppies or kittens. The spayed female dog will not develop uterine infections or tumors of the reproductive system as do many older unspayed females.

Neutered males will not be stressed and upset by the scent of females in season, and are less tempted to wander. The neutered male will not develop testicular cancer and the risk of prostate cancer is lowered.

Pet overpopulation is a national tragedy, but also a tragedy in Northern Michigan.

In Charlevoix County alone last year, 357 of the 683 animals that came through the doors of our shelter were euthanized because no good homes could be found for them.

Pet owners need to understand that they contribute directly to the problem if they let their pets have even one litter. There simply aren't enough homes for all the dogs and cats that are born every hour of every day. For every puppy or kitten that survives to maturity, about four others will not.

We don't want the message of Prevent a Litter Month to be that shelters have to euthanize millions of animals, even though that's a reality. The real message is that we all can help prevent this tragedy in the first place, simply by having our pets spayed and neutered.

The Charlevoix County Humane Society is holding a Bowl-a-Thon, Sunday May 5 at Paul Bunyan Lanes to raise funds for our spay/neuter program. For more information about this event and our program, contact Pam at the Shelter, 547-9711. Hours are Monday through Friday 1-6 p.m.

Student spends spring break building homes in Central America

By Peg Ohle

Lara Stargardt of Charlevoix went south for her winter break, but it was not to acquire a suntan. She and 15 other students from Manchester College in Indiana went south to Nicaragua to work with Habitat for Humanity in restoring homes that had been devastated by hurricanes.

It was not easy work, Stargardt admits. "We laid bricks, put up framing, and shoveled dirt, but all the time I had a feeling I was contributing to the well-being of the people."

While helping to put roofs over the heads of the victims of disaster, Stargardt talked with many of them, learning about their outlook on life, their every-day living problems, and their hopes for the future. What she learned was that these people were not only the victims of nature's fury, but of political maneuvering.

"I became intrigued with the political situations that have contributed to the present circumstances of hunger, illiteracy, and sickness," she said.

Stargardt came away from it all realizing there is no easy answer to the problem. "I resent anyone who has a 'pat' solution," she stated emphatically.

Her feelings were generated, she said, by the fact that almost everyone she talked to had a different idea of which political party was most helpful to the people, how the help being sent from the United States could best be distributed, how best to educate the people about health hazards, and even a certain lack of interest in improving anything.

However, the whole experience was an eye opener to Stargardt. She is a 1986 graduate of Charlevoix High School concentrating on English education and Spanish at Manchester College. The group traveled 7,000 miles in two weeks in two vans through Mexico, Guatemala, and Honduras before reaching the country of their destination. Their trip also included an eight-hour river boat trip during which they could see wildlife on all sides.

What Stargardt and the others found in Nicaragua was a poverty-stricken people, 40 percent unemployment, little agriculture because of depleted soil, limited fishing, no refrigeration (but a diesel-powered generator operating two and a half hours a day, and a new icemaker), poor sanitation, few doctors and even fewer pharmacies; $30 a bottle aspirin, and severely malnourished children—people in dire need of help, with no escape because even the neighboring countries don't want them.

The fact that she could do anything to help these needy people makes Stargardt happy, and she says she would like to return some day and help more. "I have a new understanding of the definition of a 'Third-World Country,'" she says.

When asked what the average United States citizen can do to help these beleaguered people, Stargardt had some ideas: "Remember that most of the information we receive is out of focus. People should work with their churches and other organizations that serve the area. Those who can't physically work with Habitat for Humanity should support it financially. Also, most international education and health care agencies have branches in Nicaragua. People can support them. Last but not least, Stargardt emphasizes that people should know what's going on with our government's relationship with Nicaragua and lobby for the action we believe will be most beneficial to the people there."

Home buying help available

If you thought that owning a home was beyond your dreams, think again. If your family income is less than $43,470 per year, you may qualify for a home mortgage through the Michigan Initiative Program, which began this past October.

The Emmet and Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Services are offering a workshop that will help you qualify for a Michigan Initiative mortgage as well as provide basic information you need to effectively shop for and finance a home.

The goal of the workshop, according to Gail Edwards, Emmet County Extension Home Economist, is to provide potential homeowners with information on all aspects of home ownership and to help them decide if home ownership at this time is feasible.

The workshop will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 13 at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey, Room 70 of the Administration Building.

Topics to be covered include: house hunting — how to evaluate a house, inside and out, and the neighborhood; qualifying for a home loan — understanding the criteria lenders use when deciding whether to make a loan; financing a home — understanding the financial aspects of purchasing a home; including monthly costs and mortgage options; and the closing — understanding the closing costs involved in purchasing a home.

The Michigan Initiative helps prospective home buyers by providing education about purchasing a home, cutting the normal down payment requirement to 3 percent, and offering more flexible qualifying criteria than conventional mortgages.

Edwards emphasizes that the workshop series is open to all potential homeowners, whether they are interested in the Michigan Initiative or not.

To enroll or get more information, call the Emmet County Cooperative Extension Service at 348-1770.

Environmentalists sought to assist with educational program

Do you have a love for the beautiful northern Michigan environment? Are you willing to share that love with school children? The Little Traverse Conservancy could use your help with our highly successful Environmental Education School Program.

The Little Traverse Conservancy Spring School Program will begin May 14 and run through June 14. In 1990, 1600 children from Charlevoix and Emmet Schools were able to attend the Environmental Education program offered at Thorne Swift Nature Preserve located north of Harbor Springs. This year, in addition to our program at Thorne Swift, we hope to offer programs at North Point Nature Preserve near Charlevoix for those schools in the Charlevoix/Bozette/Bozette Falls/East Jordan/Central Lake area. Volunteer Naturalists are needed to help share a sense of wonder and interest in the environment and to help students gain a better understanding of the world around them. No previous experience is necessary. The next orientation meeting for volunteer naturalists will be at 3 p.m. Thursday, April 11 at the Little Traverse Conservancy office, 3264 Powell Road off M-110 between Petoskey and Harbor Springs. This meeting will cover plans for the spring program, in addition to a slide presentation on the common wildlife of Northern Michigan. Please call the Little Traverse Conservancy at 347-0991 for more information and to sign up.

Senior Citizens prepare for annual spring luncheon

All area senior citizens are invited to attend the annual Spring Thaw luncheon at Boyne Mountain Lodge at noon Thursday, April 18.

The buffet luncheon will include chicken, beef, and fish entrees, salad bar, relish tray, potatoes, fresh vegetables, rolls, dessert, and coffee or tea.

Musical entertainment with the theme "Follow the Yellow Brick Road to the Land of Oz" and door prizes will be added attractions.

Tickets are for sale at all Senior Centers and additional information may be obtained by calling 347-3361.

Transportation to the luncheon by the Charlevoix County Transit will be available by reservation. Phone 582-2900.

Crooked Tree Arts Council has something cooking

Crooked Tree Arts Council plans for the annual $5 million dinner scheduled for Saturday, June 1st are well in hand.

This year Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lerman will host this charity event at their "Loeb Farm" estate in Charlevoix.

On the evening, a staff of 40 volunteer waiters (from chauffeurs to executive chefs) will be on hand to insure the five winging couples will enjoy the dining experience of a lifetime.

Included in the seven course feast will be:

• Diced and Dried Cherry Strudel prepared by Wes Westhoven of the Rowe Inn.

• Wild Mushroom Consomme by David Heier, Walleen Lake Inn.

• Sole Quenelles Aureole by Kit Simmons of The Arboretum.

• Rack of Lamb is the entree, a specialty of the Crow's Nest.

• Mike McElroy

• Chocolate Amusement with

Apricots and Raspberries created by Pastry Chef Carl Duchay of Papawingo fame.

Other courses will be provided by Andante and Stallford's Hospitality, whose professional chefs will coordinate this extraordinary meal.

To accompany each course, vintage wines have been chosen and donated from the cellars of Boyne U.S.A., Gurney's Harbor Bottle Shop and Toski-Sands Party Store. After dinner coffee is again from Gourmet Port O' Call.

The winning guests will arrive in chauffeured limousines, generously loaned to us for the evening by Jerry Haley of Bay Buick. The celebrity couples will be treated to champagne and hors d'oeuvres from the Weatheravore, to the accompaniment of Bill Wieland at the piano. As in prior years, Sean Ley, resplendent in kilt and sporran, will pipe the diners into the banquet hall.

David Chelick of Charlevoix is the Calligrapher who will put the final touches on the commemorative menus which have been painted by volunteer artists from the Arts Center.

Tickets for this fantasy evening are $10 and are available at the Crooked Tree Arts Center and at the Tin Soldier in Harbor Springs. Tickets may also be ordered by telephone at 347-4337 and charged to Visa or MasterCard.

4-H members participate in achievement day

Charlevoix County 4-H members will participate in their annual Achievement Day April 13 at the Boyne City Hall Auditorium. Judging of projects will take place between 10 a.m. and noon.

The 4-H Achievement Day is an opportunity for 4-H youth to show off their projects and have them evaluated by adult judges. The youth are interviewed by a judge and discuss the project, the time put in, what was learned etc. 4-H members are judged on their own ability and not compared to others. Projects are awarded ribbons and exceptional projects may receive higher awards such as scholarships toward summer camp or future 4-H materials. Items judged at achievement day may also be shown at the county fair in August.

Categories 4-H members may participate in include: Art; Bowling; Clowthing; Communications; Cosmetology; Crafts; Conservation/Environmental Education; Entomology; Fashion Révue; Family Skills; Foods and Nutrition; Folk patterns; Health; Home Design and Landscaping; Horticulture; Junior Leaders; Leadership; Livestock; Management/Decision Making; Peer Plus; Personal Appearance; Photography; Recreation; Safety; Self-Determined; Shooting Sports; Small Engines; and Veterinary Science.

Michigan Scientific Corp. devices improve products

By Ralph McRae
Michigan Scientific Corporation is one of approximately 20 manufacturers which are very important to Charlevoix's local economy.

The word "Scientific" makes one think of high tech...too high tech, a mystical operation run by brainy people with a language all their own. Not so. A two-hour walking and talking tour with Kent Larsen allows a person to come away with a fairly solid general understanding of the processes at the plant.

Michigan Scientific Corp. is a family operation, owned and managed by the Larsen family. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Larsen founded the corporation, beginning in 1960 in Milford primarily as an engineering firm. The Charlevoix plant opened in 1979 and is managed and supervised by Kent and Ralph Larsen. The plant has 30 employees.

Among the first things noted in the tour was the large number of computer/printer combinations used by the various engineers. There are also large lathe and drilling units operated by the shop's five machinists. Several other employees use microscopes as part of the assembly process.

The quality control aspect of the operation is very apparent. An optic analyzer instantly shows an on-screen enlargement of the smallest details. One apparatus at the plant can magnify the image of a pin 20,000 times.

The principle product of the plant is slip rings. These small items are used in testing cars, agricultural products, electric motors and industrial equipment throughout the world. The slip rings will accurately test revolving or rotating components. Attached to the end of a shaft, a Michigan Scientific slip ring will measure distortions as small as a thousandth of an inch and detect any alignment problems.

The round-ringed base of the test equipment is attached to the center of revolving machinery. It can be one, two or three inches in diameter and half an inch thick. From its side, between four and 20 test wires extend out to testing points. At the ends of these pin-size test wires are small see-through pads with embedded sensors. These move as the attached metal moves and detect any changes in the equipment.

Some of the pads and sensors can also be fastened to non-rotating components. Jackie Belding, one of the plant's employees, has been developing a procedure to test the bending reflexes of car suspension systems. By placing sensors on critical points of a car's springs, bending qualities of the metal can be measured.

Sensors can also be used to measure temperature and pressure. Special encoders are manufactured to record rpm's and directions of rotating shafts.

The test equipment is used in the research and development laboratories of large auto makers. Using the equipment means fewer recalls and lighter, stronger and better products.

Two of three of Michigan Scientific's transducers, each costing more than $400, can easily be held in the palm of your hand. In terms of bulk, the total annual production of the plant would not fill a single semi truck.

Michigan Scientific products are not sold by the gross or by the dozen, but mostly in twos or threes and sometimes as many as ten. Sales are generated by referral, sales representatives and catalogues. The company also provides engineering consulting services.

Currently the plant is cramped for space, but is planning to add approximately 7,000 square feet of space which will approximately double the work area. Growth of the plant has been slow, but steady.

Many of the plant's upper echelon employees are graduates of Michigan Technological University in Houghton. Some of them trained at the plant while in college during their summer vacations. About half of all the employees are graduates of engineering or technological universities.

One of the most novel aspects of the firm is an employment policy called "Flex Time." The policy allows employees to work when it's most convenient for them. It gives the employees a lot of latitude in working hours that are best for them. One employee occasionally starts work at 4 a.m. Others may come in at 6:30 or 10 a.m. or perhaps at 4 p.m. There are no assembly lines, but the employees know their responsibilities and work accordingly. No time clock is punched and employees mark their own time cards. The Flex Time system has worked at Michigan Scientific and allowed the company and its employees to profit.

Michigan Scientific Corporation is located on Ance Road in the city industrial park.

New cruise boat coming to Charlevoix from Maine

A new excursion boat, the "Miss Charlevoix" will soon be leaving Maine and will arrive in Charlevoix in about a month. The boat, owned by Ward Brothers Cruises, Inc., is one of three cruise ships scheduled to operate out of Charlevoix this summer.

The "Miss Charlevoix" is a new, custom-built, 56-foot, double-deck fiberglass tour boat with a 16-foot beam. It has an enclosed lower deck with an open bow and upper deck. It is powered by two V-8 Detroit Diesel engines and can cruise at 45 knots and carry up to 100 passengers.

The boat will travel through the Hudson River and Erie Canal en route to the Great Lakes. Bernie Ward Jr., one of the licensed captains who will bring the boat back, said the Canal isn't scheduled to open until May 6 so the boat might have to lay over in New York for a day or two.

Wards want to be open for tours May 24. Between May 24 and June 16 the boat will take cruises on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. Daily cruises will take place between June 17 and Labor Day with weekend cruises from Sept. 3 through Oct. 20.

The boat will have scheduled afternoon cruises between 12:30 and 2:30 and sunset cruises from 7:30 to 9:30 and will also be available for special group charters.

Rates will be $13 for adults and $7 for children 12 and under. Special rates will be offered for groups of 30 or more people.

The Miss Charlevoix will operate from the Ward Brothers dock in Round Lake near the end of Antrim Street.

Last year there were no cruise ships operating out of Charlevoix. Previously, the Bay Queen and later the Star of Charlevoix ships were based in Charlevoix. When the Star discontinued operation in 1989, local business people expressed interest in having another cruise ship of some type operate. Business people felt the cruise ship drew people to the community.

This year three cruise ships are scheduled to operate out of the Charlevoix harbor. Along with the Miss Charlevoix, there will be another power boat operated by the Beaver Island Boat Company and a sail boat operated by Bay Breeze Charters.

The "Miss Charlevoix," a new, custom-built excursion boat will soon be leaving Maine and coming to Charlevoix. The boat is expected to arrive in about a month.

Beware of grass fires

Picture a wall of flame, reaching hundreds of feet into the air, moving across the landscape, devouring homes, buildings and trees at the rate of 1.5 miles per hour. Firefighters and equipment are pouring in from neighboring communities in an effort to stop the fire and protect all of the homes that lie in its path. It is too large, however, and too many homes are threatened. There are too few firefighters and too much area to cover; many homes are lost.

The scene just described did not happen in a Western state, but right here in Michigan, on May 8, 1990. Homeowners in the Grayling area watched in disbelief as their homes and possessions were engulfed in flames. Even though they were repeatedly warned of this possibility, they thought, "It could never happen here."

Yet it did. Fires the size of the Stephan Bridge Road Fire are a common spring occurrence in Northern Michigan. Dead grass from the previous year is tinder-dry, and the needles of the Jack pine are at their lowest moisture content of the year, able to burn readily. These conditions, combined with warm, dry, windy days are the perfect recipe for the large wildfires that have been burning in Michigan for hundreds of years.

"We are watching this year's fire season closely, since Michigan has experienced several years of less than normal precipitation. We are hoping people will be very careful, since the potential for wildfire would reach extreme proportions," said Don Johnson of the Forest Management Division of the Department of Natural Resources.

Let anyone think that only large fires in pine areas are dangerous, or Halloween day last year, a person burning leaves in Cass County, which has a landscape dominated by hardwoods, lost control of her fire. In a very short time, four homes were lost, and a fifth was damaged.

Wherever homes and structures are built in rural areas the potential for loss of life and property exists.

Understanding that wildfires are fact of nature, there are steps individual homeowners can take to protect their homes. These steps are even more important for seasonal residences that are left unattended for extended periods of time. The steps involve: 1) providing adequate clearances between structures and flammable vegetation; 2) providing access for fire equipment; and 3) providing structural barriers against the entry of flying sparks or embers.

1. The most important precaution is providing adequate clearance between any structure and the surrounding vegetation. Provide 25 feet between structures and any coniferous trees (pines, spruce, etc.) Firefighters need that space to give them room to defend your home in a wildfire situation. In many instances, it may be enough space to prevent your home from catching fire, even without firefighters present.

For the next 75 feet, or if you have a small lot, as far out as you can, thin-out any coniferous trees so their crowns don't touch. Remove small evergreens that could allow a fire to climb into the tree tops. Prune remaining trees 6-8 feet above the ground. Mow this area, if possible. A mowed lawn makes a great fuel break.

Keep the area under porches and decks clear of any flammable debris. Keep roofs clear of dead leaves and needles. Clear gutters frequently, especially in the spring. And, keep wood piles at least 25 feet from structures and fuel tanks, or in a wood shed separate from other buildings.

2) Provide access for firefighting equipment. Narrow two-tracks may be adequate for your car, but large firefighting equipment needs room to maneuver. Also provide enough space for fire trucks to turn around. Firefighters won't enter an area where they could become trapped.

Think twice about a gate, chain or other obstruction across your driveway. There may not be time to break it down in the event of a wildfire. Firefighters could be forced to go on to the next home and pass yours by simply because they couldn't get past the gate.

3) Finally, eliminate any openings in your home where flying sparks could enter. Enclose open eaves, and use metal screening on soffit and gable vents. Use fire-resistant skirting around the base of mobile homes, porches, decks so that fire cannot get underneath.

Wood shakes have not been very common roofing material in Michigan, although they are becoming more popular. Wood-shake roofs are very dangerous because they cannot be made fire resistant; any ember that lands on a shake roof will set it on fire. Many homes have been lost in other states simply because of wood shake roofs.

Ironton Ferry begins running April 15

By Peg Ohle
As it has for more than 100 years, the Ironton Ferry will begin operations as soon as ice conditions permit. This year, the start-up is planned for Monday, April 15.

The Ironton Ferry crosses the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, at the community of Ironton in Eveline Township, thus cutting many miles of travel from trips between Charlevoix and Boyne City and points east.

While serving this practical purpose, the ferry has become a tourist attraction by adding a "boat trip" to an ordinary auto-vacation; has been a subject of Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" cartoon; has been named a State Historical Site; and is pictured on the logo of Charlevoix County.

The Ironton Ferry is operated by the County of Charlevoix, but in its earliest years it was privately operated, and later acquired by Eveline Township. The first mention of the ferry in County Board minutes was on Oct. 10, 1881, when a petition concerning its operation was submitted by one W. R. Stohlman. Other references were made through the years until Jan. 6, 1887, when the County Board resolved to purchase the ferry from then owner Henry Sheldon, to be operated as a free ferry with expenses borne half by the county and half by the Township of Eveline.

Later figures indicate that the county paid $150 for the "scow and cable" and spent $25.35 repairing them. The cost of running the ferry 161 days that first year was $172.65, making total expenses of purchase and operations $358. In 1988, the total cost of operating the Ironton Ferry was $84,608.

Valerie Johnson of the Michigan Ombudsman's Office stands with Charlevoix Rotarian Mike Greeley. Johnson was the guest speaker at last week's Rotary meeting. The purpose of Johnson's office is to help Michigan business people cut through red tape. The form she is holding is an example. The form is something which the state had been requiring business people to fill out every year. Greeley got tired of it and just began writing "Same as last year" on the form. When the state agency complained, Greeley contacted the Ombudsman's office. Eventually the agency put a little box on the form which says "Same as last year." The addition of the box has saved time for both business people and the agency.

Groundwater needs protection

Fuel is a necessity for modern day life. We need it to run our automobiles, heat our homes and offices, and operate motor boats for recreation. The demand for fuels to operate these appliances has resulted in the installation of an abundance of fuel storage tanks throughout the country.

Unfortunately, leaks and spills from fuel storage tanks are a significant cause of groundwater contamination in Michigan. In 1986, there were 739 sites of known groundwater contamination sites listed throughout the state. Of these, 119 (or 16%) were from leaking fuel storage tanks.

As tanks become old they begin to corrode and leak their contents. Nationwide, the Environmental Protection Agency estimates that 25% of the fuel storage tanks in use have a leak. Presently, leaks or spills from fuel storage tanks are being reported at a rate of one hundred a month to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. If undetected, they can lose large amounts of fuel oil or gasoline. These fuels can contaminate large amounts of groundwater, pose health risks for people drinking contaminated groundwater, and necessitate costly cleanup.

"This is a big concern for Northern Michigan since the majority of the population uses groundwater as their drinking water source," said Ann Baughman, Water Resource Specialist with the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. "Preventing fuel storage tanks from leaking is the best way to protect our valuable groundwater resource from contamination," she added.

The Watershed Council is sponsoring two seminars which focus on fuel storage tanks. The first seminar is scheduled for Wednesday, April 17, 1991, at 7:00 p.m., at North Central Michigan College Conference Center. The seminar is titled "Underground Storage Tanks and the Small Business Owner" and will provide an overview of the new tank registration rules, leaking underground storage tank regulations, and Michigan Underground Storage Tank Funding Assistance.

A second seminar titled "Fuel Storage Tank Maintenance and Monitoring for the Homeowner" is scheduled for the following Wednesday, April 24, 1991, at 7 p.m., at North Central Michigan College Conference Center. Jim Lively, of the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments, will present maintenance and monitoring methods for above-ground and underground tanks. In addition, a Michigan Department of Natural Resources employee will be present to discuss what homeowners should do if a fuel storage tank should spill or leak.

"Our goal for the seminars is to provide small businesses with a better understanding of the new regulations and homeowners with practical information to maintain their fuel storage tanks," stated Baughman.

In an effort to prevent environmental contamination, the State of Michigan passed legislation that Fifth graders in Mrs. Kathy Gowell's class got literary recently. After each student wrote his or her own book, parents were invited to class for a Young Authors' Tea. During the tea, the authors explained what their books were about and read passages from the books.

Sure Dorothy Parker, Ann Sexton and Sylvia Plath might have collected a few more writing awards, but could any of them smile as well as Jeannie Kerner? Add did any of them ever write a book they were this proud of?

Cooperative Extension hosts hazardous waste program

The Charlevoix County office of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service is offering an educational program on the subject of unregulated hazardous materials and the relationship between these materials and the quality of our drinking water. This program is being funded by a Groundwater Education in Michigan grant supported the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. Residents of the area are cordially invited to attend this educational program.

"Does your house hold hazardous waste" will be presented Monday, April 22, from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the Boyne City Hall Auditorium.

Objectives of this education program include:

A. To increase the awareness and understanding of the relationship between improper use and disposal of unregulated hazardous waste and groundwater quality.

B. To promote leadership among local citizens and to inform the public about unregulated hazardous waste issues.

C. To facilitate the building of citizen coalitions to address long-term solutions to control unregulated hazardous waste.

Attendance at this program is free, but by reservation. To register call the Michigan State Cooperative Extension Service at 1-800-468-8896 by April 17, 1991.

gave the government authority to regulate underground storage tanks (UST's). Tanks that are regulated by the law include UST's over 1,100 gallons and any UST (regardless of size) used to sell the contents commercially. The new regulations are administered by three agencies. The Michigan Underground Storage Tank Regulations (MUSTR) are administered by the State Fire Marshall's Office. The MUSTR Act has requirements for registration, operation, closure, leak detection, spill and overfill protection, monitoring, and reporting of leaks.

The Leaking Underground Storage Tank Act is administered by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and details required action when leaks occur. The Michigan Underground Storage Tank Funding Assistance Act is administered by the Department of Management and Budget and provides funding assistance for cleanups of contamination for qualifying applicants. Plan to attend this evening seminar to learn how these regulations may affect your business.

These new statutes will improve monitoring of regulated tanks. However, a survey conducted by the Watershed Council indicated that many of the fuel storage tanks in this area are used for residential purposes, such as home heating and tractors or lawn maintenance and are therefore not regulated. Unfortunately, the same potential for leaks exists with residential fuel storage tanks. Preventing leaks and monitoring for leaks are critical to groundwater protection on your property.

Admission to both seminars is free. Mark your calendar for these important informational events. Come early or stay a few minutes afterwards to browse the display area. A groundwater model will be operating, and fact sheets and brochures will be available. If you have any questions or comments about the seminars, please feel free to call the Watershed Council office at (616) 347-1181.

Township projects allowed sewer access

After more than two years of discussion, the city has agreed to allow two Charlevoix Township developments to hook into the city sewer system. Monday evening, the city council approved a contract which will extend sewer service into the township.

Two proposed developments, North Point Shores and the Charlevoix Country Club have been seeking access to sewer service. The city sewage treatment plant is designed to be able to handle the additional input, but in some cases lines traveling to the plant were overburdened. In recent years, the city has separated storm sewers from sanitary sewers to eliminate the problem involving line capacity.

Additional tie-ins from the township will eventually require expansion of the city system. To pay for that expansion, township parcels tying in to the system will have to pay a special $2,000 fee per residential equivalent unit (REU). That money will be set aside in a special fund to pay for future sewer system expansion.

Country Club and North Point Shores developers also established letters of credit which will pay for expansion if it is necessary before sufficient funds can be set aside.

Middle school to install TVs

by Wendi Wright
The school board voted Monday night to try Channel 1, the in-class news network geared toward teenagers. The network will be installed in the middle school only, as the network is not available to elementary schools, and according to David Smith, high school principal, the high school staff would like to explore other options.

In his presentation to the board, Dennis VanGuilder, middle school principal, said the teachers at the middle school were anxious to try Channel 1, as it opened up a whole realm of possibilities. Seventeen TV sets will be installed in classrooms by Whittle Communications, free of charge, as well as a VCR to tape the daily 12-minute broadcasts, and other programs available through the network.

According to VanGuilder, Whittle only provides one TV free per every 23 students, therefore, an additional five sets will be required for the school, at a cost of $100 each. Whittle Communications covers all maintenance of equipment.

VanGuilder said he plans to have the network installed over the summer and will begin the daily broadcasts when school starts in the fall. Each broadcast consists of 10 minutes of news geared toward teenagers, and two minutes of commercials. VanGuilder said he plans to preview the programs everyday before broadcast to the students.

Ferry Beach parking debated

Depending on who you're talking to, a plan to install islands of greenery in the Ferry Beach parking lot will either improve parking and traffic flow or clutter up the lot and make driving and parking difficult.

The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) will consider the parking lot islands at a meeting scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 17.

Placing islands in the lot is part of a large work project currently taking place at Ferry Beach. Initially, plans called for six islands to be installed. Following revision, plans now call for four islands to be installed at the corners of the lot.

Former councilman Bob Timms has been among the most vocal opponents of the islands. He claims putting islands means bearing out valuable parking spaces which are needed to add traffic obstacles which people towing boat trailers don't need.

City manager Mike Wiesner defends the proposed islands. Wiesner claims the islands will make the lot more aesthetically attractive and will encourage traffic to flow in a uniform direction which will allow smoother operations at the launch ramp.

Wiesner also maintains that the revised plan will ultimately add parking spaces. That will occur because some of the new parking spaces will be slightly smaller than the current ones and 20 feet of grassy area parking will be paved. The grassed area is at the eastern edge of the beach area.

Grandvue faces cuts

A group of local employees found out last week what the cut in state Medicaid payments can mean to them. Work hours at Grandvue Medical Care Facility will be decreased by 474 hours per pay period. This will be done by eliminating the janitor positions in the housekeeping department; decreasing shift hours by 30 minutes in the laundry; discontinuing the selective menu, changing one eight-hour position to a four-hour per day position; reducing all 80-hour per pay period positions to 72 hours; and reducing four and a half hour shifts to four hours in the dietary department.

Other cuts will include eliminating the full-time supervisor position in the Residential Care unit and reducing employees on 40-hour weeks by 30 minutes a day in that unit.

Nurses Aides' hours will be cut by 90 minutes a shift.

These cuts will save Grandvue $93,769 between now and the end of December, according to former administrator Regina Shafer.

However, other budget changes have to be made to keep Grandvue in the black. Fifty thousand dollars set aside in the budget for repayment of a loan from the county will be spent this year (with the County Board's permission), and a $128,300 fund balance anticipated at the end of the year before Medicaid cuts were announced will be wiped out.

In announcing the budget changes, Shafer said, "In making the decision regarding areas to cut, our major consideration was to maintain patient care staffing as close to current levels as possible and to make the cuts as fair to the employees as possible."

"We fared better than several other Medical Care Facilities and I am confident that we will be able to weather these difficult times. The employees have been understanding and cooperative, some of them making noble sacrifices for the sake of maintaining good patient care."

Medicaid payments have long been a major source of income for Grandvue, with other funds coming from Medicare, private sources, and three-quarters of a mill from county taxpayers.

Land trust group sponsors conference

The Little Traverse Conservancy, one of Michigan's more successful land trusts, is sponsoring a conference on Saturday, April 27, in Harbor Springs for people who are currently involved in land trust work or who have an interest in forming a land trust.

Non-profit land trusts which work to acquire and protect natural land and open space are the fastest growing segment of the conservation movement in the United States. In Michigan, more than a dozen land trusts are actively working to protect natural land while interested groups are working to form still more land trust organizations.

The conference will feature several guest speakers, including Bill Sellers of the Brandywine Conservancy in Pennsylvania. Known around the nation as the dean of land trust professionals, Sellers runs one of the most successful land trusts in the nation. Jean Hocker, Executive Director and President of the national Land Trust Alliance from Washington DC, will also speak. A top leader in the land trust movement nation wide, Hocker will be sharing information on the national Standards and Practices of the Land Trust Alliance. Michigan Nature Conservancy Director Tom Woiwoda will inform conference participants on mature Conservancy programs and on the news from Lansing of interest to land trusts.

In addition, several Little Traverse Conservancy staff members will make presentations on topics including: Managing a Non-Profit Organization, Fundraising for Land Conservation, and Conservation Easements. A general session for discussion of issues of interest to all land trusts is also scheduled.

The conference will take place on Saturday, April 27 at the Birchwood Inn just north of Harbor Springs. It will be the first gathering of Michigan Land Trusts in at least ten years. Anyone interested in attending is welcome.

Cost of the conference is $20 conference attendance fee per person, which includes continental breakfast, lunch, breaks and post-conference hospitality hour. A post-conference dinner will be available for $15 per person. Accommodations at the Birchwood Inn are available at the special rate of $50 per night for a room with two beds. For information and registration, call the Little Traverse Conservancy at 616-347-0991 or write them at 3264 Powell Road, Harbor Springs, Michigan 49740.

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

The imperfections of goldfish

Pete the piranha smiles from gill to gill this time of year. He is well-fed and happy.

Pete belongs to George, who is a cousin of mine. They live in a small town much like Charlevoix.

Three years ago a decision was made which ended up making Pete very happy. George is active in the elementary school Parent Teacher Amalgamation and a few years ago in midwinter, the PTA group was making plans for their annual spring carnival.

"What are we going to do for prizes for the games this year?" one of the PTA members asked. "We need something which will be inexpensive, but will still be something the kids will like."

After much discussion of balloons and toy cars and other odds and ends, someone hit upon the idea of live goldfish.

"I think the kids will like them," one of the PTA members said. "And goldfish aren't too expensive. It's not like they'll cost us an arm and a leg. Even though they're called 'gold' fish, they're just a form of carp and carp rank pretty low in the fish scale."

So the PTA made a big buy on goldfish. Goldfish, like anything else, are cheaper when bought in bulk so the PTA bought a thousand of them.

All of the fish were put in a big tank and taken to the PTA carnival. Some of the PTA people were a bit nervous about having such a large number of goldfish. "What will we do with the extra if we find out the kids don't want fish?" one of them asked. "If we can't move all of these fish, we'll have to eat them."

"Don't worry. Don't worry. The kids will like them," another PTAer assured the worriers.

And the kids liked the goldfish. Goldfish were the most sought after prize at the carnival. Goldfish were successful beyond the PTA's wildest dreams. The line of kids for the goldfish game looked like the lines at Cedar Point or Disney World. The line started at one wall of the gym, went back until it hit the far wall and then swung around and went off on a tangent. Every kid had to have a goldfish. And not only did every kid have to have a goldfish, every kid who won a goldfish had to have a goldfish bowl and a little canister of goldfish food. Goldfish were far and away the hottest item at the carnival. By the end of the carnival, everyone of these goldfish had been won and given away.

At the end of the carnival, the kids were happy, the parents were happy, everybody was happy. But then the story took a turn for the worse.

The great goldfish frenzy turned out to be like a Saturday night binge on the town - it was great fun at the time, but the next morning the headaches began.

Within a day or two after the carnival, people began discovering en masse the one thing about goldfish that keeps them from being the perfect pet. They're cheap, they're small, they're quiet and they're easy to care for, but they've got a disturbing tendency to go belly-up.

Children and families throughout the community awoke to find little white goldfish bellies facing skyward.

"Daddy, is my goldfish suppose to be upside down like that?"

"No, I don't think so."

"Won't all of the blood rush to his head?"

"Oh, I don't think that'll be a problem."

Flushing ensued with a furor and a swooshing never before seen by that little town's sewer system.

Within a matter of hours, Fred the sewage treatment plant manager faced a crisis. All of those little goldfish scales and fins had plugged up the works. Fred peered into the plant's grinding system and saw what looked to be at least 400 little goldfish heads. He knew from reading the plant's owner's manual that the grinders weren't rated to handle any more than 200 to 250 goldfish at a time.

Fred got on the phone to the president of the PTA. "Hey, we've got a problem down here at the sewage plant," Fred said. "We've got to head this avalanche of goldfish or things are going to get ugly."

The PTA president was well aware of the problem. He had been receiving phone calls all morning from people asking him what to do with their dead goldfish. Up until now, he had been advising people to flush them, but obviously a new solution was needed.

Just then George happened to be walking down the street. George was known as a person who kept fish so the PTA president decided to call him in and seek his advice.

"George, I'm in a spot here. The town is in goldfish up to the gills. What are we to do?"

George thought for a minute. "Well, Pete eats goldfish, but he can't eat more than two or three a day."

"Who's Pete?" the president asked.

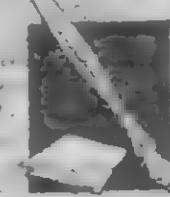

"He's my pet piranha," George answered.

"Do the goldfish have to be fresh?" the PTA president asked.

"Fairly fresh," George said. "It's not like they have to be silt flopping, but they can't be rotten."

The PTA president smiled. The problem was solved. He had an old freezer in his garage. He plugged in it and the dead goldfish freezing began.

That was three years ago. Goldfish continue to be the most sought after prize at the PTA carnival. And Pete is not only happy. He's fat, sassy and darn near as big as a salmon.

Region's senior citizens to meet

Senior citizens will have a chance to learn first-hand what is going on in Lansing when they attend the Regional Senior Power Day, scheduled for Saturday, April 27, at Gaylord High School.

Five people from state government will participate in a forum titled "Who's Listening in Lansing?"

A representative from the Governor's office will be asked to defend the fact that Michigan ranks last among six Midwest region states allocating funds for elderly services. Also, after being told that 1991 is not good for senior services and 1992 will be worse, what good things can seniors expect to happen in the area of their needs?

Senator George McManus will be asked what is the status of the living will issue in the Senate. Michigan is one of only nine states that do not have right to die laws. For 16 years, Michigan lawmakers have debated the right to die issue for terminally ill people. What will happen on this subject in the next legislative session?

Senator John Fridgia will be asked what is being done about rural health care reform and what progress the state has made in getting initial funding for a comprehensive long-term care system.

Representative Beverly Bodem will be asked what legislative action can be taken at the state level to insure a secure financial future in retirement for elderly women.

Nearly three-quarters of the nation's 3.5 million elderly poor are women. They are at particular risk for economic insecurity because they outlive their spouses, are more likely to live alone, and are more likely to have little or no private pension income and a low wage history.

Representative Ralph Ostling will be asked how citizens can best communicate with legislators to impact and obtain good legislation at the state level.

Registration for Senior Power Day will begin at 8:30 a.m., followed by an address "Myths of Aging" by Louise Churches and a workshop session. The afternoon session will be devoted largely to the Senior Forum.

Garden Club offers assistance for keeping lawns green

(Editor's note: The following story is the first in a series which is being provided by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club. The purpose of the series is to help area gardeners in their efforts to make Charlevoix greener.)

Warm weather is still a long way off, but according to the calendar, spring is almost here and there are a number of things that can be done to improve the appearance of your yard.

Apart from a general cleanup and raking, one of the best things you can do for your lawn is to give it an early feeding. If the job is not too sloppy for you, the best time would be just after a new inches of wet snow have fallen. Scatter the fertilizer over the snow and the melting snow will carry the nutrients slowly down to the roots for spring growth.

Most packages of chemical fertilizer sold in garden centers etc. are marked with three numbers, like 10-5-5 or 7-6-19. These figures tell you the relative amounts of the three chemicals they contain. The first figure refers to nitrogen, the second to phosphate and the third to potash. As a general rule, nitrogen-rich fertilizers stimulate the growth of greenery, while fertilizers rich in phosphate and potash increase the flowering and fruiting of plants.

On lawns, where you want nice green color and no flowers or fruit, use a fertilizer with a high first number, like 10-5-5 or 20-10-5 while fertilizers with higher second and third number should be used for shrubs, flowers and vegetables.

Be sure to follow the instructions on the bag exactly. Natural or organic fertilizers are becoming more popular now that there is a growing awareness of ecological problems. While most provide excellent plant food, some, such as manure, are difficult to handle. Manure should always be well rotted or fermented before it comes into contact with living plants; otherwise it will burn stems, roots and leaves. If at all possible it should be worked into the soil before planting. When using manure on existing plants, spread it around their base and work it into the soil as early as possible, in late winter, well before growth starts because the nutrients in manure take a relatively long time to reach the roots. Because of its consistency, manure is not suited for use on lawns, it would smother the top growth and people walking across the lawn might step on it.

Applying compost (well rotted garden waste, etc.) is another considerably less smelly natural way of feeding garden plants. When sifted through a wire mesh, it will be fine enough to be spread thinly on the grass and work its way down to the roots without smothering the top growth.

Mr. & Mrs. Cliff Gregory

The family of Cliff Gregory will host a party in honor of his 80th birthday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 27 at the United Methodist Church. Gregory is a retired plumber.

Grange plans several activities for April 21 - 27

Barnard Grange has several activities planned in conjunction with Grange Week in the State of Michigan April 21-27.

The week will open with a hymn-sing beginning at 7 p.m., Sunday April 21 in the Grange Hall. Jessie Cunningham will lead the hymns and there will be several special numbers. The hymn-sing will be followed with an award to a non-Grange member for outstanding service to the community.

Monday, April 22 is "clean-up night" at the hall. Members will meet at 6 p.m. to clean both the Grange yard and the interior of the hall. Wednesday, April 24 there will be a pot-luck dinner at 6:30 p.m. at the hall followed by a Community Child Watch program which will be presented by Sherry Sproul of the Sheriff's Department and Dale Meredith of the Charlevoix Police Department.

Grange Week will conclude with a dance at the Grange Hall beginning at 8 p.m., Saturday, April 27. Music will be provided by Jasper and the Tag-A-Longs.

There will be a Grange display downtown in the window of The Clothing Co. during Grange Week.

The public is invited to attend the hymn-sing on Sunday evening, the pot-luck and Child Watch Program on Wednesday evening and the square and round dance on Saturday evening.

Soldiers respond to K-5 Valentine wishes

Charlevoix elementary students have been enjoying the replies to Valentine wishes they sent to troops in the Midwest. Students wrote the Valentines while in Mrs. Coren Henry's reading class in the library. Henry compiled the Valentines and sent them overseas where, according to the replies, they were well-received.

Henry said the students also enjoyed the soldiers' replies and began checking each day to read the new ones as they came in.

Examples of what the Valentines sent by the students said follow:

"We are doing good in school. We hope you beat the war and come home soon. Take care of yourself. You've done good! Good Luck! Mrs. Miller's afternoon Kindergarten class."

"Hurry Home Safely! We think of you every time we say our pledge. Our love and prayers are with you. The Bentley Bulldogs 1st grade."

"Dear Armed Forces: We hope you are OK. Our hearts are with you. Have a Happy Valentine's Day! We love you and miss you! Mrs. Tillison's reading class, Second grade."

"Dear Friend: Howdy partner! How are you doing? We hope you are doing well. We miss you. We wish you luck and hope you come home soon. Love from: Mrs. Carland's 'Cool' reading class, third grade."

"To you far, far away. We wanted to say Happy Valentine's Day. Mrs. Kelly's reading class, Fourth grade."

"In 5th grade we're having a spelling bee, speech contest, Colonial day and cross country skiing. Our spring musical is called 'Celebrate America.' We are proud of you, miss you and are praying for peace and for your safe return. Mrs. Soymour's reading class."

An example of the letters the students received in return is the following from Darren Olagh:

"Feb. 21, '91. 1640 Saudi Time. To the students & staff of the K-

5. Thanks to everyone! I just got your Valentine mail and read it to the 2nd Squad. We all got a charge out of it."

"Myself, I had to hold back a tear or two, but it made me happy none-the-less."

"We're all very appreciative of the support from the home front. I wouldn't mind giving some of that support instead of receiving it, but that's how things go I guess."

"Sure wish I was home. Not many ski slopes here in Saudi. Not much ice fishing either! And the deer are kinda scarce, but camel season's rolling around soon! Got my bunker all set."

"Well folks, I just got a mission (us fuel haulers never sleep!) God bless and save some snow for me."

"Thanks again! Darren (Spec. U.S. Army)"

Pre-school program begins 1991-1992 registration

The Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency, Inc. (NMHSA), is announcing the 1991-92 school year recruitment activities for enrollment in the Charlevoix Child Development Center located in the basement of the First Congregational Church, 101 State Street, Charlevoix. (Please use the Park Avenue entrance) on Wednesday, April 24 from 11:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

Charlevoix Child Development Center is a complete preschool program primarily for children four years old and whose families have a limited income. Your child must be four by Dec. 1.

The basic goal of the program is to encourage well-rounded development. This is done through the teaching of health, language, self-help, socialization, large and small muscle, and cognitive (thinking) skills. Teachers, community professionals, support staff, and parents (whose participation is extremely important) work together to accomplish this goal. Through the involvement of parents, the program aims at enhancing the parents' role as the prime educator of their children. The program is carried on through center and home-based activities.

To qualify for the Child Development Program you must be within these income guidelines:

Household size / Gross Income
2, $16,428
3, $20,609
4, $24,790
5, $28,971

For each additional household member add: $4,181.

While this is an income-eligible program, families whose income exceed these guidelines may still qualify if their child has special need documented by a professional (doctor, psychologist, social worker) who makes a referral to the program. Twenty-five percent of the enrolled families are over the income guidelines.

Those interested in applying for the Child Development should come to the recruitment and bring the following information:

1. Your child's immunization records
2. Proof of income (current pay stubs/unemployment stubs, check enclosure from ADC or a client notice)
3. Social Security numbers of all household members
4. Your Medicaid card/Private Insurance Card
5. Food Stamp Card
6. Birth Certificate
7. The child that you are enrolling.

This program will be held at the Child Development Center, 101 State St., Charlevoix. The class will be limited to 18 children and will be held Tuesday through Friday for 3 1/2 hours beginning in October and ending in May.

This program is funded through a grant for the State of Michigan and there are no expenses to the families. Children will be bused to and from the center through NMHSA's transportation services and a nutritious snack will be provided.

IT MAKES SENSE. NOT JUST MONEY.

People who do business on Wall Street manage their money every day to get the highest return. So what about those of us who live and work on Main Street? There's the Cash Management Checking account from First of America. Every day, it automatically invests your money to get you a highly competitive return.

And, from now until June 30, 1991, it earns a bonus rate of 7.25 percent APR on balances over $5,000. All it takes is $1,000 to open. And it's FDIC insured up to the full extent allowed by law, at one of America's best-run, most stable banks.

Available on individual accounts only, you can write all the checks you want. Balances over $5,000 (after June 30) are invested daily at a rate tied to the weekly average Federal Fund rate, the same rate that banks earn on overnight deposits of a million dollars or more. Below $5,000 you earn our money market checking rate. Contact your local banker for current rate information.

Open a Cash Management Checking account today. Because for most of us, it makes sense. Not just money.

Parents object to K-5 busing change

By L. Scott Swanson

A proposal to change the way Charlevoix school buses run is meeting with objections from the parents of several elementary school students. The change is being recommended to the school board by the school's Professional Study Committee in response to pressure from elementary school teachers.

Currently Charlevoix schools run two bus routes each day, one for middle and high school students and a second for K-5 elementary school students. Middle school and high school classes begin and end at about 8 a.m. and let out at about 2:30 p.m. Elementary classes begin at 9 a.m. and let out at 3:30 p.m.

According to one of the elementary teachers, who asked not to be named, the teachers would like to see the school change to a one-bus-run system to save the school system money. Cathy Miller, one of the parents objecting to the change, says she feels the elementary teachers just want to get out of school at 2:30.

Miller and other parents have been sending letters to school board members listing five basic objections to the proposed change. The objections are: 1. The parents don't want their elementary students riding the same buses as middle and high school students; 2. The elementary students would have to get up earlier and spend more time standing in the dark waiting for the school bus; 3. Mixing the older and younger students would put undue pressure on bus drivers; 4. Changing from two to one bus run would require purchasing additional buses; 5. The change would show a lack of consideration for students, parents and taxpayers.

Charlevoix school system formerly operated with one bus route a day.

Where to find new businesses and old businesses in new places

By Peg Ohle

The unspringlike weather of last week found many Bridge Street merchants sprucing up their shops for the summer season.

Some of the shop owners who stayed open all year took a week off during the spring break and drove their families south for a short vacation, leaving their shops in the hands of faithful employees. Other shop owners are just beginning to return from wherever they hide out during the winter months and have posted signs on their doors reading, "Open May 10th" or "See You Soon." Some shop spaces have new occupants, taking the place of those who moved on at the close of the season last fall.

A walk along the west side of Bridge Street, beginning at the bridge, reveals most of the business lineup for this coming summer. There is the Splash shop, selling modern, contemporary clothes and accessories. Then there is the Fudge Place, a new business in town operated by Paul Hoffman. Next to the Fudge Place, there will be a shop called "Bubba's," run by Bradley Urdan of West Bloomfield, who operated the Kaj Wear Shop in the Market Mall last year.

Cravings Ice Cream Shop will be back in its regular spot, next to Traverse Bay Woolens, but Country Casuals, which has been at the corner of Bridge and Park Streets for several summers, will move up Bridge Street. Around the corner from Bridge Street, on Park Street is the Clipperview Glass Shop, featuring stained glass objects of art as well as household accessories. Across Park Street and just around the corner from Vacation Properties is My Favorite Things Shop, which specializes in gifts and works of art. Jeanne Wallace's Shop of the Gulls, next to Vacation Properties on Bridge Street, has been open all winter and will be ready to serve summer visitors as it has for 27 years.

Continuing down Bridge Street, The Bahnhof, which also has been open all winter, is ready to take care of summer visitors' sports wear needs. Mettler's, another year-round shop, specializing in fine men's and women's clothing and accessories, continues to operate between the Bahnhof and Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering. Then there is Trademark Clothiers, in past years known as Lieberman's, with its full line of clothing.

The Village Inn Pizza parlor continues to operate in the old bank building, next to Carey's Boots, also a year-round long-time Charlevoix establishment. The Town House Bar is next down the street. Then, at the corner, there is the Charlevoix County State Bank, the oldest business in town.

Crossing Clinton Street, the main cross-street in town, one is reminded that in the very early days of Charlevoix, it was called "Hoop Skin Alley." On the southwest corner of Bridge and Clinton Streets is the Central Drug Store, under the management of the Ochs family, who are keeping alive the long tradition of a drug store at that location. M. I. Gear is a fine summer sportswear shop tucked between the drug store and Tom's Oyster Bar. Tom's has been well received by diners since it opened last year. Muddick's Ice Cream is next in line, a refreshment stop along the way.

Tax sharing to remain as is

The tax-supported entities of Charlevoix County will continue to receive the same portion of county tax collections they have received for the last several years.
Meeting last week, the county Separate Tax Allocation Board voted to distribute its 15 mills as follows: 4.7 mills to the county, one mill to the townships, 0.2 mill to the Char-Em School District, and 9.1 mills to the five school districts in the county.
A mill represents $1 of tax for every $1,000 of state equalized property value.
Members of the Separate Tax Allocation Board were County Treasurer Joan Balch, County Clerk Jane Brannon, County Board Chairman Don Smith, Boyne City School Board member Thelma Behling, Melrose Township Supervisor Alan Deneau, Boyne Falls School Board member Herb Griffin, Charlevoix resident Don Voisin (representing municipalities), and Exeline Township resident Ralph Richardson (member-at-large).
"All board members indicated their school or government entity could use more operating money but agreed there was no fairer way to divide up available funds than by the present formula. In addition to the allocated millage, the taxing bodies receive varying amounts of voted millage."

...objections raised to proposed busing change

but changed to the two-bus-run system in the mid 1970s for some of the reasons cited above.

Elementary teachers say circumstances were different for the school system when it changed to the two-bus-run system. At the time there were more students, no money to buy new buses and the state reimbursed the school system for mileage.

Elementary teachers claim changing from two to one bus run would save the school system approximately $50,000 per year.

School superintendent Rich Kelly and transportation manager Gordon Russell have looked at three different possibilities for a one-run system and see either a much lower savings than $50,000 or increased operational costs.

Under one plan the school would save $6,200 in operational costs, but would have to purchase an additional bus for between $35,000 and $40,000. There are also some reservations about whether that plan will work.

Under a second plan, the school would purchase two new buses and operational costs would increase by $1,100 per year.

Under a third plan, the school would purchase three new buses and operational costs would increase by $9,100 per year.

Russell explained that those figures are just estimates and there are a lot of variables such as how many kids happen to live in outlying areas during any given year.

School board member Larry Levegood has received several of the letters. Miller said that although the letters have been sent to Levegood, they are for the benefit of the entire Board. Levegood just happened to be the person they spoke to first.

Levegood said that the committee recommendation will go to the school board and the board will seek public input before any action is taken. He said there presently is no timetable, but since the matter is drawing public interest, his feeling is that the board will want to deal with it soon and get it resolved one way or the other.

As far as his own position on the matter, Levegood said he wants to keep an open mind, but added, "I have real serious concerns about it. There are some significant issues that have to be addressed."

Levegood also said that as the issue is discussed, he hoped that people's primary concern would be the education and welfare of the children, not how one system or the other would fit with their work or play schedule.

This is not the first time a change in the bus system has been discussed. In fact, earlier this year some members of the Professional Study Committee had discussed the matter and decided not to recommend a change. Later, between 20 and 25 elementary teachers showed up at one of the committee's meetings and persuaded the committee to reconsider and recommend the change.

Catching a nap on Bridge Street

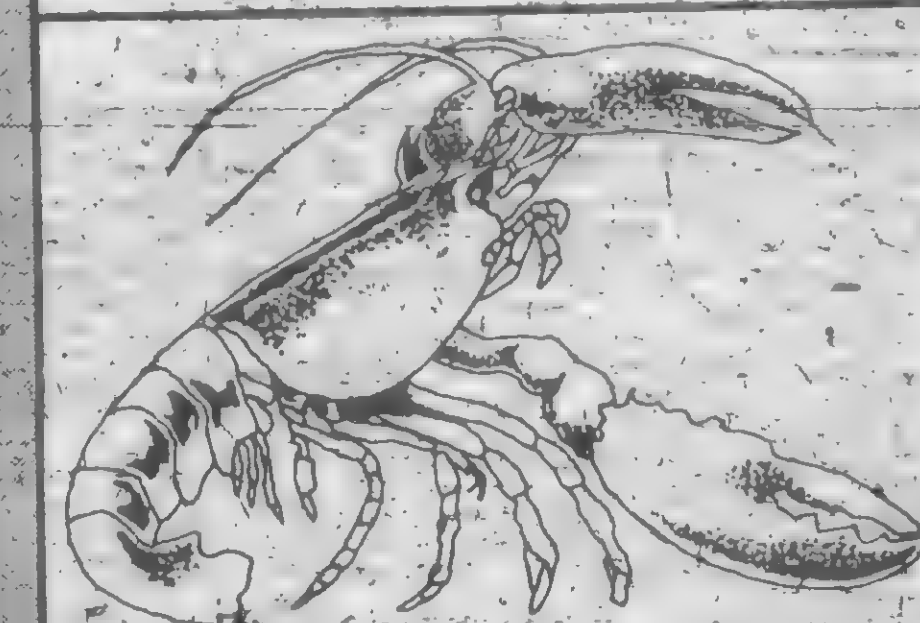

This little raccoon apparently lingered too long downtown and before he knew it daylight and all of the people that go with it were upon him. He spent last Wednesday sleeping in a tree in front of the Market Mall. By Thursday morning he was gone. Apparently, after things died down Wednesday night, he descended from the tree and waddled away.

EDITH GILBERT

Playing hide-and-go-seek at 7:30 a.m. is not part of my usual morning routine. But when one is a house guest one has to adapt to the rhythm of the family lifestyle. I try hard to adapt to the various environments, but it isn't easy to shift gears as one moves from home to home, which is what I do when I visit my family and friends in the Bay Area of San Francisco.

I sleep on a futon at my nephew Larry's in San Jose, and we walk the dog before going to bed. At my niece Janet's in Watsonville, we hide Easter Eggs after the children are asleep. At my sister Margot's in Berkeley, we watch Masterpiece Theater on one channel, while taping a special on another TV channel. At my friend Noy's in Menlo Park, we're assembling her son's wedding pictures in a tapestry photo album. (Her son was married 7 years ago!)

I've learned to put myself in neutral when visiting. One can't be rigid and enjoy being away from home. Take the matter of newspapers for starters. Fortunately, every place I visit has one or two papers delivered at the door. At my sister's, the papers are thoroughly read, articles are clipped and filed, and the scattered sheets are draped like evergreen swags over the living room chairs and tables as people fly out the door. My friend Noy on the other hand subscribes to three papers—none of which get read by anyone except me. She's much too busy polishing silver in preparation for an elegant luncheon in my honor. At my nephew Wally's, I can't find the morning paper while I'm having breakfast, because his wife has already stashed it in the garage to be recycled. At my niece Janet's, the front page has been folded into a soldier's hat. It's not easy reading the headlines as the paper hat revolves around the room on the head of a five year old, accompanied by battle cries of "Charge!"

Now that I'm home I'm back in forward gear, it's time to call the delivery department and have my afternoon paper renewed. It will be a pleasure to read local news again in the comfort of my own familiar surroundings. But it won't be long before my summer house guests start to arrive. I'll try to remember what it's like to be a visitor!

Letters to the Editor:

Caring spirit remains

Editor,
This past week Bob and I traveled "home" for the funeral of my dear father, Bob Bergman.

We haven't lived in Charlevoix in 30 years, and the physical changes are significant. What hasn't changed is the caring spirit the people of your community extend to those going through the pain of losing a loved one.

The kindness shown to our family helped ease the sadness.

With heartfelt thanks,
Mrs. Robert (Mary) Mol

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

Practical disregard

Everyday civil disobedience inspired by common sense often overcomes the harm of official public policy. Democracy shares this trait with other forms of government.

In recent weeks an interesting little public debate popped up over the parking lot at Ferry Beach. The debate centered around how boaters should park their vehicles and trailers in the lot next to the launching ramp.

Although the debate was interesting, I suspect the outcome will be of little practical consequence. Most boaters and other motorists find driving in close quarters with a trailer in tow to be a challenge. Boaters will park their vehicles and trailers as best they're able with no regard for prior debate at public meetings.

Boating, like most activities, is removed from the policy debates which attempt to govern them. Roberts Rules of Order do not apply at the launch ramp.

Picture two fishermen at the ramp. As one guy pulls the truck and trailer up out of the launching ramp, he calls to his buddy, "Stay with the boat. I'll be back in a second."

"Where you going?" the other guy asks.
"I gotta go park the trailer," the first guy answers.

"Park the trailer. Are you sure you can do that without a motion and a second?"

"In reality, it just doesn't work that way."

A plan to install islands of greenery throughout the present Ferry Beach parking lot triggered debate. The plan also called for parking spaces to be reconfigured. Currently there are three rows of parking spaces where you can pull in one side and out of the other. No backing up is required. According to plans, this will change to four rows of spaces and will theoretically require boat trailers either to be backed in or backed out.

The concept is not entirely without merit. The idea is to make the parking lot prettier and to encourage traffic to flow in a uniform direction rather than haphazardly.

The parking lot change is part of the whole Ferry Beach renovation project which is being overseen by the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) board.

Some of the local boaters squawked when they saw the original plan. They figured towing a boat and trailer between the cars parked in a lot is enough of a good time without throwing in organic obstacles. Scattering trees throughout the lot would just make for too much fun.

Some boaters also questioned the wisdom of changing from a system where you don't have to back up to park to a system which theoretically will require backing up boat trailers in the midst of parked cars and trees. These people gave themselves away as amateurs in the world of boating. Veteran boaters all know that the fun in boating isn't in being out on the open water. Any fool can drive around in launching the boat, parking the trailer and bringing the boat to dock. Backing a boat trailer into or out of a tight parking place shouldn't be considered a problem, but should be viewed as an added adventure.

After boaters hooted, the initial plan was revised. Islands were taken out of the middle of the lot and left only at the corners. That was an improvement. It got rid of obstacles in the middle of the lot.

The DDA met last week to consider the revised plan. With the obstacle problem resolved, that left three points of debate: 1. The number of parking spaces; 2. Requiring people to back trailers in the parking lot; 3. Paving 20 feet of grass at the edge of the beach and moving the parking bumpers farther in.

Paving 20 feet of grass area struck me as a bad move, but since another aspect of the overall renovation calls for adding more than 100 feet of grass area at the other end of the beach, that problem is mitigated.

The least important of the concerns was the number of parking spaces. But that's the issue that occupied most of the meeting. If you had no exposure to the Ferry Beach parking lot outside of what you heard at that meeting, you'd swear that parking lot is packed to the gills every day of summer. There again, that's where public policy and reality part. I doubt if that parking lot is full more than two or three times a summer. Normally there's plenty of room. Not only that, but part of the overall renovation calls for another big parking lot to be built near the electrical plant to take the beach parking out of the boater parking lot.

But after an hour and a half of discussion, the DDA board passed a revision of the revision to increase the number of parking spaces from 98 to 101.

I suppose that's all right, but it still leaves people backing up trailers—at least in theory. In reality, those boaters won't back up those trailers. They'll just cut across the painted lines and park their car and trailer so they can pull straight out. And what will that hurt?

Nothing like a little civil disobedience to polish the rough edges of public policy.

Letters to the Editor:

Little law and no order

Editor,

I am writing in regard to the recent articles concerning crimes in Charlevoix County. Throughout the last year and a half, Charlevoix has experienced a rash of crime waves. As a resident of Charlevoix, I am disturbed and outraged by the lack of what is being accomplished by the court system to deter crimes being committed in our town.

I am a victim of the crime rash in Charlevoix and so are the readers of this letter. On October 13, 1989, my apartment was broken into by two of the boys recently making headlines in the newspaper (Andrew Wynkoop and Joseph Prevo). One of them is in prison, convicted in a case involving the beating of an elderly woman and the other is jail charged with the murder of the McCleese woman.

This disturbs me to no end! Neither of these boys should have been on the street after their previous history of offenses. Drug and alcohol offenses, breaking and entering, destruction of property, disorderly conduct and the like. The list goes on and it all took place before the tragic major crimes they have been charged with: murder, rape, kidnapping etc.

I do not blame or fault our Charlevoix police force nor the county Sheriff's department. In fact, I commend them for a job well done. I fault our Charlevoix Court System. It stinks!

What good does it do for the police to do their job when the court does not do theirs? I can understand some leniency by the court on first-time offenders, but I do not understand the leniency on repeat offenders committing felony crimes. A breaking and entering is a felony crime punishable by up to a maximum of 10-15 years in prison. They got 10 days with one day credit for good behavior. What on earth is that?

Both of these boys have had a record of offenses a mile long, before and after the breaking and entering of my home in Charlevoix. The judicial department, meaning those who exercise control, those who enforce and uphold the law, slapped both boys hands with a feather. Why aren't you, the courts, representing the people of this county? Why aren't you doing more about these types of problems? Our system is inadequately dealing with the problem and it's getting progressively worse. Charlevoix has a rampage of crime rolling through it. Are we going to stand by and let it continue?

Right now there is little law and no order in the way this system is working. The two boys making headlines for their heinous crimes lately are proof of that. There are some things that need change. Our Charlevoix court system had better get its order back into its law so that we can have law and order back in this town. This is not Detroit. This is Charlevoix!

Sincerely,
Steven L. Rozema

Coverage criticized

Editor,

For years I've read articles covering the workings of your city and its struggle to find the medium between growth and becoming what people go to Charlevoix to avoid. I have read with frustration the articles about the water tower, the band shell, street lighting, city government, and the pool. In each case the tone of your reporting was biased and subjective. I feel you have targeted people and issues that do not meet your individual designs. This past Courier has brought my frustration to my writing point.

The paper bemoaned the school board for not advertising a debate on an issue your paper touted as controversial (March 20, 1991). The school board answered by stating that the agenda was published in its usual public location. This was a correct response by the school board. It is not a function of the public offices to determine which topics may be controversial, but to analyze and debate all issues on equal ground.

It is not the role of a newspaper to try to make issues controversial, but to monitor and inform the public of our elected officials' activities. The public will decide which issues will become controversial. You have misinterpreted your role in city government to that of participant rather than informant.

If you feel the need to voice an opinion, write an editorial. You, as journalist, should not select random issues and disparage them in your general reporting. It is clear to me that your challenges to the city government are a grasp for personal power and derangement of your obligation as journalist. You have filled your editorial space with dummy fodder while embellishing your reporting with editorials.

Sincerely,
Brian Coolman

Grand Rapids Symphony to perform in Charlevoix

By Peg Oble

The youngsters of Charlevoix as well as their older brothers and sisters, their parents, their grandparents, and their friends have a treat in store for them Monday, May 20.

On that day, the Grand Rapids Symphony is coming to town to perform twice. During the day, elementary, middle, and parochial school children will be guests at a special children's performance, and in the evening the general public will be invited to attend an adult performance. Both performances will take place in the High School gym.

The Symphony is being brought to Charlevoix by the newly-formed Charlevoix Council for the Arts. This group plans to bring accomplished artists in music, performing arts, visual arts and dance to Charlevoix once a year to perform for the children, with an added program for others.

"We are planning this so that by the time children reach middle school age, they will have some knowledge of all the arts," explained Suzi Reis of the Charlevoix Council for the Arts.

The children's program prepared by the Grand Rapids Symphony includes such light-hearted numbers as Haydn's "Symphony No. 83 'La Poutle'" (The Hen), Copland's "John Henry—a Railroad Ballad for Orchestra," and Bartok's "Romanian Folk Dances."

The evening performance includes works by Mendelssohn, Tchaikovsky, and Beethoven and will feature cellist Nancy Stelmann in Tchaikovsky's "Variations on a Rococo Theme for Cello and Orchestra." John Varineau will conduct both performances.

Tickets for the evening performance will soon go on sale. They will be $5 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens. All proceeds will go to the Band Boosters, who will prepare and serve dinner to orchestra members before the evening performance. Members of the High School Band will also assist with the serving.

Summer classes to be offered on Beaver Island

Central Michigan University is offering science, art and theater classes for credit at Beaver Island and Higgins Lake this summer.

At Beaver Island, "Archaeological Field and Laboratory Techniques" (ANT 240) will be taught May 13-31. "Field Photography" (BIO 597), "Zooplankton Ecology" (BIO 597), "Field Methods for Teachers" (BIO 610) and "Behavioral Ecology" (BIO 652) will be taught June 24 through July 12. "Watercolors" (ART 234/597/697), "Ceramics" (ART 597), "Papermaking" (ART 597/697) and "Theater Improvisation for Performance" (TAI 578) will be taught Aug. 3-16.

All classes will be taught for three credit hours at the CMU-Biological Station on the east shore of Beaver Island in northern Lake Michigan, about 32 miles north-west of Charlevoix.

Students should be enrolled at least 14 days prior to the beginning of the courses they select. Enrollment is limited and paid registrations will determine priority. For registration information, call the CMU Community Services office, phone 547-4819.

Beaver Island receives grant for medical center

A $58,000 grant to help fund medical care on Beaver Island will continue through the 1991 fiscal year despite state budget cuts, Rep. Ralph Ostling and Sen. George McManus, Jr. announced last week.

The two lawmakers have worked with officials from the Michigan Department of Public Health to preserve the funding. The state contributes the grant through District Health Department No. 3 to assist the island's medical center. The funds have been used to pay for a nurse practitioner.

"This is great news for the residents of Beaver Island," Ostling said. "They've grown to rely on a full-time nurse in the medical center, particularly during the isolation of winter. I'm pleased we could retain this valuable service."

The island has been struggling since last November when nurse practitioner and army reservist Michael McGinnity left to serve in the Persian Gulf. Since his departure, island residents have been assisted by a retired doctor.

Lisabeth Clapham, supervisor of St. James Township, said 400 people live on the island year-round, but the population swells to more than 3,000 during the warm weather months.

While happy about the grant preservation, Clapham also is excited that nurse practitioner McGinnity is scheduled to return to the island on May 21.

"And not a moment too soon. We've had several close calls," said Clapham, who said McGinnity is particularly helpful to elderly residents unable to leave their homes.

"Beaver Island is 32 miles away from the mainland and having proper medical care is vital to this removal location. This grant is a lifeline for many concerned people," McManus said.

"Anyone reading the letters from Beaver Island residents has to be touched by their plight. When a woman describes how she was saved by prompt medical attention you are reminded of how important this grant can be. For some, it could mean the difference between life and death," Ostling concluded.

Conservancy receives grant for wetlands program

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has been granted $52,691.00 by the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation to continue its Great Lakes Wetlands Policy Program.

Tip of the Mitt's Great Lakes Wetlands Policy Program has many components on both the Great Lakes Basin level and the state level. On the state level, the Mott grant will fund the efforts of the Watershed Council in coordinating the Michigan Action Coalition (MAC). The MAC is a network of organizations and individuals involved in wetland protection in Michigan," said Wil Cwikiel. "The Watershed Council will serve to coordinate activities of the Coalition to promote wetland protection activities throughout Michigan. Activities of the Coalition will include advocating for improved wetland regulations at all levels, increasing citizen participation in wetland protection, promoting wetland restoration, and providing education."

In addition to the various activities involved with coordinating the Michigan Action Coalition, the grant will pay for the production of a comprehensive protection resource guidebook. This guidebook will contain information to help citizen and organizations ensure that wetlands in their areas receive the protection they deserve.

On the Basin level, the Watershed Council will work towards implementing the recommendations of the Great Lakes Wetlands Policy Consortium in Michigan. The consortium, initiated and coordinated by the Watershed Council in 1989, was made up of 22 environmental and conservation organizations in the United States and Canada. This group developed 50 recommendations to enhance wetland protection at all levels.

Also on the Great Lakes Basin level is the production of "Great Lakes Wetlands," a newsletter that is published quarterly by the Watershed Council. "The grant from the C.S. Mott Foundation provides us with the opportunity to produce and distribute the only newsletter that focuses specifically on wetlands of the Great Lakes Basin," said Wil Cwikiel, Watershed Council Environmental Policy Specialist and editor of the newsletter. "Great Lakes Wetlands" currently has a readership of about 2,000 individuals in the United States and Canada.

The Watershed Council is non-profit organization which strives to protect water quality and promote the wise use of water resources in the watersheds of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, and Emmet Counties. Their work centers around preserving the environmental, economic, and aesthetic values of our lakes, streams, wetlands, and groundwater. Primary goals include water quality monitoring, promoting effective water resources policy, education, and monitoring activities that impact water resources.

The C.S. Mott Foundation is a private foundation located in Flint. The Foundation makes grants in a number of interest areas.

CHURCH

Methodist Church to host spring luncheon

The United Methodist Women are hosting their Spring Salad Luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday, April 26 at the church, located at 104 State Street.

The menu includes several casseroles and cold salad dishes in addition to rolls, beverage and pies. The cost is $4 for adults and $3.50 for senior citizens.

Baked goods and bazaar items will also be for sale at the luncheon.

Volunteers honored

This week is Volunteer Week and Social Services Director Richard Tilden and his staff are thanking all volunteers past and present for their time and efforts.

"Volunteers are caring and giving people who have helped clients and staff in many ways," Tilden said. Vasco-Zucchiatti, Volunteer Services Supervisor, added, "Volunteers have that special quality to give to others and have a positive attitude that their support will make a difference."

"Volunteers have choices of service time, ranging from short-term projects once a year, monthly contacts, or weekly contacts. Some give time almost every day, and others prefer to be 'on call,' ready to do about anything as the need arises."

Zucchiatti further explained, "It's amazing how well requests for volunteer services are matched with available volunteers. The large pool of volunteers allows our office to handle most special needs that arise."

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton

One spring, a man decided that it would be a very good project to repaint the outside of his church. Any time a parishioner gets an idea like that, most pastors are delighted. He got approval right away.

As he really got into his task, he discovered that it was going to take a lot more paint than he had planned on. In fact, on reaching the last wall of the church, he found he was going to run out.

Instead of going to get some more paint, he decided he would just stretch the paint he had left by adding a little thinner. He got the job done but he did not count on one thing. That night, it rained.

Where you would have thought should have been a beautiful paint job, there was a mess of streaks, runs, and stains. Devastated, the man knew he had to fess up to his mistake.

"Pastor, I'm sorry. I was just trying to make the paint stretch and instead I've made a mess. I just don't know what to do. What should I do?" The preacher looked him in the eyes and said, "Repaint! And thin no more!"

"I hope that made you smile and groan all at the same time. We need to recognize the value of laughter in our lives. Even the Bible reminds us that 'a merry heart doeth good like a medicine.' Can you think of some reasons to laugh and smile today?"

As I got the Monday morning school routine under way, I was surprised to find my kids in the kitchen mixing up pancake batter all by themselves. I let them carry on until it was ready for the griddle.

As my son tackled his Mickey Mouse stack (two small ones for ears and a big one for the face), he said, "Gee, they taste so much better when you make them yourself!" I haven't quite figured out how to take that!

There are so many things that pop up in the course of the week that try to rob you of your joy. Instead of paying so much attention to them, make an equal effort to look for other things that will make you smile. The Bible says, "Rejoice in the Lord always and again I say rejoice!" Make it a special week.

Paddlers urged to paddle it safely on Michigan rivers

Finding a place to rent a canoe is fairly easy in Michigan. The state has close to 100 canoe liveries along popular waterways in both peninsulas.

But first-time canoeists or occasional paddlers may need help before heading out for an afternoon on the water so AAA Michigan has compiled some tips for an enjoyable and safe canoe trip. They include:

Wear personal flotation devices. Wearing a life jacket is the easiest way to ensure your safety in case the canoe capsizes or you fall out of the boat," said Robert V. Cullen, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager.

Avoid alcohol. "Drinking impairs boating capabilities, clouds judgment, affects balance and coordination and weakens survival skills," Cullen said.

Know how to swim. Canoeists should be competent swimmers, even when fully clothed.

Don't overload. Keep cargo at a minimum and pack it low and in the middle of the canoe. This lowers the center of gravity and stabilizes the vessel.

Keep gear dry. Pack food, clothing and other items in watertight containers—a couple of garbage bags sealed separately and packed one inside the other. Attach to the canoe.

Bring a change of clothing. In addition, a hat and sunscreen are musts for sunny days while a windbreaker and long pants can ward off chills during storms or cool weather.

Strap sunglasses and eyeglasses in place.

Keep car keys in a buttoned-down or zippered pocket. Leave jewelry and other valuables home.

Wear tennis shoes for wading. Respect private property. Camp and picnic on public property or gain permission of the property owner on private land.

Don't litter. Attach a garbage bag to the canoe.

Watch the weather. Get off the water during unexpected electrical storms or periods of high winds.

Canoe liveries provide rental service on more than two dozen state rivers. Rental rates vary depending on the length of trip and size of the party.

Most liveries open in April or May and close for the season in October or November. Reservations are recommended, especially during summer weekends and holidays.

Planned Parenthood has new building

PLANNED PARENTHOOD

An Open House at the new clinic of Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood is scheduled for Tuesday, April 30 from 4-7 p.m. The new facility is located at 1003 Spring Street in Petoskey, one block east of the Crestview Mall. The Open House is open to the public.

The new building houses Planned Parenthood's Petoskey clinic and administrative offices. It is a 70 year old house which was the former location for the Horizon Program, a residential program for pregnant and parenting teens.

Planned Parenthood's new building has approximately one-third more space for both the clinic and offices, and the layout of the facility enables staffs to see clients more efficiently and with greater privacy. The new location, near the new K-Mart, is more visible and more easily accessible to Planned Parenthood clients.

Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood was founded in 1970. For the past 11 years, the agency has operated in the Lockwood-McDonald Professional building.

After 11 years in the same location, we had simply outgrown it, states Martha Lancaster, Director of Development and External Affairs. "Our Petoskey clinic now provides over 2,500 visits per year, and hundreds more people are benefited by our outreach education program. We will be able to serve the community more effectively in a larger facility."

Renovation of the new building was funded primarily by donations. The Capital Campaign to complete the funding of the project is continuing.

The goal of the final phase of Planned Parenthood's Capital Campaign is $23,000. To date, we have raised over $15,000," says Lancaster. "The Open House will give our donors and those still considering helping with the funding an opportunity to see how their contributions are being used."

Baseball team loses opener, but fares better the next day

Charlevoix varsity baseball team opened its season by losing two games to Cheboygan, but bounced back the next day to split two games against Central Lake.

Charlevoix had only bad luck against Cheboygan, losing 10-1 and 12-3. The Rayders trailed from the start in game one, but stayed close until the fourth inning of game two when Cheboygan broke things open with six runs.

Shoddy defense doomed the Rayders as they committed a total of seven errors in the two games. Dan Terryberry took the pitching loss in game one while Guy Gengle got the loss in game two.

Ken Olinget had two hits in the first game. Terryberry had a two-run home run in the second game. Charlevoix lost a 15-11 slugfest (or error fest) to open a double header against Central Lake. Charlevoix helped the Trojans by committing four errors in the sixth inning. Central Lake scored seven runs in the inning.

Ken Olinget took the pitching loss in relief of Jordan Spencer.

Spencer had two doubles while Scott Campbell, Luke Porath, Scott Kehrer each had two singles.

Travis Blissett and Porath combined to pitch a two-hit shutout in game two which the Rayders won 4-0.

Blissett struck out five while not walking anybody in three innings. Porath struck out one and walked two in mopping up the fourth and final inning. Each pitcher gave up one hit.

The Rayders mustered only three hits in the game; doubles by Campbell and Terryberry and a single by Kehrer.

Tennis team beats Boyne City 5-2

Charlevoix's tennis team got its first win of the season with a 5-2 win at Boyne City April 18.

Charlevoix lost the number one and two singles matches, but won everything else.

Paul Cunningham lost to Boyne City's Jason Jones 1-6, 7-6, 7-5 in number one singles.

Chris Pair lost to Boyne City's Tim Fall 6-3, 6-1 in number two doubles.

Jeff Joy of Charlevoix beat Tony Jacobs 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 in number three singles.

David Dobuhs of Charlevoix beat Justin Griffin 6-4, 6-2 in number four singles.

In number one doubles, Corey Crain and Sam Bingham beat Boyne City's Kevin Lockman and Mike Feagan 6-2, 6-0.

In number two doubles, Todd Koyach and Erich McElroy of Charlevoix beat Eric Smith and Andy Vondra 6-3, 6-2.

In number three doubles, Charlevoix's Jasper Sweeney and Mike Dobuhs beat Kurt Harvay and Kristen Harvey 7-5, 6-3.

A late throw allowed this Cheboygan runner to score despite the efforts of Charlevoix catcher Jordan Spencer.

Scott Kehrer had the timing right, but swung just a bit high on this pitch in a game against Cheboygan last week. Kehrer did get a hit later in the at bat.

Softball meeting

The Charlevoix Recreation will host its preseason softball meeting at 7 p.m. May 1 at City Hall. The meeting is for both men's and women's leagues. Each team planning to participate should send a representative to the meeting. Rules and team fees will be discussed.

The biggest change along Bridge Street this year is that of the former Staley Hardware building being converted into a women's wear shop. The hardware store went out of business, and after a long vacancy, the building was bought by the owners of Country Casuals women's wear, which is moving up the street from its smaller quarters at Park and Bridge.

Across the alleyway that leads to the large city parking lot is the new home of Bananarama, purveyors of all sorts of summer sportswear and accessories. The Charlevoix Shirt Company is next in line, with its stock of tops for all. Next door, Kousky Galleries, featuring contemporary and other periods of art in many media, provides a real gallery atmosphere for art buyers and lookers alike. The Rocking Horse Toy Company is a place for kids young and old to find leisure time amusement and even education.

The next three shops along the street, Charlevoix Wear, Cotton Jacq's, and The Clothing Company, all seem inter-related in one way or another. Charlevoix Wear has long been a source of specially designed and crafted Charlevoix sweatshirts and T-shirts. Cotton Jacq's came to town a couple of years ago, stocking colorful cotton clothing and accessories. The Clothing Company, at the corner of Mason and Bridge Streets, has been a Charlevoix clothing anchor shop for 16 years. It was closed for a while this winter while damage caused by a runaway Army vehicle was being repaired. Attractive new doors and windows now grace the exterior of the building, and most of the antique interior woodwork has been refurbished.

Around the corner on Mason Street, the Rose Cottage antique shop will again operate in its garden setting. An additional building has been added to provide space for more merchandise. Jaywalking diagonally across Mason Street from the Rose Cottage, there is a new studio-art shop. North Seas Art Gallery opened a few weeks ago with a carefully selected collection of imported paintings and other works of art, mostly from Holland, Germany, and France.

The southwest corner of Mason and Bridge Streets has been brightened by the yellow tones of the Subway Shop, an eatery featuring sandwiches, salads, chips, and cookies and an assortment of beverages.

Bridge Street Hardware, next to the Subway Shop, is the present incarnation of a long line of hardware stores that have occupied this site for more than 75 years, beginning with the Wood Brothers. Mike Hilligan, present owner, has renovated the store inside and out, readying it for today's handyman, decorator, gardener, fisherman, hunter, or archer, as well as collectors and users of Amish kitchenware, hats, aprons, and small pieces of furniture.

Angela Mason Interior Design continues to operate as a studio shop on Bridge Street, next to the entrance to the Market Mall. While most of Mason's work is custom designing, she has many items for sale at retail.

Charlevoix professional photographic studio, the Aartvark Studio, run by Terry Salmonson, is on the south side of the Market Mall entrance. His windows usually feature examples of his photographic art.

The Cabana Club shop, featuring custom-made sweatshirts and T-shirts, is located between Aartvark and the Great Lakes Fish and Chips Restaurant. Fish and Chips, the Village, and Terry's Place, around the corner on Antrim Street, are three different types of eating places, all under the same general management.

Returning to the Market Mall, the C & M Hobby Card Shop is new this year. So are Brazilian Imports and The Village Shop. The latter features southwestern articles and works of art. P. S. the Added Touch Beauty Salon is the oldest inhabitant of the Mall, serving customers on an appointment and walk-in basis. The Beach Sunbathing place not only helps customers acquire color but will dress them in colorful active sports wear.

Passageway Travel and Desk Top Publishing share the same office near the Mason Street door of the Market Mall. Next to that office is Northern Michigan Property Management. Showbiz Video, renters of video tapes, lights up the back of the Market Mall with its marquee-like entrance. The Sunglass Shoppe sells a wide variety of sunglasses and accessories.

Oleson's Shopping Center, on the southwest corner of Antrim and Bridge Streets with Oleson's Foot Store as the anchor, is also home to Yogurt Time Plus, the Camera Shop, Charlevoix Floral, and The Beauty Shoppe.

Leaving Oleson's Shopping Center, we cross Bridge Street to the Seven-Eleven Food Store, Store

No. 97 in that well-known party store chain, then pass the Chamber of Commerce Building to take note of the businesses on the east (lake) side of Bridge Street. The Parkside Restaurant, in its vintage brick building, remains at the corner of Mason and Bridge Streets, ready to serve summer visitors for yet another year. The Wharfside Market and Deli, also a vintage building, is Charlevoix's largest party store, selling not only party items but providing Dave Phillips catering service to prepare and serve them. On the lower level of The Wharfside Market, Dilworth Boats has a sales and service office.

Walking north along East Park, we take note of the new Band Shell at almost the same location as the previous one. The East Park lawn continues all the way to Clinton Street, where retail businesses still thrive on the lake side of Bridge Street.

Murdick's Fudge is on the corner of Bridge and Clinton Streets, as it has been for years. The office building next door, occupied by Coldwell-Banker Real Estate, bears the name and date "E.H. Green 1886" below its roofline. The Applebee Gift Shop, which is another Charlevoix's year-round shops, is next in line, nudged up to Cinema III Theater. Charlevoix's one and only theater. Next door to Cinema III, the 218 Bridge Street Restaurant has an area called "The Bridge Club." Adjacent to 218 Bridge Street is Wishes and Whimsies, a collective name for a shop selling a collection of gift and personal items. Tom's Mom's Cookies, the recipe for which was born in Charlevoix, occupies the next storefront. Then comes the newly remodeled East Park Center building (formerly Burnside's), which will be the home of a new Acorn Dress Shop this summer.

Proceeding past the driveway to the Beaver Island dock and across the bridge, we are in front of the Edgewater Inn, with its cafe and small shops. Among the shops are Studio One, a stained glass gallery, the Hair Quarters beauty salon, and a Town and Country Cedar Homes branch office.

Outlying shopping centers have been added to the Charlevoix landscape. Captain's Corners, at M-66 and U.S. 31, is the oldest. There, Glen's Market is the supermarket anchor. Rite-way Drugs, Little Caesars Pizza, Hallmark Gifts, Ben Franklin True Value, and the Mariner Landmark fill the other shops. Those looking for entertainment might try the Venture Golf course.

Farther down M-66 is the new Charlevoix Commons shopping center, complete with a K-mart store, Buy-Low grocery, Charlevoix Apothecary, Radip Shack and Horizon Video.

While all the above mentioned businesses are located in downtown Charlevoix or in established shopping malls, there are many individual stores in separate locations. These include Don's I.G.A., Expressions Unlimited flower shop, and Johan's Bakery on the north side of town. Cross Fisheries on Belvedere Avenue, Jerry's Meats on East Lincoln Street, Andy's Party Store on West Garfield, Quickie Print, Judy's Restaurant, and Tripp's Paints on Antrim Street, the First State Bank of Charlevoix on State Street, Country Blossoms on the Old Norwood Road, and Country Customs on South Bridge Street.

Several new business have also located along M-66 across the highway from the malls. Among these are the County Post hardware store, Marvin's Gardens greenhouse and garden supplies, and Pumco Paints.

Heavy precipitation continues to raise lake levels

Precipitation on the Great Lakes Basin was well above average in March. This is in contrast to the below average values for the prior two months, but is in keeping with the trend of the last quarter of 1990, of above average precipitation throughout the Basin. As of the end of March, precipitation on the Great Lakes for 1991 is not average on each of the Great Lakes Basins.

The Great Lakes forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, shows that Lake Superior is expected to remain below its long-term average levels during the next six months. Lakes Michigan-Huron are expected to remain near their long-term average throughout the forecast period. Lakes St. Clair, Erie, and Ontario are projected to continue above their long-term averages throughout the forecast period.

A more detailed summary of Lakes Michigan-Huron water levels follows.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of March were at elevation 578.01 feet (176.18 meters) above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 15 inches (38 cm) above Chart datum. This was about 6 inches (15 cm) above what it was a year ago, and about 4 inches (10 cm) above one month ago. The March monthly mean level of 577.82 feet (176.12 meters) was about 1 inch (3 cm) below the long-term average for March. The lakes, however, remained about 30 inches (76 cm) above their all-time low March monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1964. The forecast shows that at the end of April, the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 3 inches (7.6 cm) above what it was at the end of March. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal rise into July. The water level in September 1991, is expected to be about 2 inches (5 cm) above the long-term average for that month, or about 6 inches (15 cm) above what it was at the same time in 1990.

Sproul and Williams honored for law enforcement efforts

Deputy Sheriff Sproul has been named Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department employee of the year for 1990, while Don Williams has been named Sheriff's Department auxiliary member of the year.

Sheriff's department activities Sproul has been involved in during the past year include:

*Coordinated a Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program in Charlevoix County, in conjunction with Officer Ready.

Howard of the Boyne City Police Department, and became one of the first certified DARE instructors in northern Michigan.

*Coordinated a Neighborhood Watch Program in Charlevoix County that has proven to be an excellent crime prevention program for county residents.

*Coordinated a "Child Watch" program in Charlevoix County that has received positive reviews from all area law enforcement agencies.

*Has been assigned as the department's lead investigator for all criminal sexual conduct complaints that involve children as victims.

*Has coordinated a Victim/Witness program in Charlevoix County with the Prosecuting Attorney's office and the Sheriff's office and currently has enlisted six volunteer advocates who have assisted many victims involved in rape cases, children victims of criminal sexual conduct, assault and battery etc. The program has created a rapport between victims and law enforcement agencies which has not always been present in the past.

Williams has been with the auxiliary unit for several years. He has donated many hours to upgrade his own training and the professional image of the auxiliary. The auxiliary assists the department, providing the manpower to make Charlevoix County a safer place.

Pischner receives award

David Pischner, a security officer with Burns International Security Services' operation at Big Rock Point nuclear power plant, was presented an award for outstanding performance in 1990 at the Baker Industries-Wimpey Circle, an annual employee recognition event, which took place April 4-7 in La Jolla, Calif.

A Charlevoix resident, Pischner and his wife Mary received the award at a black-tie ceremony held at the Sheraton Grande Torrey Pines Hotel. He was honored for the high level of commitment he has demonstrated in performing his security duties at the plant.

A division of Baker Industries, Inc., the Parsippany, N.J.-based Burns International provides contract guard services to clients through offices in the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom and Columbia, S.A. Other Baker Industries operations include Pony Express Courier Corp., Wells Fargo Alarm Services, Wells Fargo Armored Service Corporation and Wells Fargo Guard Services.

Soldiers recall Persian Gulf War

By L. Scott Swanson

Waves of planes were flying over Scott Crain's head when he woke up for guard duty Jan. 17 in Saudi Arabia. It was a sound he will never forget. Elsewhere in the desert sands, Steve Sutton's fellow soldiers woke him up to tell him the war had begun. He remembers thinking, "Good, now we can get done with this."

Crain and Sutton are two local soldiers who helped chase Saddam Hussein's forces out of Kuwait. They returned to Charlevoix only a few weeks ago. Last week they talked about their experiences in the Mideast.

Crain is an E-3 PFC in the Army. He served as a scout with the HHC-18 Infantry Battalion. He was with a reconnaissance unit which snuck into Iraq for a peek at the enemy four times before the ground war started.

Sutton is an E-4 Specialist in the Army. He served as a helicopter mechanic for the D-troop, 2-4 Cavalry.

Sutton and Crain were among the first military personnel to arrive in the Gulf. Sutton was there from Aug. 28 to April 12. Crain was there from Sept. 3 to March 30.

Troops were dispatched to the Persian Gulf in a hurry. Crain and Sutton both flew over on civilian aircraft. It took longer to get military machinery to the Gulf. The troops that were in early spent several weeks waiting for their equipment.

Crain said that for about the first month, there were no cois and he slept in and on various military vehicles.

During the first few weeks, the weather was hot. How hot? It's hard to say. As Sutton explained, the thermometers his unit had only went up to 120 degrees. Those topped out. He estimated that at times the temperature reached 130 degrees.

The weather began cooling off in November and by January there were nights when it got downright cold. Crain said he remembers some mornings when he woke up covered with frost.

Once equipment arrived, Sutton and Crain both left with their units for different parts of the desert. Crain spent about four and a half months 100 miles from the Kuwait border. He moved to within 10 miles of the Iraqi border Jan. 15. After the ground war began, he ended up in Iraq, 40 miles west of Basra.

Sutton spent much of his stay 60 miles south of the Kuwait border. His unit also was moved in mid January. After the ground war began, he ended up in Basra.

Crain and Sutton both said that before the war began, the boredom was the worst part of being in the desert. Crain said a typical day might be classes in the morning, cleaning equipment, writing letters and playing volleyball during the day and training at night.

Mail call was the highlight of the day.

Both of the soldiers said mail was very important. The soldiers got bummed out on days when they didn't receive a letter.

In addition to letters, there were rare occasions when the soldiers got a chance to phone home.

"You had to travel two or three hours to get to a phone," Sutton explained. "So whenever you got a chance to go, you went."

Eating in the desert was no great thrill. Sutton and Crain both grimaced at the thought of Army MREs (Meals Ready to Eat). In the desert, a fine dining experience was taking the ham slice out of MRE; finding some mustard for it and putting the ham slice between two crackers. Powdered eggs tasted good compared to MREs. A priority matter for both soldiers when they got out of the desert was grabbing a cheeseburger at the first opportunity. Sutton and Crain noted that the military made it a point to provide big dinners for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Training for the possibility of chemical warfare was a special nuisance. Crain said that although there were no chemical attacks, there were times when alarms went off and days when soldiers spent up to four hours in chemical suits. Sutton said there was an occasion when his unit had to put

Speech team advances to state

Charlevoix High School Performing Arts students leave this weekend for the two-day State Individual Events Championships, at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, a series of speech contests, for which Charlevoix now holds the Class C-D Title.

Representing Charlevoix this year at the Championship competition will be: J. P. Haneckow, Poetry; Troy Bonar, Prose; David Hunter, Story Telling; B.J. VanLoo, Dramatic Interpretation; and the multiple reading team performing "Into the Woods." Jeff Warner, Brian Coolman, Megan Bickerseth, Randy Williams, Amber Phillips, Melissa Mosher and David Skeel.

A second multiple team based on the play "Steel Magnolias" is currently ranked as an "alternate," which means the team could be selected to fill a spot if another team from another school can't compete. That team includes Kristen Browne, Danielle Louchs, Julie Gengle, Amy Cook, Stacey LeCureux and Mindy Noiret. (Photo and story courtesy of Sara Gay Dammann.)

...soldiers recall Gulf War on chemical suits due to what he was told was not an attack, but some kind of chemical testing in Iraq where residue set off U.S. alarms.

Crain said that when the soldiers first arrived in the Gulf, the word was that by Oct. 31 they would know something one way or the other about when, or whether, there would be a war. Oct. 31 came and passed and then the word was that the U.S. would attack some moonless night in November. After that nobody was sure exactly when something would break out until the shooting began.

During the air war, Crain and Sutton were fortunate in that they had a better idea than most of the soldiers as to what was happening on the other side of the enemy line. As a scout, Crain was getting a first-hand look at what was happening on the other side of the line from his unit. Sutton said he picked up a lot of information during card games with the helicopter pilots.

When the ground war began Feb. 24, Crain and Sutton were both with units which moved into Iraq.

Crain's unit drove straight through for more than 200 miles. They went into the Euphrates River Valley and ended up near Basra. At one time, they were only 150 miles from Baghdad. His unit ran into the Third Commando Unit of the Iraqi Republican Guard.

Crain said things worked out well as the U.S. forces quickly captured the Republican Guard general and his staff. One of the weaknesses of the Iraqi forces is that they don't train people to step into leadership positions. American soldiers are trained to be able to lead if they have to. Once the Iraqi general and his staff were captured, 1,200 soldiers from the unit surrendered.

At about 3 a.m. Feb. 26 two soldiers from Crain's platoon were shot and injured. The platoon encountered two Iraqi supply trucks. After the trucks refused to stop when warning shots were fired, the U.S. troops killed the drivers. Other occupants of the truck bailed out of the back and one began running. An American truck began pursuing him. The man laid down in the sand, but at the last second stood up and began firing at the U.S. soldiers. He injured two soldiers before he was killed. Despite that one incident, Crain said most of the Iraqi soldiers his unit encountered threw up their arms and were happy to surrender. He said many of them were desperate for food and water.

Sutton said he spent much of the ground war riding in the back of a truck and eating dust. He said that at one point his convoy stopped and he looked out and saw Iraqis walking alongside the convoy and waving whatever white material they could get their hands on. Sutton said many of the Iraqis had no intention of fighting. He recalled how the commander of one U.S. unit took 45 Iraqis captive. The commander, carrying only a 9mm handgun, walked into an Iraqi bunker U.S. soldiers had surrounded. The Iraqis all had AK47 machine guns, but they dropped them and held up their hands.

Sutton's unit suffered no casualties. He said the unit lost one helicopter, but the people in it survived.

When asked if the U.S. action was necessary, Sutton and Crain both said yes. Sutton said he talked to Americans in Saudi Arabia who believed the Iraqis could have taken over that country. Crain said he was told that some Saudis believed the Iraqis were ready to take the country.

Crain and Sutton are presently home on leave and both are looking forward to getting out of the Army later this year. Crain plans to come home and then go to college. Sutton wants to go to an aviation college in Florida and study aeronautical engineering.

Crain signed up for a two-year stint in the Army straight out of high school. When asked if he ever thought things would turn out the way they did, he said, "I never guessed."

Sutton said that after spending 18 years in Charlevoix, he joined the Army and was stationed in a series of progressively warmer climates. After his stint in the desert, he figures he's seen enough hot spots.

Both soldiers said they wanted to thank everyone in their hometown for their support during the war.

Hospital board has openings

The terms of three members of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors expire in July. Two of the three are standing for re-election and one is retiring.

Nominations for the positions may be made by any member of the hospital association or person who has donated to the hospital in the past year. Those nominated should be at least 18 years of age and be a member of the association in good standing or a contributor to the hospital. He or she should have an interest in the betterment and fiscal status of the hospital.

Nominations should be in writing and addressed to Richard L. Krueger, Administrator, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Lake Shore Drive, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Three senior citizens prepare for graduation

Three senior citizens will be honored at the monthly senior potluck and dance at the American Legion Hall on E. Garfield St. May 14, at 6 p.m. Earning the required number of credits to receive a high school diploma are Bea Warner and Emma and Frank Zednick.

Invited speakers will be Don Gustafson from Straits Area Community Education, Ken Bartley, Charlevoix Community Education director and Bill Huber, aid to Congressman Bob Davis. Ted Mockerman from East Jordan will give the invocation and benediction.

"They have worked hard these past two years and deserve to be honored," said Sherry Black, Director/coordinator of the Charlevoix Senior Center. "It is never easy to come back to school after being away from it for so long and often extra effort is needed to get through some of these classes."

All three will participate in graduation exercises at Charlevoix High School at 2 p.m. June 2.

Middle school band plans spring concert

One hundred middle school musicians will perform when the Charlevoix Seventh and Eighth Grade Bands present a Spring Concert Monday, May 8 in the High School gym. A wide variety of music will be played by the two groups, including marches, concert overtures, show tunes, and rock. Each group will play five or six selections, and then the two groups will combine to play three numbers as a massed band. The concert promises to provide an evening of lively instrumental entertainment. The program will begin at 8 p.m. and will be about 50 minutes in length. It is open to the public free of charge.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

Lets's not spend taxes poolishly

Monday, May 13 promises to be an interesting day. People who take the time to vote Monday, May 13 will decide whether or not local property-tax payors will finance construction of an indoor swimming pool on school property, more than likely at the elementary school. It's at least a $2.29 million question or about a $3.4 million question when you include interest costs.

I make no bones about my position on the matter. I hope the pool proposal is rejected. In my view, local property-tax payors need a $3.4 million tax increase for a swimming pool about like they need a hole-in-the-head. Mondays are generally busy days for me, but Monday, May 13 I'll make the time to vote myself up to elementary school and cast a "No" vote.

It will be interesting to see how the vote turns out. People who have been promoting the swimming pool claim that the only opposition to the pool comes from a small, but vocal minority of people. On the other hand, opponents of the pool claim pool supporters are a small, but vocal minority. Once the votes are counted, we'll obviously have a better handle on that.

Pool proponents refer to surveys which they claim validate their contention that a sweeping majority of people favor building a pool at the elementary school. Personally, I view surveys with skepticism. As often as not, surveys aren't used to find out what people think. Instead, surveys are tailored to produce specific results which can be used to promote a position. With that in mind, pool survey results have never done much to convince me of the merits of a pool. The May 13 election will provide a more objective survey.

My opposition to the pool doesn't stem from a lack of understanding as to what's being proposed. For the past two and a-half years, I, and most other people in the community, have heard about this swimming pool thing until we're blue in the ears. I give the pool people credit for working hard to get their message out. But although I've heard the message time and time again, I still feel that when you get to the bottom of the pool, what you're looking at is a high-priced luxury, not a necessity.

There are two main reasons for voting no May 13: 1. The pool should not be tax-funded. 2. The pool should not be at the elementary school.

In case it's escaped anyone's attention, property taxes are already a burden. At the state level, legislators, at the behest of irate voters, have been debating how to decrease the burden of property taxes. Locally, the board of review recently was a hopping place as people complained after receiving the latest notices of increased assessed values.

Against that backdrop, Charlevoix is looking at a pool proposal which would add about $3.4 million to the local property tax bill. Something is wrong with that picture. Were the pool proposal to pass, any complaints from Charlevoix about high property taxes would carry a hollow ring.

It should be noted that the state legislature has voted to freeze the assessments on property values for one year. This makes no net difference in the pool cost. Property taxes are based on millage multiplied by assessed value. If the assessed value is frozen, the millage will increase to make up for it.

At one time, pool proponents said they wanted to fund the pool through donations, and without property taxes. That was a good position. If enough voters vote no May 13, perhaps the pool people will return to it.

People who want a pool should be free to donate to it and people who don't want a pool should be free not to donate to it. Funding the pool through property taxes will make donors of us all, willing and unwilling.

If a group of people want to donate money and build a pool, fine. If they want to charge a higher user fee for people who don't donate for pool construction, that's fine too. But people who have little or no use for a pool shouldn't be taxed for one. People shouldn't get something for nothing, but they also shouldn't be forced into getting something for nothing.

From an educational perspective, placing a pool at the school has the potential to do more harm than good. Local property taxes are the primary funding source for Charlevoix schools. Local property taxes are a limited resource. If $3.4 million, plus whatever the school may end up spending for pool operations, is spent on a swimming pool, there will be that much less money available for other things.

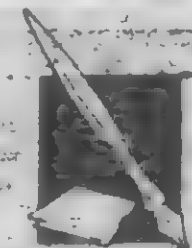

In addition to the bond proposal, the school has applied for state grant money for the pool. If (and if is an important word here) state grant money is acquired by the school and used on a pool, then the school will be obligated to keep the pool open for at least 20 years. Keeping the pool open is a state requirement for receiving the grant money.

In a situation where resources are limited, keeping the pool open would take top priority. If funds get tight sometime within the next 20 years, who knows what could end up taking a lower priority? Additional computers? Remodeling or replacing a middle school built in the 1920s? Or any number of other things.

Letters to the Editor:

Don't change K-5 busing

Editor,

This is in regards to the efforts being made to change the starting time of school at the elementary level, to that of the Charlevoix High and Middle Schools.

As a parent, I am very much against this idea. I can't believe that the Professional Studies Committee could even suggest such a thing. The children in this community deserve more consideration than what is being shown for them.

If this new starting time (8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.) is allowed to go into effect, it will literally have these K-5 children standing in the dark. My son, age 6, will have to get up at 5:30 a.m. to catch the bus which in our neighborhood, picks up middle and high school students at 6:45 a.m. He will be put on a bus with middle and high school students, which I strongly object to. I don't need my son subjected to the attitudes of the high school and middle school students, nor do I want him made available to the drugs and alcohol that the older students have on them. Even though I am not naive to believe that my son will never be near those types of situations, I would not want him to have access to them, especially at his early age, at this time.

Also, given the fact that we still have a 14-year-old still missing from this community, and a 19-year-old in jail accused of murder, I can't feel at ease with putting my son, or any of the other young children on the buses with the high schoolers. I'm not saying all of the older students are to be made wary of. I'm just saying that not all of them are trustworthy. I think it would be a bus driver's worst nightmare to have responsibility of maintaining control of the older students, as well as being made responsible to drive a bus. Talk about having to have eyes in back of one's head!

It was also brought to my attention by a mom who has a child in St. Mary's, what would the Charlevoix Public School system do if, because of the early starting of school, they found that St. Mary's decided to close and send their students to the Charlevoix Elementary? She was wondering how much money would be saved on busing/buses if the elementary school had to have extra students. I wonder about that also. Who could blame the parents of St. Mary's? Why pay taxes when there is no say on their part of the K-5 situation?

I also took the time to do some figuring. The last I know, there are currently 360 children in the Charlevoix Elementary School. The teachers are claiming that the changing from two to one bus system will save about $50,000. When I divided 360 into the $50,000, I came up with a saving of $89.29 per student. I'm sorry, but my child's safety, and all the other students, is worth a hell of a lot more than $89.29 per student per year. I would be glad to give the school the $89.29 per year to keep the present two bus run, and keep my child safe.

I also am aware that the issue was brought up by the teachers that parents were dropping off their children at the elementary school at 8 a.m. This can be addressed as a separate issue. We can ask for parental volunteers, and go to the business community to ask for help. After all, we are only talking one half hour.

I would also like to say, that there are many parents in the community who have to work for a living. I would like to see the school system.

ing, and babysitting arrangements have to be made. Right now that is very difficult in Charlevoix. Many parents who are having difficulties making ends meet do not need the additional headaches of arranging sitters, paying extra. Flexibility in jobs is not an option for many parents. Either you work or you don't. While I agree, the school system should never be used by parents as a means of childcare, with the change of school hours, this will definitely put a bind on parents. An unfair one.

Some parents I have talked to even mentioned not sending the children at all, and picking up, if this allowed to happen. Another mom just shook her head and said "no way!" I will pull my child out of the Charlevoix school system." I don't know about you, but I think that's really sad to push parents to this point. I usually am a parent who will volunteer for just about anything in order to help the school out. But this time I'm really enraged about this suggestion of changing the elementary school hours. I will not support this one and will do all I can to fight against this issue.

I ask that all parents and taxpayers to write a letter to any of the Board of Education members. You can send the letters to the central office at 208 Clinton Street, or Larry LeVeque at his home address.

Respectfully,
Cathy Miller

March of Dimes WalkAmerica raises $18,000 in area

This past weekend more than 190 walkers in Petoskey and 80 in Charlevoix walked in March of Dimes WalkAmerica. Together they raised $18,000 to be used in this ongoing campaign. They walked as concerned individuals and they walked as teams representing area businesses and organizations. Some came with their own healthy babies, others came because walking is healthy for them. But they all walked because they just couldn't accept the fact that over 40,000 babies die each year in this country and thousands more suffer from birth defects and low birthweight.

"WalkAmerica is truly a community-wide event," said Mike Coulter, March of Dimes West Michigan Chapter Chairman. "Volunteers have been planning this event for months and it took the efforts of many for it to all come together." Team captains have been recruiting walkers, businesses sponsored and planned their checkpoints and clubs and organizations have brought in their enthusiasm. Each year it grows and each year we are reminded how caring the people are who live in this area.

The funds raised by this and other March of Dimes events will be used to improve the health of babies through community services, advocacy, research and education. 60 percent of the money raised will remain in the chapter area to be used for education and grants which will help attain that goal, while 40 percent is pooled with money from around the country for research and program development that benefits everyone.

Proper pruning is important

(Editor's note: The following story is one of a series supplied by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club in an effort to help the many people who strive to make Charlevoix a greener and prettier place.)

Flowering shrubs should always be pruned after flowering if this is at all necessary. If cut back before flowering, in the spring, while buds are forming, some of the coming year's flowering is lost. When cut back right after flowering, the bush has to make new growth for the following year.

The bush will grow two new shoots just below the point where the branch was cut. If the tops of branches are cut off, each branch will grow two new twigs just below the place where the branch was cut. After several years of cutting the tops off the bushes there will only be new growth and flowers at the top and the rest of the bush will look very bare-legged.

For hedges of privet etc. this feature is useful: frequent clipping of tops and sides will produce a dense growth of many tiny twigs. The overall appearance of flowering shrubs such as forsythia, bridal wreath, etc. will be much more attractive when the tops are never cut. Should the bush get too large, the tallest branches should be cut at their base, forcing the shrub to make new growth at ground level.

Shrubs that have been repeatedly cut off at the top and look very leggy can be given a more natural appearance by removing the old branches gradually. No more than one third of the branches should be cut back to the ground level every year. Start with the older branches which are generally more greyish. Newer branches have a more greenish color.

Lilacs must be treated differently. New growth at ground level, the suckers, should be removed because they seldom bloom and tend to sap the strength of the bush. Their natural growth pattern is quite tall and they don't seem to mind being cut at the upper levels. Gardening books often recommend cutting of the faded flowers before they set seed.

Local playwright's comedy premieres

The world premiere of an original comedy revue by Charlevoix playwright and director James Taylor McKiney will be presented in East Jordan by the Jordan River Players, the theatrical arm of Jordan River Arts Council.

Performances of "An Evening With..." an event full of surprises, as the title implies, will be at 7:30 p.m. matinee on Sunday, May 19.

"An Evening With..." pokes fun at works and their uses and misuses with dozens of fast-paced skits and parodies connected with lively musical bridges and vaudevillian stich.

With quick costume changes, three actors and four actresses will impersonate numerous characters in such sketches as "The Work Mini," featuring the slang creator and the keeper of clichés, and "Dr. Frankenstein's Phobias" featuring a mad doctor and his revengeful servant, Igor.

Other skit titles include "Ladies Say the Darndest Things," "Hugh's Blue Huea Blues," "Ponder Proposals" and "What's a Word's Worth."

Cast members are Douglas Flewelling, Petoskey; Lana Franchek, Bellaire; Howard H. Ellis, Chris Kempton, Emilie LaRoux, Jeff LaRoux and Paula A. Vollbach, all from East Jordan.

Area theater goers will remember Jeff LaRoux as Timothy Graves, the man who thought he was invisible in "Hocus Pocus," the Jordan River Players' last production. In the same play, Ellis played Quinten Quebec, the scandal sheet reporter, and Franchek played Sally Singleton, the bungling office helper who becomes an exercise star.

Flewelling, who has had a long association as actor, director and designer for Little Traverse Civic Theater, was most recently seen in "Run for Your Wife" and "Pirates of Penzance."

"Annie" and "The Miracle Worker."

Playwright and director McKiney has been producer/director for dozens of plays including "Music Man," and "Damn Yankees," "Kiss Me Kate," "Sound of Music," "Kismet" and "Show Boat." He directed "Hello, Dolly" for Traverse City's Old Town Playhouse, as well as the world premier of "Hocus Pocus" in Bellaire and East Jordan last May.

Others active in the production include Lenore Bechtel, producer; Brad Leech, stage manager; Ron Matma, technical director; June Marie McGrath, costume coordinator; Bev Loewe, property manager; Mike Patrick, sound manager and Robert Rousch, lighting manager.

Tickets to "An Evening With..." go on sale Wednesday, May 1, at the Jordan River Art Center, 301 Main Street, East Jordan. All seating is reserved and limited to the enclosed, carpeted section of the high school auditorium. Charlevoix company exploring for gas

(Editor's note: This is the second of a two-part story concerning the Michigan Gas Exchange and its parent company, Tomco. Both companies are based in Charlevoix under the ownership of Thomas LaVanyway. The companies are involved in the gas and oil business. Michigan Gas Exchange is currently one of three major gas brokers in the state. If growth continues as anticipated, it will soon be one of the top four gas brokers in the Great Lakes region.)

rock formations. The glaciers did come within 1,000 feet of doing that in Antrim County. This phenomena was later noted in the federal government soil surveys of our state. Consequently all similar shale formations in Michigan were called Antrim shale, where ever it is Before deregulation in 1986, it was impossible for independent brokers to get into the gas selling business. According to Arthur Primeau, the marketing manager for Michigan Gas Exchange, Tom LaVanyway's innovative policies changed the gas servicing business in Michigan. Prior to 1986, large gas users contracted monthly for their gas needs and if they used more than contracted for they were heavily penalized. Michigan Gas Exchange offer customers all the gas they could possibly use during the contract period, at a fixed rate and free of penalties.

Primeau, who also has office in Lansing, personally contacts large consumers in Michigan. Donna Drury pushes sales from the Charlevoix office. Using direct mailing, fax machines and the telephone, the two of them continue to sell more and more gas. They are limited by a scarcity of pipe lines. Some counties and communities in Michigan do not have natural gas lines available.

Jeffrey Sims, MGE's executive vice president and purchasing agent, checks spot market quotations for the lowest prices and purchases the gas which is sold. He says that currently it is cheaper for him to import gas along interstate pipe lines from Louisiana and Texas rather than to buy from within Michigan. But that may soon change.

In June of 1990 Tomco founded the Hunting Natural Gas Corporation, a new company formed with the express purpose of developing the Antrim County Green River project. After reviewing and analyzing that region's underground maps, LaVanyway concluded that just a few miles from Charlevoix were extensive gas producing opportunities.

Many millions of years ago the Michigan Basin began to form. Geologic sediments have accumulated over time forming various rock formations. Rock movement has occurred and some of these movements fractured the rock layers under Antrim County. Even before Lake Michigan was formed, intense pressures and movements caused the upward shifts of gas and oil saturated shale. Much later came the big glaciers that scoured the earth, almost uncovering the sedimentary found, is a highly radioactive black carbonized fractured shale, 100 to 300 feet thick. Michigan's first drilling for gas in Antrim shale began in Osego County in the 1940s. Two wells near Gaylord were opened in 1944 and are still going strong today.

Natural gas is composed almost entirely of methane. Other fossil fuels are coal and oil. Natural gas is the cleanest and cheapest of the three. Natural gas is delivered to 166 million U.S. customers through a million mile network of pipes. MichCon and Consumers Gas own most of the gas lines in Michigan. Michigan's geology has the largest natural gas potential of any state east of the Mississippi. The 3,700 plus wells in the lower peninsula have produced 2.9 trillion cubic feet, twenty percent of Michigan's need, in the last four years. 580 gas wells have been drilled in the shallow Antrim shale. The possibility of a dry hole is remote. The spotlight is now on Antrim County.

Hunting Corporation's Green River project is less than ten months old. Already it has signed leases for the mineral rights under 25,000 acres in Antrim County, about 10 percent of the county. It is the largest contiguous exploratory field ever assembled in Michigan. Lease contracts are for three to five years and for $5 to $10 per acre. Some of these contracts include pool sharing benefits between adjoining owners. The Green River field is a blanket formation with a jagged perimeter. It is an oddly shaped figure, not a round basin. Michigan has the opportunity to emerge as the first northern state to be considered a major gas producer.

Much of the geological information comes from Sally Somsel, a geologist with Hunting Corporation. Somsel became interested in geology as a fourth grade student. She later attended Central Michigan University, which in the 1970s had a group of geology instructors with oil industry experience. Before joining Hunting Corporation last fall, Somsel was with a Lansing based oil and gas exploratory firm. As its operations manager, she supervised the firm's oil and gas drilling in Osego and Grand Traverse Counties.

Most people view the world as the earth's surface and the sky above. Geologists have a third perspective - the fully mapped and visually imagined subterranean world. Somsel recognizes topography and environmental clues for pinpointing the placement of gas drilling rigs. In some circumstances there can only be one well per 160 acres. In other circumstances there may be one well per 40 acres.

The Green River development already has two successful wells. A minimum of 30 wells must be in production for marketing purposes. More than 60 permits have been applied for from the state of Michigan. Somsel is continuously forwarding permit applications to Lansing. She personally supervises, or directly negotiates the leases between Hunting Corporation and the mineral rights owners. Cheryl Hoffman has the task of proof reading the 500-plus leases, arranging them in historical order and compiling permanent files.

The Hunting Corporation has two profitable advantages in its Green River project. First, the shallow depths of the well bottoms keep drilling costs low. Second, MichCon has a 10 inch supply line running through the middle of the Green River field. It is one thing to discover a vast reserve of natural gas, but quite another to bring it to market. The MichCon pipe facilities will be the gateway to all the major markets in Michigan. To qualify for federal tax credits, the 200 plus 6-inch wells must be completed by December of 1992. These wells do not produce as fast as downstate wells, but last three times longer, or 30 years. It is estimated that the Hunting Natural Gas Corporation will cost $40 million.

Before its completion, a few hundred people will be employed and schools and governmental units will benefit from additional tax revenues. The Hunting Corporation is presently a three-person operation: LaVanway, Somsel and Hoffman. The Michigan Gas Exchange has an eight-person payroll.

Northwood Orchestra announces summer schedule

Since establishment in 1979, as the resident orchestra for the Music Fest, the Northwood Orchestra has grown to be one of the most interesting summer music festivals in the county. The orchestra performs at The Tent at Black Forest Hall in Harbor Springs and added a concert season last year at The Barn at Dunmaglas near Charlevoix.

The Northwood Orchestra began 12 years ago as a chamber orchestra in a small church in Harbor Springs. The Maestro used to say the orchestra was "playing to the trees" since the orchestra members used to outnumber the audience on occasion.

It's grown quite a bit since that time. Nearly 10,000 people enjoyed the programs last summer in the beautiful settings of Harbor Springs and Charlevoix. Maestro Don Th. Jagger and 50 of the finest musicians from across the United States and Canada come together each summer in northern Michigan to entertain audiences from all over.

The Upcoming Season at a Glance. Join us for a summer you won't forget... be a part of the Midsummer Music Magic with the Northwood Orchestra this summer from July 13 through August 4 at The Barn at Dunmaglas, Charlevoix and The Tent at Black Forest Hall, Harbor Springs.

This season starts on a high note with a benefit performance for the Northwood Orchestra by Bob James. Making a return to northern Michigan, this wizard of the keyboard will treat you to a night of exhilarating jazz-fusion. The concert, scheduled for July 13 at The Barn, marks the beginning of the orchestra's 13th season in Harbor Springs and its second year in Charlevoix.

Byron Stripling, trumpeter, pays tribute to Louis Armstrong on July 19 at The Tent. His credits range from holding down the lead trumpet chair in the big bands of Count Basie, Woody Herman and Dizzy Gillespie to making an appearance with the Boston Pops Orchestra, to the title role in "Satchmo: America's Musical Legend," to a Kentucky Fried Chicken jingle that called for an Armstrong-style trumpet. He also recently appeared on PBS with the Boston Pops. Don't miss the cool jazz for the hot summer nights.

Russian pianist Alexei Sultanov, Gold Medalist of the Eighth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, makes his third appearance with the Northwood Orchestra on July 20 at The Barn. Alexei's first appearance with the Northwood Orchestra in 1989 marked his orchestral debut in the United States. Alexei considers the Northwood Orchestra one of his favorite orchestras in the world.

On Sunday, July 21, "America's most entertaining jazz band" is back by popular demand! Swing to the sounds and laugh with the band of the New Reformation Dixieland Band at The Tent.

Lyudmil Angelov, internationally acclaimed Bulgarian pianist, performs with the orchestra on Friday, July 26 at The Tent and Sunday, July 28 at The Barn. Mr. Angelov has appeared at international contests and has won diplomas and prizes at such notable competitions as Prosvadia in his native Bulgaria, Sinigaglia in Italy, Leeds in Great Britain, and the P.I. Tchaikovsky competition in Moscow. Come let his music entertain and enthrall you.

Grammy winner Al Hirt, Jazz trumpeter extraordinaire, pulls out all the stops for his debut in northern Michigan at The Barn on Saturday, July 27. Mr. Hirt has also been named Grand Marshall of Charlevoix's Venetian Festival Parade taking place earlier in the day on July 27.

The Four Freshmen make appearances on Friday, August 2 at The Tent and Saturday, August 3 at The Barn. They'll delight audiences of all ages as they transcend the decades with sophisticated arrangements of their hits from the 40s and 50s.

Top off the season with the Northwood Orchestra as they perform A Tribute to Dunmaglas, Sunday, August 4 at The Barn. Enjoy an enchanting evening of Scottish music in the beautiful Charlevoix countryside.

Presented by Northwood Institute, a private college of business management, the Northwood Orchestra is northern Michigan's only resident, professional orchestra. As an extension of Northwood's educational philosophy, the orchestra was created to produce a high quality annual music festival with professional, classically trained artists in Harbor Springs and later Charlevoix, for the cultural benefit of northern Michigan. Part of the founding philosophy of Northwood and the very care of the Northwood idea itself is to teach within the precepts of the free enterprise ethic an appreciation for the arts and how they relate to both business and the community. Northwood Institute knows the importance of the creative spirit of humankind.

Baseball team improving

With pitchers parading to the mound throughout the game and hitters parading to the plate in the fifth inning, Charlevoix took a 9-8 win at Traverse City St. Francis Monday.

After a shaky start early in the season, the Rayders have now improved their record enough to reach the 500 mark at 5-5.

Rayder coach used six pitchers against Traverse City St. Francis. Ken Olinger pitched one scoreless inning to get the win. Dan Terryberry threw an inning of relief for the save. Guy Gengle, Travis Blissett, Wayne Joy and Jordan Spencer rounded out the Rayder pitching committee.

Charlevoix hitters took their time getting started in the game. The Rayders trailed 8-2 after two innings, but scored two runs in the fourth and five in the fifth.

Scott Kehler, Terryberry and Olinger each had two hits to lead the Rayder batting attack.

Last Thursday, May 25 the Rayders split a double-header at Elk Rapids.

Charlevoix got some excellent pitching from Travis Blissett and Dan Terryberry. Blissett picked up a 3-1 win in the opener while Terry berry took a 1-0 loss in game two despite pitching a one-hitter.

The Rayders pitching has been somewhat erratic this season, but in recent games has more often been good than bad.

Scott Campbell and Terryberry each had doubles in the opening game. Blissett and Jordan Spencer had singles.

In the nightcap, the Rayders out-hit Elk Rapids 2-1, but lost 1-0. Spencer and Guy Gengle each had singles.

This week Charlevoix travels to Rogers City, Wednesday May 1.

He's safe!

This Charlevoix baseball player is safe sliding into third. If you look closely, you can see the ball falling out of the fielder's glove.

Softball team playing well

Despite a Monday afternoon setback at the hands of Traverse City St. Francis, Charlevoix's girls' softball team is playing better than it has in quite a while. The 1991 Rayders are young, but they're playing aggressively.

Charlevoix ran into a tough pitcher in game one against St.

Francis. The Gladiators beat the Rayders 10-0 behind the no-hit pitching of Kyan Flynn.

Charlevoix also lost game two 10-5. Once again Flynn shut down the Rayders and picked up the pitching win. The Rayders had only three hits, one each by Tara Morrow, Melissa Cox and Lori Darrah.

Tammy Holm got the pitching loss in game one while Mary Jane Grunch took the loss in game two.

Charlevoix fared better earlier in the week against Elk Rapids, taking both 11-3 and 13-5 wins.

Holm, a junior, got both pitching wins against the Elks.

Lori Darrah tripled and doubled in game one while Melissa Cox also had two hits.

Heather Radle had a big game at the plate in game two, picking up three hits. Cox had her second two-hit game of the day in game two.

Tammy Holm from the Charlevoix girls' softball team sends a pitch whistling toward the plate during a win over Elk Rapids last week.

Tennis team wins one and loses one

Charlevoix's tennis team is having an interesting year. The team has some excellent athletes, but they lack tennis experience. Given that quirk, they're a team which can be inconsistent, but has the potential to be a frightening opponent for some other teams at the end of the year.

Charlevoix's doubles teams led the way to a 4-3 win over Elk Rapids last Thursday.

Rayder players and their results were:

Number one singles: Paul Cunningham lost 6-1, 6-1.
Number two singles: Jeff Joy lost 6-2, 6-0.
Number three singles: Chris Pair lost 6-3, 1-6, 6-0.
Number four singles: Christian Marschal won 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.
Number one doubles: Sam Bingham, Corey Crain won 6-3, 6-0.
Number two doubles: Todd Kovach, Erich McElroy won 6-2, 6-1.
Number three doubles: Jasper Sweeney, Mike Dobulis won 6-0, 6-0.
The Rayders had a bad day against Petoskey Monday, losing their home opener 6-1.

Rayder players and their results were:

Number one singles: Joy lost 5-1, 6-3.
Number two singles: Pair lost 6-0, 6-1.
Number three singles: Marschal lost 6-2, 6-4.
Number four singles: Edith Pair lost 6-2, 6-0.
Number one doubles: Bingham, Crain won 6-3, 7-6.
Number two doubles: Kovach, McElroy lost 6-2, 6-2.
Number three doubles: Sweeney, Dobulis lost 6-3, 6-7, 6-4.

"We're still got a ways to go yet as far as where we want to be," coach Eric Lundteigen said.

The conference meet is Friday, May 10 and the regional meet is Friday May 17.

"We're gearing everything towards that time of the year," the coach explained.

The Charlevoix baseball team's pitching has been somewhat inconsistent, but has been coming around - as this Elk Rapids hitter discovers as he fans on a pitch. The Rayders got off to a poor start, but have improved their season record to 5-5.

Softball meeting May 1

The organizational meeting for men's and women's city softball leagues is scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday evening at city hall. Each team should send a representative. Rules, scheduling and team fees will be discussed.

Chuck Center (left) and Kirby Dipert have opened South Point Auto Sales on U.S. 31, near the Charlevoix Airport.

Auto dealership opens on U.S. 31

Chuck Center and Kirby Dipert had talked about opening their own car dealership and when a building became open on U.S. 31, near the airport, became available, they translated their discussions into action.

South Point Auto, which opened April 1, sells previously-owned cars and trucks, does collision repair and will soon have cars available for daily rental.

Dipert and Center each have several years of automobile sales experience. They are assisted in sales by Bruce Wilson while Kevin Stewart manages South Point's body shop.

"We'll have a good spread of cars price-wise, but the majority will be in the $4,000 to $8,000 range."

South Point has already brought in a broad variety of cars. Among the cars last week, were a large family car, a smaller family car, a sports car and a small car all sitting side by side. There were also seval trucks at the south end of the lot. A sharp looking 1991 Caprice Classic was sitting in the showroom.

South Point acquires the vehicles either at auctions or as trade-ins. The owners' background and contacts in the car business allow them to track down specific types of cars people are looking for.

Center is especially pleased with the dealership's location and body shop.

...new auto dealership opens

"I think it's one of the finest retail locations in Charlevoix County," he said of the lot near the airport.

A paint spraying booth in the body shop was expensive to install, but it creates a dust-free environment for an exceptionally clean job of painting. Although the business is only a month old, Center and Dipert are already making plans to enlarge the body shop.

Currently there are about 30 cars on the lot. Center said he hopes to have between 30 and 40 on the lot. All of the cars are safety inspected and if any problems are discovered, they are corrected before the car goes on the lot.

Center said that when he goes to an auction, he tries to buy the nicest car that he feels there's a need for in the area.

All of the South Point cars carry a 30-day or 1,000 mile 50/50 power, train warranty. Several of the cars also still have the balance of their factory warranty.

Body found near Medusa Creek turn-around

A body, suspected to be that of 14-year-old Heather Kleiber, was found in the woods near the Medusa Creek turn-around late Saturday afternoon.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department officers assisted evidence technicians from the Michigan State Police crime lab in removing the remains from the site. Sunday, the body was transported to Bjor-gen Hospital in Grand Rapids for a forensic autopsy to determine if it is the body of Kleiber, who has been missing since last August. As of Tuesday morning, local police were still anxiously awaiting autopsy results.

The body was found by Jerry Fitzell, an employee of Tempo Tech. Tempo Tech harvests salmon from the fish weir near the turnaround. Fitzell has been hired to guard small salmon which were planted at the weir last week.

Fitzell said he walked back into the woods and saw a skeleton. At first glance he thought it was a deer skeleton, but when he looked closer, he saw that it was a human skeleton. Fitzell immediately notified local police.

Kleiber has been missing since Aug. 17. Local police agencies have spent more than 1,000 hours looking for her and have investigated tips from Michigan and several other states.

Kleiber was reportedly last seen by Andrew Wynkoop, 19. Wynkoop is currently in jail, charged with murder, rape and kidnapping in the disappearance and death of Katherine McCleese, 28. McCleese was reported missing following a March 23 party near Bay Shore. Her body was found April 5 in a shallow grave near the entrance to Fisherman's Island State Park. The distance between the two bodies is approximately a mile along the Lake Michigan shoreline.

After McCleese's body was found, police dogs were brought in to search the Bells Bay and Fisherman's Island area for Kleiber's body. These searches found nothing.

Local police recently added the area near the Medusa Creek turn-around to a list of sites to be searched.

Undergarments were found on and near the body. A fluorescent orange and green watch was also found on the body.

As of Monday, no charges had been filed in the case.

Charlevoix fourth grade art students pose in front of a forest which will be part of this year's art show. From left are Nicole Harbison, Jessica Corey, Justin Thorp, Keith Grunch, Jim Kanine, Diane DeKorte, Misty Przybylski and Kairine Frey. The school art show opens May 9 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and continues from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. May 10 and 13.

Pool election Monday, May 13

After approximately two and a half years of surveys, petitions, auctions, grant applications and meetings, a $2.29 million swimming pool property tax proposal will be decided by Charlevoix School District voters in an election scheduled for Monday, May 13.

Voting will take place at the Elementary School. Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

The proposal asks, "Shall Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix and Antrim Counties, Michigan borrow the sum of not to exceed two million two hundred ninety thousand dollars ($2,290,000) and issue its general obligation unlimited tax bonds therefore, for the purpose of erecting, furnishing and equipping a swimming pool facility and developing and improving the site?"

In April, the school board approved a payback plan calling for the loan to be paid back over approximately 12 years. The payback plan, which was based on estimated interest rates and projected increases.

Grant application denied

A school sponsored grant application related to a proposed indoor swimming pool has been denied. The application asked for $750,000 from a recreation grant program administered by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Prior to the application, an amendment was made to the Charlevoix City Recreation Plan. The amendment was made by the city at the behest of people supporting construction of an indoor pool. The amendment did not meet DNR specifications.

Report says officer acted appropriately

An independent investigation by the State Police indicates that city police officer Peter Shrift acted appropriately when he arrested former district court judge Arthur Reibel. Reibel, currently the owner of Castle Farms Music Theatre, says the State Police are not objective in the matter.

In a cover letter attached to the report concerning Reibel's allegations of police brutality, city police Chief Dennis Halverson questions if Reibel's only motive for the accusations was "to distort the facts of his own alleged criminal activity."

Reibel was arrested by Shrift shortly after 2 a.m. Feb. 28 on charges of fleeing and eluding, operating under the influence of liquor and attempted resisting and obstructing of a police officer. The charges are proceeding through district court.

During the arrest, Reibel suffered a cut over his eye. Reibel alleged police brutality, claiming that Shrift struck him with a blunt object, presumably a large flashlight. Shrift's contention is that Reibel was injured by his own glasses when he resisted arrest and Shrift and Reibel both fell to the snow-covered ground.

At the request of the city police department, Michigan State Police officer Lieutenant Carl Goeman conducted an independent investigation. Halverson presented the results of that investigation to city council members Monday evening.

At a March council meeting, Reibel objected to the State Police conducting the investigation, saying two state police officers were present the night that he was arrested and that Halverson is the son of a former director of the State Police. In response, city attorney Jim Young advised the council that the city police department's standard procedure is to have the State Police conduct independent investigations and the city should simply follow the standard procedure.

In doing the investigation, Goeman reviewed tapes and reports involving the incident and conducted interviews with police officers and medical personnel. Reibel declined to be interviewed by Goeman.

Shrift began following Reibel shortly after 2 a.m. at the corner of Antrim and State Streets. He attempted to pull Reibel over, but Reibel proceeded to his home on M-66 at Castle Farms. He was arrested in his front yard which is where the injury occurred.

Reibel was taken to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and subsequently to Charlevoix Area Hospital for treatment of the cut over his eye.

According to Goeman's report Reibel was tested twice at the hospital for blood alcohol level. The first test was taken at 3:50 a.m. as a result of a po-

Symphony to perform

By Peg Ohle

Tickets are now on sale for the May 20 evening performance of the Grand Rapids Symphony at the Charlevoix High School gym.

They are available in Charlevoix at the First State Bank, Shop of the Gulls, and the Appletree, or through Suzi Reis at 547-4500, in Petoskey at the Chamber of Commerce office, phone 347-4150, and in Boyne City at Main Street Video, phone 582-6144. Any leftover tickets will be sold at the door.

Prices are $5 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens.

The concert, which will begin at 7:30, will include works by Mendelssohn, Tchaikovsky, and Beethoven. Cellist Nancy Seltmann will be featured in a Tchaikovsky number, "Variations on a Rocco Theme for Cello and Orchestra."

This evening performance will be the second of the day for the symphony. Earlier, they will present a free concert for students and teachers in the elementary, middle, and parochial schools. Because of space limitations, only students and teachers will be admitted to this school performance.

The school performance will feature violinist Christopher Martin and will consist of works most enjoyed by children. John Varineau will conduct both performances.

The Charlevoix High School Band Boosters will receive the proceeds from the concert. They will also serve dinner to the musicians before the evening concert, assisted by members of the High School Band.

"We're excited about having the Grand Rapids Symphony coming to Charlevoix and being able to help with the program," said Nancy Ellison, president of the Band Boosters. She also said the Band Boosters are lucky to have local caterer Dave Phillips as a Band Booster member so he can add a professional touch to the dinner. The entree will be lemon chicken and five-grain rice, she added.

The Grand Rapids Symphony is being brought to Charlevoix by the Charlevoix Council for the Arts, a new group which plans on bringing professional musicians, artists, theatrical performers, or dancers to the city each year to present programs for school children, with an additional program for others.

The Grand Rapids Symphony has a long history of music education, having received a W. K. Kellogg Foundation grant for "Arts in Schools in Michigan" and another grant for "Symphony in the Schools." Its "Fifth Grade Concerts" in Grand Rapids and Holland reach more than 12,500 students each year.

es in the state equalized valuation of property within the school district. According to the payback plan, pool construction will require a tax increase of .94 or .99 of a mill from 1992 through 1999 and from .76 to .94 of a mill from the year 2000 to 2003. A mill is $1 per every $1,000 of a property's state equalized value (SEV). SEV is half of a property's theoretical market value.

Interest on borrowing is expected to add approximately $1.17 million to the project cost bringing the total payback for pool construction to $3,459,583.

Since last month when the board of education approved the payback plan, the state has adopted a proposal to freeze SEV increases. That proposal will have little net effect on paying off the pool should the proposal pass.

If the pool proposal passes, the school district will borrow money to construct a pool. For each year of the payback period, the school will have to make a payment on the money borrowed. The payment amount will depend on the interest rate the school gets when it borrows the money and the length of payback.

When the payback amount is determined for a given year, the school district will levy a number of mills sufficient to generate the money needed to make the payment. The amount of millage necessary will depend upon school district SEV.

To put it in equation form: Millage x SEV = Payment amount.

lice warrant and indicated a blood alcohol level of .20 percent. A second test, taken at Reibel's request at 5:05 a.m., indicated a blood alcohol level of .18 percent. According to Michigan law a level of .10 percent and above is considered operating under the influence.

Medical records and photos from the incident were sent to Dr. Stephen Cohlle, a forensic pathologist. Cohlle responded to Goeman in a letter which stated in part, "In my opinion the facial injuries were not caused by the application of the flashlight or other blunt object." The letter further stated, "The glasses (Reibel's glasses) had slid up on the forehead most likely as Mr. Reibel was proceeding toward the ground."

Goeman's report also refers to an interview with an unidentified person who claims that on several occasions Reibel said that a person arrested for operating under the influence of liquor should fake an injury and be brought to the hospital.

In the report's conclusion, Goeman wrote that the hospital records "show no validity to his (Reibel's) claim that he was struck with a flashlight and Dr. Cohlle's review further reflects that. He also obtained the same opinion from Dr. Greenwood."

Goeman further wrote, "The subsequent media attention that he (Reibel) drew to himself appears an attempt to discredit a good arrest by an officer that did an excellent job."

"I find no basis for his allegations against officer Shrift."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) is also conducting an investigation at the request of someone who's name they are keeping anonymous. Halverson told the council that rather than issuing a full report, as the State Police do, the FBI will issue a letter indicating either that there is cause for further action or that there is no cause for further action.

"I have no reason to believe the FBI report will deviate from the State Police report," Halverson said.

Young said that as a former prosecutor and as the attorney for an insurance company which defends several police departments he has looked at "hundreds and hundreds" of police reports related to drunk driving arrests. He said he had reviewed all of the documents related to Reibel's arrest and feels there is "absolutely no credible evidence that there was any sort of police misconduct."

"The incident tells me that your police department is trying to uniformly enforce the laws of this state," Young told the council members.

PTA to hear school report

An annual elementary school report which is required by the state will be given at the PTA meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m., May 14. The report will cover the school's mission statement, assessment of needs, various subject areas and explanations of programs. It will also cover school counseling services, test results and activities.

A letter written by Jeanne L. Powers, a DNR grants coordinator, to school superintendent Gordon VanWieren said, "...the amendment to the Charlevoix recreation plan submitted to this division does not meet our planning guidelines, and therefore, our Recreation Services Branch is unable to approve the amendment. As a result, the Charlevoix School District is not eligible for competition in this year's funding consideration process."

In a phone conversation with the Courier last week, Powers said of the denial, "It's an eligibility thing, not a comment on the proposal."

She said the DNR has been in touch with city planner Gerry Harsch to discuss what changes need to be made in the amendment if another application is going to be made next year.

The grant application is related to a $2.29 million swimming pool bond proposal which voters will decide Monday, May 13. Were the proposal to pass, the $2.29 would still build a pool although the project plans would have to be revised due to the failure of the grant application.

EDITH

by Edith Gilbert

There's something about a shiny, sleek, mahogany speedboat that makes ones' heart beat faster. These old "woodies" have always been popular in Northern Michigan resorts, so much so that a whole industry has grown up here for their care, feeding and display.

On Saturday, June 29, Charlevoix's Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring its annual antique and classic boat show. I'll be present in Round Lake with my 1958 Chris Craft, which I was thrilled to acquire several summers ago. The city docks by the park is the perfect location to display these graceful mahogany oldies, many of them built before World War II and considered a classic, "worthy of recognition." Believe it or not, any boat that is older than 25 years is considered an antique.

As you stroll along the docks, each proud owner is only too glad to tell you the challenges, disappointments and satisfaction of restoring an antique wooden boat. You'll see custom-built Hackers, Gar Wood designs and some not so rare Chris Crafts, such as mine.

Originally I seriously considered varnishing the boat myself, or maybe having one of my kids do it. Finding a place to dock it ought not to be a problem since it's only 17 ft. long. The motor sounded fine as we took it for a trial run to Oyster Bay. I had visions of picnics on the beach with the little ones, swimming in the bay, and waving to friends at the WeatherVane as we cruise through the channel.

Wrong! Last summer, I spent more time writing checks than cruising. First, the insurance. Then dock rental, labor for sanding and varnishing, paint and brushes, a new battery, fire extinguisher, flag, new spark plugs, cover, lines, anchor, flares, hand pump, life preservers, bumpers, plus gas and oil. Remember we're not even thinking restoration only maintenance!

Maybe this summer will be different. There's no doubt I'll be swapping stories in the park with other boat enthusiasts. I'll tell them about the time my late husband's Hacker was stolen from the old Hamilton Boat Yard on Round Lake, because it had won every speedboat race on the Great Lakes that year. I still have the trophies to prove it. "It is thought to be the work of a gang of Detroit Yeggs who needed the boat for a Rum Fleet," according to a lead article on the front page of the Charlevoix Courier, dated Nov. 19, 1930. Remember, these were the days of prohibition and rum runners were trying to evade the "Feds" on the Detroit River, as they transported booze from Canada to the United States.

Wouldn't it be fun to know what happened to that antique beauty? Maybe she'll come full circle and show up again this year at the classic boat show in Round Lake this June. Too bad, we'll never know.

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

In civilized society

They've paved the main street. We're moving up in the world now. Boy, howdy! What won't we get next? Electricity. Indoor plumbing. Telephones. Yes sir, before we're through Charlevoix's going to have all them there modern conveniences.

Did you ever notice how some people from downstate Michigan think that civilization extends no farther north than Lansing? What a peculiar way of thinking. Anybody from this area can tell you that there are signs of civilization extending north darn near to Pellston.

I talked to a friend from the Detroit area last week. He's a guy I hung around with in college. He's a nice guy, but he's just not that familiar with northern Michigan. Actually, I don't even know if he knows there is a northern Michigan. Wait a minute. I fake that back. He thinks he knows that there's a northern Michigan. It's just that this northern Michigan he thinks he knows about is the area surrounding Flint.

This guy figures that a trip to Cadillac is best referred to as an expedition and should only be attempted with the proper means of transportation. Sled dogs.

I called this guy on the phone the other night. He was amazed.

"Whoa! It sounds like you're right next door," he said.

"No kidding," I replied. "I'm telling you. Since we went to those telephones and got rid of the Dixie cups and strings, talking to people has just been so much better."

When I went away to college I quickly grew tired of trying to correct downstate people's mistaken perceptions of small northern Michigan communities. I discovered that these people were happy in their ignorance. Moreover, I discovered that fostering that ignorance made me happy too.

I was out running one day and another runner fell in beside me and we struck up a conversation. During our conversation, the guy asked me, "So, did you run track in high school?"

"Yeah," I said.

"Where are you from?"

"I'm from Charlevoix."

"They got a track team there?"

"Yeah," I said. "We got a track team there. And it does all right."

"What event did you run?" he asked.

"The quarter mile," I answered.

"You liked running the quarter?"

"Yeah," I said. "Because that race had my favorite course. Twice around the city limits."

Another question that students from downstate schools always asked was, "How many people were in your graduating class?"

"This always struck me as a stupid question so I refused to answer it honestly. Truth be known, the 1978 Charlevoix High School graduating class had about 150 students. But from 1978 through 1982, whenever a college classmate asked me how many people were in my graduating class, I always said, "Eight."

And three of them were my cousins."

Eight just struck me as a good round number. And if you're going to lie, lie big. Or in this case, lie little, really little.

Some of my college roommates had graduating classes that numbered about the same as Charlevoix's population. I don't know if I would have liked that. Not knowing everyone in your graduating class would mean that you couldn't be sure who was the dumbest kid in your graduating class. This lingering uncertainty could leave you going through life wondering if it might not have been you. And come to think of it, I didn't know all the students in my college graduating class.

Another thing that bugged me is that these people had no idea that there are actually things to do in a small town.

"So what do you do when you're home for the summer?" these people would ask.

"Well, I tend to make a habit of working," I would answer.

"No, No. That's not what I meant. I mean like what do you for fun in Charlevoix?"

"Well, we get wild," I would answer. "Sometimes my friends and I go down to the gas station and jump up and down on that little black wire in the driveway."

"What do you do that for?"

"Oh it rings the bell and makes the guy inside the station go nuts. It's a wild time. You mean to tell me college students don't do that during the summer in suburban Detroit?"

"No way man."

"Well, sorry to hear it. I guess you're just not used to living on the edge."

Out of the Blue

Seems like the work on Bridge Street (On ... under ... and above it) Might long ago have been complete. Seeing there's so few blocks of it.

OPINIONS

Letters to the Editor:

Turn down pool tax

Editor,

I read with gratitude John Crinnion's recent letter to the editor in the Petoskey News-Review dated April 5th. I think it expressed the viewpoints of many Charlevoix taxpayers who are endeavoring to keep up with the rapid increase in taxes and cost of living. Not only those who are retired and on fixed incomes but also the young people as well who are struggling to have a home and raise a family. Just for the record, my husband and I have never voted "no" for the school's renewal of operational millage but this frivolous pool proposal is raising a lot of doubt in our minds.

When the pool issue was first brought to the public's awareness, it emphasized the necessity of teaching children (not adults) how to swim so they wouldn't become a drowning statistic. In the 38 years that I have lived in Charlevoix I only recall one drowning incident which involved two brothers and I'm not sure that was a case of not knowing how to swim. It would be interesting to see the statistics on pool drownings in order to make a realistic comparison.

For many years the highlight of the summer vacation for many area children was the swimming lessons at the Charlevoix beaches. The lifeguard stations were staffed with students home for the summer, all of whom, to the best of my knowledge, were certified in water safety and lifesaving techniques. The fun and excitement of the water, sand and playmates was quite evident to any bystanders in the beach area. And what's more, it was virtually cost-free to the city, school and the parents.

Now the emphasis seems to have shifted to the adults. "Senior Citizens need swimming exercises to stay healthy." I will agree it is good therapy, but many doctors contend that walking ranks at the top and doesn't cost a dime.

Most of the names I have seen connected with the pro-pool propaganda are, for the most part, in the upper income bracket so a big increase in their tax bill for the next ten-plus years wouldn't be much of a hardship. But we're not all that lucky. I feel that if these people want a pool, they could finance it themselves through more fund-raising and membership fees instead of forcing every property owner to foot the bill, many of whom would never use it. They tell us they have the money, but do they really?

Pledges aren't ready cash and unless signed, can be rescinded at a moment's notice. If the bond issue passes, the school will be threatened with astronomical expenses and possible litigations. The cost of maintenance, full-time attendants, liability insurance and probably a touch and extra school bus runs, to name a few, would surely be passed on to the taxpayer even though many wouldn't be participating in the pool activities. These are some of the reasons that make it so important for every concerned citizen to be on the polls on May 13th. Take a long hard look at the facts while keeping a sharp eye to the future.

This all brings to mind a time many years ago when many Charlevoix area residents felt the need for their own ski-run. The idea snow-balled until every interested family in the city and township put their shoulders to the wheel and built not one, but two ski-runs at Mt. McSaubia. The men cut trees and prepared the hill and the women worked on the smorgasbord planned to raise money for the necessary equipment. I recall Dr. Grate and Bob Neff working into the wee hours stuffing home-made sausages! The ski-runs are still there for everyone who likes to ski to enjoy but most importantly it was achieved through a community effort - interested and dedicated people working together for a common goal and not once asking or even considering a bond proposal or government grant.

Lastly, we all are aware that we live in an area dominated by the seasons. Let's enjoy the swimming, boating and fishing that our beautiful lakes afford in the summer and likewise participate in our favorite sport whether it be snowmobiling, skiing, ice fishing etc. in the winter. We really can't afford a snow machine for Mt. McSaubia so the well-endowed can ski in the summer. Is that next?

Pool merits voter support

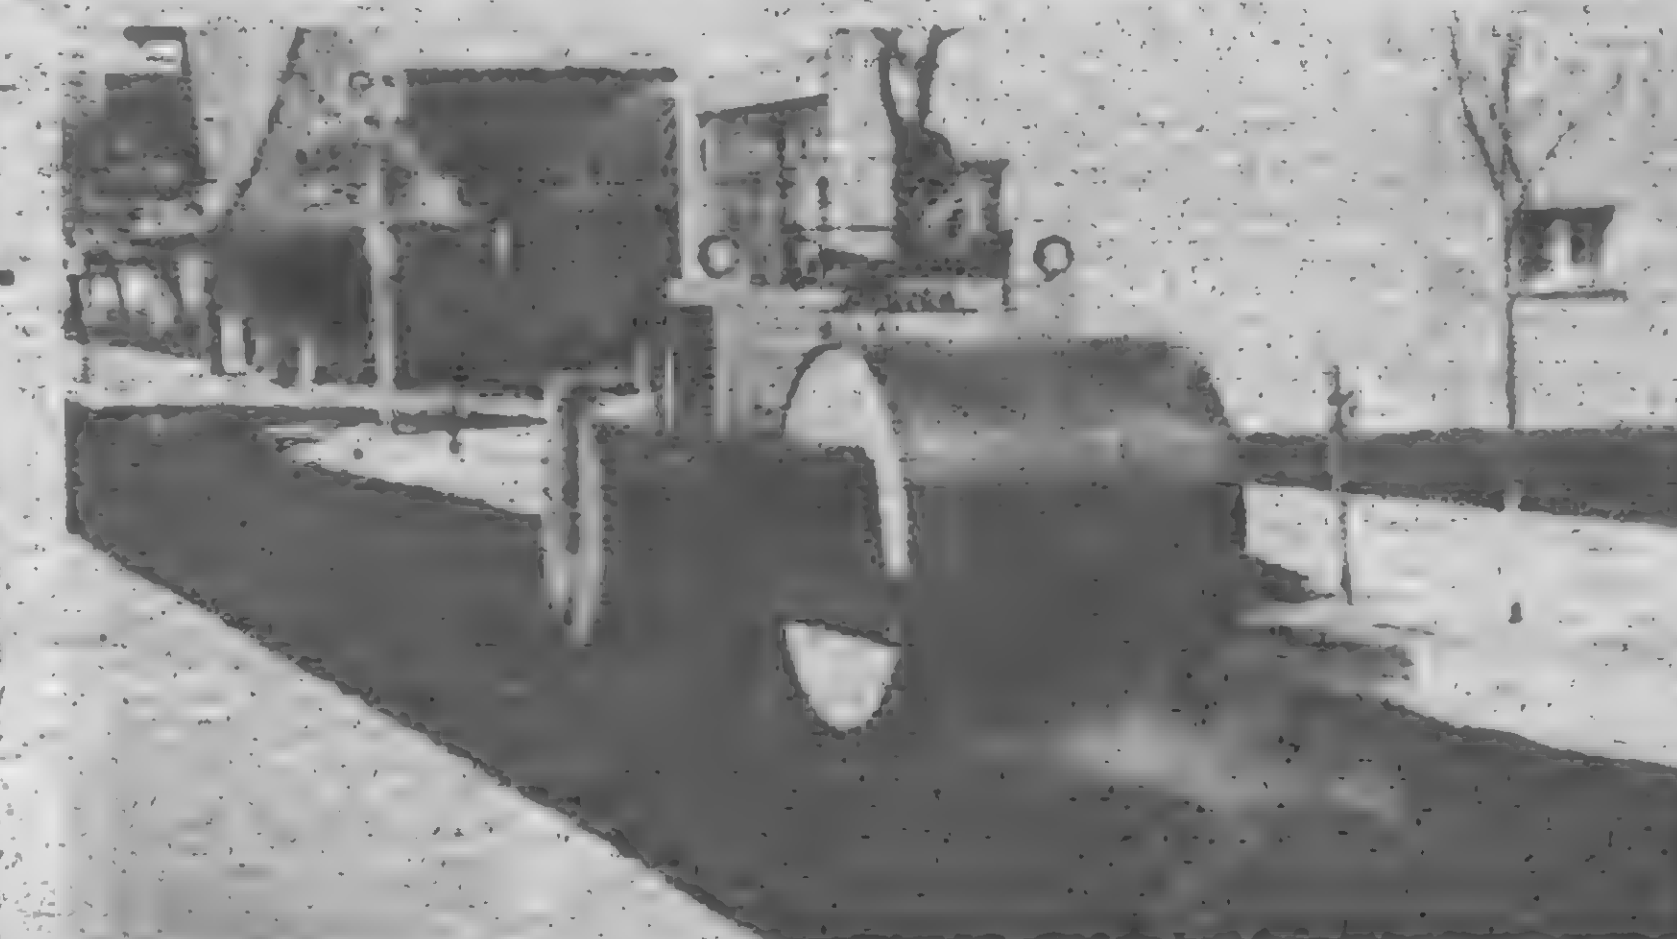

Editor,

May 13 is Voting Day! After all of these years of preparation and planning, we are finally going to have the chance to make it possible for all of the people of Charlevoix to have a pool at their "doorstep." No longer will we have to drive to our neighboring communities of Harbor Springs and East Jordan for the privilege of swimming year round.

Please join me in supporting our Charlevoix pool project with a "yes" vote on Monday.

Thank you,
Pat Ranger

A sign in the window of the Wharfside Market said "Blacktop is Beautiful" when paving began on Bridge Street last week. The street repaving is moving right along, although the project was delayed earlier this week by inclement weather.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Edward F. Eldredge, MD, of Charlevoix, was honored by the Michigan State Medical Society on Saturday, May 4, for 50 years of service in the medical profession.

Doctor Eldredge and 98 others from across the state were honored for their outstanding contributions in a special reception and ceremonies before the 478 assembled delegates attending the 126th annual session of the Michigan State Medical Society's House of Delegates.

The honored doctors collectively represent nearly 5,000 years of medical service to their patients. Beginning their careers the same year the United States entered World War II following the attack on Pearl Harbor, these doctors assumed key roles in a medical generation distinguished for its unprecedented achievements in advancing and promoting human health.

The Michigan State Medical Society is the statewide, professional association of 11,000 medical doctors. Policies on such topics as AIDS prevention and education, medical liability and legislation affecting health care are set at the annual House of Delegates meeting.

FAMILY

A visit to the Alamo is something to remember

By Peg Ohle

Sometimes, an unplanned trip can be more rewarding than one anticipated for months.

Such was the case with the five days my husband Bill and I recently spent in Texas. We decided on rather short notice to go to San Antonio to see our number two granddaughter, Adrienne, graduate from the Medical Academy at Fort Sam Houston. After graduation she could be sent anywhere in the world and we might not see her for a couple of years or more, we reasoned. (More about that later).

We found Fort Sam Houston to be more like a modern apartment building complex than the wooden barracks associated with many Army camps. It was neat as a pin. No worn grass along the edges of sidewalks because soldiers are trained to stay on the sidewalks, and no discarded candy wrappers or paper cups anywhere to be seen. "Who do you think picks up that stuff every day?" was Adrienne's comment about this.

The graduation ceremony was impressive, with scholarship and leadership duly rewarded, and an officer's remarks that stressed responsibility and reminded graduates they had only one chance to make a good first impression. Then we spent most of the day with Adrienne while she "hurried up and waited" to receive her final paycheck and future orders. The computer at Fort Sam Houston had broken down.

Most of our life we have heard the phrase "Remember the Alamo" but knew little more about the reference other than it was about a battle fought in Texas long ago. Now, here we were in San Antonio, with the Alamo situated in the center of town. The "Shrine of Texas Liberty," it is called, and we learned the history of this mission-turned-fortress.

It was on March 6, 1836, that a small army of Texans and fellow sympathizers, who had been held-up in the Alamo fighting for their freedom from Mexico for 13 days, finally fell to the onslaught of some 4,000 Mexican soldiers.

The fall of the Alamo took the lives of 189 known Texas fighters, including the Army's commander, William Barrett Travis; James Bowie, well-known Indian fighter who became famous for his "Bowie Knife"; David Crockett, frontiersman and Indian fighter who arrived in San Antonio with the Tennessee Mounted Volunteers; and James Butler Bonham, who gave up a law practice in Alabama to join the Texans' cause. All of the lost heroes of the Battle of the Alamo are specifically named on plaques in the Alamo Shrine.

The fall of the Alamo so angered the Texans that, 46 days later, 900 Texans and American volunteers led by General Sam Houston launched an attack on the Mexican army of 1,500 at San Jacinto, shouting "Remember the Alamo." They completely routed the Mexican army in a matter of minutes, killing 630 while losing nine, and capturing the Mexican general Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna. Texas was free and a new republic was born.

That's what "Remember the Alamo" is all about. The walled fortress site in San Antonio has been restored and the shrine is operated by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, who do not accept city, state, or federal funding or charge an admission fee. They rely solely on donations and proceeds from their museum sales.

The San Antonio River winds its way through the city. It is the kind of stream that hasn't much going for it because it is muddy and languid, but the City of San Antonio has made the river a real asset. There is a cement walk along the river through the business and recreational areas of the city. The river itself is enclosed with a concrete bottom and natural rock banks which control the flow and depth of the water.

The banks are lined with outdoor tea gardens, flowers, a waterfall, and benches for the weary. New shops and a Marriott Hotel have been added to the old landscape which features century-old buildings to make for a pleasant blend of the old and the new.

Flat-bottomed four boats ply the San Antonio River all day long while the operators tell stories of fact and fiction about the city. It was Fiesta time while we were there, and one of the features of the festivities was an evening boat parade on the river during which all the bright lights and colors of the city's Mexican heritage were well displayed.

Austin, the capitol city of Texas, is about 60 miles to the north and east of San Antonio. The University of Texas is located there, and part of the university is the Lyndon Baines Johnson Memorial Library. It features the life and times of the late president and contains much personal material. It is well used by researchers, and even the staunchest Republican can be awed by the display of presidential campaign posters, flags, advertisements, ribbons, sound tracks, buttons, letters, and photographs of recent presidents and would-be presidents.

Another 60, or so miles to the west of Austin is the LBJ Ranch, surrounded by a national and a state park on opposite sides of the Pedernales River. Tour buses take sightseers within a few feet of the Johnson home (where Lady Bird still spends about four months a year), past many barns and other ranch outbuildings and out into the pastureland where longhorn cattle can be seen grazing. LBJ's birthplace is just down the road from the former Texas White House. So is the one-room school house where he first attended school.

This part of Texas is called the "Hill Country," with hills about the size of those in northern Michigan, which are a relief from the miles and miles of flat ranchland.

All in all, we learned a lot about the Lone Star State in just a few days and can vouch for the fact that Texans are a friendly and proud people.

(Getting back to the second paragraph above, when Adrienne finally received her orders, they were to report to Walter Reid Hospital in Washington, just a stone's throw from her home in Bethesda, Maryland.)

High schoolers choose classes

The process of enrolling students for courses at Charlevoix High School will be slightly different this year.

Individual student meetings with the counselors will still take place in order to review past courses and grades and to develop a program of classes for next year. However, instead of the computer determining the schedule, current freshmen, sophomores and juniors will be able to determine which hours they would like to take the program of classes they developed with a counselor. Current eighth graders and their parent(s) will meet with the counselors and be scheduled into classes at that time.

The change has been implemented to encourage students to take more ownership in their schedule by permitting them to choose the hours for their classes. This provides the opportunity for them to take into account the best time of the day for learning a particular subject and/or to schedule classes to minimize being out of class for extracurricular activities. Also, they know their schedule before school is out this spring. Teachers can plan more adequately as they know who is in each class and when each class will meet.

During scheduling for underclassmen, the seniors will be attending a seminar, "Leap into Life: High School to the Real World," a program conducted by both recent college graduates and those who went directly to work.

1989 Charlevoix Venetian Queen, Marcie Wynkoop won the talent competition and placed second overall in the Miss Northern Michigan Pageant in Traverse City this past Saturday.

High school band takes state honors

Saturday, April 27, the Charlevoix High School Band traveled to Grand Rapids to compete in the state band festival. The band earned the right to compete in the state festival by earning a first division (1) rating at the district festival in February and went on Saturday to again earn a first division rating (1) at the state level.

State judges praised the band for their ability to play expressively and with rhythmic accuracy. The individuals who performed solo passages also were praised for their outstanding work.

Charlevoix High School band consists of 72 instrumentalists from grades 9 through 12 and is directed by Terry Isenberger.

The band received a true Charlevoix "heroes welcome" as they returned on Saturday night to sirens, honking horns and even sprays of confetti as they disembarked from the bus.

Grange helps the deaf

Barnard Grange along with other Granges across the Nation will be observing May as the "Better Hearing Month" to increase public awareness of their deaf activities program.

The aim of the Grange is to help with the wide range of deaf problems on as many levels as possible. Grange deaf activities provide direct assistance to the deaf and also focus on educational programs to make the public aware of the problem.

Hearing problems can be present at birth or strike at any stage of life. Your child's most important learning will take place between birth and 4 years of age. In the first four years of life, the child learns how to communicate - first to understand what people say, and then to start talking himself. To do this, your baby must have usable hearing. The following information is a basic guide. Birth to 3 months - is started by loud sounds, is soothed by Mother's voice. 3 to 6 months - turns eyes and head to search for location of sound, imitates his own noises, enjoys rattles and other sounds. 6 to 10 months - responds to his own name, telephone ringing, understands "no," "bye-bye," and other common words. 10 to 15 months - imitates simple words and sounds, can point to or look at familiar objects when asked to do so. 15 to 18 months - follows simple directions, first words are well on their way.

If you suspect that your baby has a hearing problem, tell your doctor immediately. Every year each Grange in Michigan contributes monies to deaf activities on the State and National level to be used for the deaf program. On the National level, scholarships are available in deaf education, audiology and many other programs for the hearing impaired. On the State level, a scholarship

Performers place third in state

Charlevoix High School's Performing Arts Team places third in the C-D Class at Michigan Inter-scholastic Forensic Association Championships this past weekend and are all now preparing for this year's elegant dinner-theatre, Sunday, May 19.

At the state championships, students competed as individuals and in small groups in a variety of dramatic interpretive events. "They all performed extremely well and all contributed to our third place finish," reports Coach Connie Ford.

Leading the pack were David Hunter who took third place for students from all class high schools in the story telling competition, J.P. Haneckow placed sixth overall for his dramatic presentation in Poetry. Also competing for Charlevoix and contributing to the excellent finish were: Troy Bonar in Prose, B.J. Van Loo in Dramatic Interpretation; and the multiple team performing "In the Woods," Jeff Warner, Brian Coleman, Megan Bickerteth, Randy Williams, Amber Phillips, Melissa Mosher, and David Skeel.

Now the entire Performing Arts Team of some sixty students has turned its attention to the last two weeks of rehearsal for its Annual Dinner Theater Presentation.

This year's Dinner Theater scheduled for Sunday, May 19 at 2 p.m., will once again see an area of the high school gym magically transformed into an elegant cabaret.

After an extravagant meal, including choice of stuffed breast of chicken or sirloin beaufortais, stuffed tomatoes, potatoes, salad and a sumptuous dessert, prepared by Dave Phillips, the students will perform.

The theme of this year's dinner theater is "Visions - Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," with students fantasizing on history and their own futures in a series of skits, highlighted with song and dance routines.

Tickets for the Sunday matinee dinner theater are $12.50 and may be purchased through Performing Arts students or at the Charlevoix High School office.

OF BLESSINGS

In Jesus' parable of the prodigal son there is an image that should be framed in our hearts and minds. The picture is of a father, the portrait of God, with outstretched arms invites us all as sinners, home to his love. Today, we thank God for his merciful love.

Local martial arts instructor wins title

Students pass first test

Kevin Janisse of the Charlevoix Kuk Sool Won martial arts club won two events in the Kuk Sool Won Open tournament in Galesburg, Illinois recently. Janisse won the black belt fighting and self defense titles. The tournament was a light contact point, as opposed to a full contact, tournament.

Janisse is the instructor of the Charlevoix Club which was formed this past winter. The club currently has 10 students. Janisse said the club recently had its first test and all 10 students passed.

For the past several months the club has been working out at the high school as part of the community education program. With the community education program coming to an end this year, the club is looking for a place to work out during the summer. Anyone with a suggestion is asked to contact Janisse at 547-9000.

Charlevoix sprinter Kristin Ranville (right) smoked the competition in the sprints last week winning both the 100 and 200 meter races.

Softball team splits pair of games with Kalkaska

After an ugly 14-10 first-game loss, the Charlevoix softball team composed themselves and took game two 13-8 win in the second game of a double header against Kalkaska Monday.

Tammy Holm took the loss in game one allowing six hits and eight walks. Charlevoix dug a hole in the first inning of the game, giving up four runs.

Tara Morrow had an excellent game offensively, collecting three hits.

The second game also started off miserably for the Rayders as Kalkaska scored five runs in the opening two innings. But Charlevoix battled back with a five-run inning in the third playing a major role in the win.

Holm also pitched the second game allowing nine hits and six walks.

Both games were played in weather more fit for football than softball; it indeed such weather is fit for anything.

The victory raised the Rayders' season record to 10-6 overall and 7-3 in league play. This season marks the first time Charlevoix has reached the 10 win mark in the past several years.

Rayder shot putter Ryan Eyleigh follows through as he lofts the oversize slinker.

Baseball team drops two games to league leader

Charlevoix's baseball team lost two games to league leading Kalkaska Monday.

In game one, the Rayders fell 3-1 despite getting a one-hit pitching performance from Dan Terryberry.

Game two was also a disappointing loss as Kalkaska scored a run in the final inning to break a 5-5 tie.

and take a 6-5 win.

In the opening game, Charlevoix outhit Kalkaska 5-1. The Rayders' Scott Kehrner had two hits. Defensive lapses were the Rayders' downfall as all three of Kalkaska's runs were unearned.

While allowing only one hit in the game, Terryberry struck out six batters while allowing two walks.

In the second game, no Rayder hit had more than one hit although Kehrner did have a triple.

The two wins left Kalkaska undefeated in league play with a 10-0 record. The Rayders are now 6-4 in league play and 7-9 overall.

Tennis team suffers 4-3 loss to Leelanau School team

Despite a strong performance from the doubles teams, Charlevoix lost a Monday afternoon tennis meet 4-3 to Leelanau School.

Charlevoix took two of three doubles matches, but that wasn't enough to overcome losing three out of four in singles play.

Charlevoix results from the meet were as follows:

Number one singles; Paul Cunningham lost 6-2, 6-0.

Number two singles; Jeff Joy lost 6-1, 6-2.

Number three singles; Chris Pair lost 6-0, 6-0.

Number four singles; Chris Marschal won 6-3, 6-4.

Number one doubles; Sam Bingham and Corey Crain lost 6-4, 1-6, 6-4.

Heartworm disease threatens dogs

Heartworm disease poses a threat to thousands of dogs in Michigan. To combat this potentially fatal disease, the Michigan Veterinary Medical Association (MYMA) and its member veterinarians are participating in a statewide program to educate pet owners about the risks of canine heartworm disease and how easily it can be prevented.

In the past, heartworm disease was confined to wet, swampy regions where heartworm-carrying mosquitoes breed in the millions. But with more Americans traveling with their pets, the disease has spread to almost every state and Canada.

According to Dr. Griffith Acker, president of the MYMA, dog owners can reduce the risk of heartworm by asking veterinarians about preventive medication. The disease spreads when a mosquito picks up the first-stage larvae of heartworms by feeding on dogs already infected. Over the next few weeks, these larvae develop within the mosquito and are transmitted to another dog when the mosquito feeds again.

Once inside the dog's system, the worms travel to its heart and pulmonary arteries, where they can grow up to 14 inches long. But visible signs of the disease — loss of appetite, weight loss, fatigue and chronic cough — do not appear until after severe damage to the vital organs has begun. At this stage, treatment is complicated, risky and expensive.

Although prevention has become quite widespread, Dr. Acker said the disease still is a threat to dogs.

Nuclear report stirs debate

A recent report on nuclear power plants, including the Big Rock Point plant, is either another meaningless scare tactic or further evidence that the plant is unsafe, depending upon who you're talking to.

The report was issued by the Washington D.C. based group called Public Citizen. It contains allegations that Big Rock Point emissions are higher emissions from other plants.

Big Rock's public affairs director, Charles MacInnis says the report is nothing but a scare tactic.

"It takes some numbers and really distorts them to scare people," he said. He added that the report "has no value whatsoever as far as understanding what's going on at Big Rock Point."

Joanne Beemon, a local nuclear opponent, said the report indicates that Big Rock Point operates at a high cost and produces high emissions.

"We expect Big Rock to be within current norms and they're way out of that," she said.

MacInnis says the plant releases less than one percent of the legally allowable limit for radioactive emissions. He said the reason the plant's emissions appear high relative to other plants is because some of the larger plants have their emissions down to close to nothing. He said that if a person stood a mile downwind of the plant for a year, that person would receive less than one millirem of radiation from the plant. On the average a person absorbs 200 to 300 millirems each year just from sources other than the plant, sources such as radiation from the sun.

Beemon argues that there is no safe level of exposure to radioactivity and that any increased exposure is an increased health risk.

Big Rock Point began operating in 1963. Its current operating license expires in the year 2000.

There is a relicensing process which might allow the plant to operate for an additional 20 years. MacInnis said that although the option remains open, currently Consumers Power Company, which owns Big Rock Point, is not pursuing relicensing.

Big Rock Point employs about 150 people with an annual payroll of $6 to $7 million. The plant also pays approximately $800,000 in property taxes.

"When the plant closes down, it won't be immediately vacated. There will be a decommissioning process."

Beemon says she doesn't want to see the plant's license extended.

"I don't think it's a service to the community to extend the license because they're so far away from industry standards of today," she said. She said she would prefer to see Consumers Power Company take a more active role in developing safe, renewable energy sources.

Jim Keller of Pat McKeown Dodge City stands next to a sign touting Dodge City's new fast oil changing service.

Dodge City adds fast oil change service

Pat McKeown Dodge City has added Pennzoil Fast Oil Change to the company's service department.

The new service went into operation at the beginning of May, Jim Keller, service and parts coordinator, said adding the Fast Oil Change service is an idea the company began working on last fall. Currently, there are no other Fast Oil Change services in Charlevoix. Keller also noted that since full-service gas stations are becoming a thing of the past, the oil change service is needed by more people.

"No appointment is necessary for a Fast Oil Change. For $18.95 service men will change the oil and filter, check all fluid levels and lubrication points on the vehicle, check the air in the tires and do a quick inspection of the car's exhaust system."

Keller said the service department is shooting for the operation to take 30 minutes or less. Pat McKeown Dodge City has a waiting room with a TV etc. for people to wait in while their car is being serviced.

"Many fast oil change operations are stand alone. In other words, that's all they do. At Pat McKeown Dodge City, the oil change service will have a complete service department backing it up. If another problem is discovered during the oil change, arrangements can be made to get it corrected."

"We're trying to do a quick, good oil change with full service to back it up," Keller explained.

BUSINESS

(Editor's note: This story is one in a series of stories Ralph McRae is doing for the Courier about area industries.)

By Ralph McRae

Old businesses fade away and new industries emerge. Little acorns of ideas grow and end up spreading branches all across the nation.

Here in Charlevoix, there is a new industry that depends on the sun. It is currently small, but is based on a technology which is having a growing impact on countries throughout the world.

Most people have at least heard of solar panels. Here in Charlevoix, Don Seelye of Seelye Equipment Specialists is involved in promoting the use of solar panels to generate electricity. Electricity produced from the sun is referred to as photovoltaic energy.

Seelye Equipment Specialists is a wholesaler for electricity producing solar panels manufactured by a Detroit based company. Seelye Equipment is located at the south end of State Street in a building behind Seelye's home. The business building is divided into three parts: a modern tele-communications office, an accessory display section and a parts assembly area.

Although Seelye Equipment Specialists is a small business in a small town, it is tied into a worldwide marketing network.

In recent months, the Detroit manufacturer Seelye is affiliated with shut down its production lines to completely redesign its solar panels. During that time, the manufacturer also took on a new business partner, the gigantic Canon Corporation of Japan. When marketing efforts resume next month, Seelye will be able to offer panels which are more efficient for a lower price.

Each panel segment is built on a two-inch wide strip of very thin stainless steel. Layers of silicon alloys are applied to the strip in alternating polarized negative and positive layers, separated by neutral elements.

The panel strips, or segments are joined together to make panels of various widths. The panels produce direct current (DC) electricity in amounts which vary according to the size of the panel and the intensity and duration of sunlight on the panels.

These silent and clean generators easily charge special 12-volt batteries. Substituting for gasoline-powered generators, the solar generators are able to power lights and other equipment.

People living in isolated areas are very enthusiastic solar panel users. One U.S. solar dealer, is now in Africa to finalize a $500,000 contract to use solar power to operate a large water pumping system. Other dealers are selling power plants in Europe and elsewhere. The Detroit solar panel manufacturer will be building branch plants in Western Europe and Russia.

A complete solar power system will cost more than the heavier gasoline consuming generator, but with protective coating the panels will endure more than 40 years. Using smaller batteries, the solar power units can also be carried over difficult terrain. Panels as small as one square foot can fully charge small 12-volt batteries. Bigger panels produce a larger amount of DC current which can be inverted in AC (alternating current) which can be used in a home.

Panel sizes are sized to fit their intended use. Some can light large billboards. Others can charge batteries on sailboats. In the recent Persian Gulf War, solar power units were used to power communication systems, including some used by TV crews. In Texas, solar power units are used to charge the electric fences which keep in the cattle. Many foreign missionaries depend on solar generators for their lights and communications. The versatile panels can be bent, suspended or nailed to adapt to a multitude of structures.

Being part of a worldwide communication network is a valuable asset to the Seelye Equipment Specialists company which is a wholly owned family business. Seelye has five phone lines, including an 800 service and a fax line. He has received fax orders from the West Indies and Hong Kong. On a recent day, he received an inquiry on the 800 line which less than half an hour later had turned into a faxed $1,100 order to buy UPSed to Quebec by the next day.

Seelye's design many of their own accessories, fusing timers and controls to their customers' specifications. Almost all of the buyers have situations unlike those of other solar users.

Seelye also practices what he preaches in using solar power. During the recent electrical blackout, Seelye kept right on working because the power for his lights and computer was coming from his silent, sun-energized system.

Only four years into this progressive business, Seelye anticipates continued growth and eventual expansion.

Debbie Seelye holds one of the solar panels marketed by Seelye Equipment Specialists.

Charlevoix County video premiers

"Northern Lights", a video panorama of life in Charlevoix County, premieres for business, industrial and governmental leaders, Thursday, May 9, at 5 p.m. at the Argonne Supper Club in Charlevoix.

A 15-minute video program, "Northern Lights" captures the business and recreational life of Charlevoix County in a kaleidoscope of images, vignettes, music, interviews and scenic shots.

Designed to serve as a marketing tool for business, industry, government, and other organizations seeking to promote Charlevoix County, the video program is a production of National Video Communications Inc., a company directed by George Colburn, an internationally known producer of documentaries.

According to Colburn, "Northern Lights" can be used to recruit employees, promote products, encourage business growth, and attract interest in life in Charlevoix County.

The producer explained that businesses and organizations will be licensed to use the program by NVC. The program will not be for sale to the general public.

Licenses will be awarded for three-year periods at a rate of $50 per month and will include the right to access NVC film archives for the 10 to 12 hours of raw footage shot during the making of "Northern Lights." This raw footage can be added to the video program or used with other presentations.

"Northern Lights" is intended to make viewers say, "I want to know more about Charlevoix County. I want to come to Charlevoix County," Colburn said in an interview.

Colburn, who maintains a home in Marion Township, founded International Video Connection in 1982. National Video Communication is a division of the parent company as is Contemporary Learning Systems, Inc., a producer of books and educational materials linked to television programming.

Colburn, Director of the National Media Program at the University of California San Diego (UCSD) from 1978 to 1982, produced such well-known video telecourses as Carl Sagan's "Cosmos" and "The Voyage of Charles Darwin."

His interest in Charlevoix County began more than 20 years ago when he started skiing at Boyne Mountain. From 1977-81, Colburn was co-owner of the Charlevoix County Press. This May, NVC's documentary entitled "Dangerous Years: President Eisenhower and the Cold War," on the life of President Dwight Eisenhower will premiere at the Eisenhower Institute. It will air nationally on the Discovery Channel in October.

Colburn, who maintains offices in Los Angeles, San Francisco, East Lansing and Charlevoix, won three Michigan Emmys for a series broadcast on WDIV in Detroit last year. Among the educational companion books his firm has produced for Public Broadcasting programs are "The MiniDragons," set to air May 27 nationally on PBS, "The Heart of the Dragon," and "The Day the Universe Changed."

Another Colburn produced program, "What of Tomorrow," a 30 minute pilot about people with disabilities, premieres May 16 at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. and will appear nationally this fall on The Learning Channel and major PBS stations.

Representatives of business, industry, government and civic organizations are invited to the open premiere of "Northern Lights" at the Argonne on May 9. Colburn will be on hand to answer questions and explain what other services of NVC are available for promotional assistance.

300,000 salmon planted

Thousands, 300,000 to be more precise, small chinook salmon were planted at the Charlevoix fish weir last week. Approximately one-third of the fish have been fin clipped and micro-tagged. Micro-tagging is a relatively new process where small wire tags are inserted into the side of the fish. When the fish are caught and fishermen in the heads, DNR workers can learn about salmon migratory patterns. Micro-tagged fish can be identified by the clipped adipose fin.

The salmon are planted in the weir, rather than directly into the lake to improve the salmon's rate of survival. Local DNR Fisheries employee Jeff Stevens (shown in the photo at the right) will be feeding the fish until they leave in about two to three weeks.

The photo at the bottom shows some of the small fish trying to reorient themselves after being shot out of a pipe and into the weir.

Get seedlings planted early

(Editor's note: The accompanying story is one of a series of stories provided by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club in order to help the many people who strive to make Charlevoix a greener place to live.)

The end of May is usually the time to plant tender annuals, such as zinnias, marigolds, snapdragons, asters, etc. We must expect frost any time in May and since the first frost of the fall season kills off these annuals sometimes in mid-September, we like to get a head start by planting young plants rather than seeds. Commercial greenhouses, nurseries, even grocery and dime stores sell these plants throughout May in many varieties.

If you like to grow your own, either because it is much cheaper, or because the variety you want is not grown commercially, early April is the time to get started. While growing your own is not difficult, you must not expect to match the size and bushiness of commercially grown plants, since you cannot duplicate in your own home the ideal growing conditions that exist in a green house. The old gardening advice used to tell you to sow the seeds in flats and transplant them into little pots when the seedlings have made four leaves, about halfway throughout the indoor growing period. It is just as easy to sow the seeds directly into little pots, or even pots made of peat that you can set out with plant and all when the time comes to plant them in the garden.

Any container will do, as long as it has holes in the bottom for drainage. Seeds in undrained containers tend to rot. Put a thin layer of broken pottery or pebbles in the bottom to cover the holes to prevent the soil from running out.

One of the worst hazards of newly emerging seedlings is "damping-off", a fungus disease that will kill them rapidly. You can prevent this by using sterilized soil. An easy way to sterilize soil is to bake it in the oven for one hour at 350 degrees. Or use any of the new growing media available, such as vermiculite, sphagnum moss etc. following package instructions put a few seeds in each pot and water thoroughly. Cover with plastic or put in a plastic bag to keep the moisture in and keep it in a warm place until the seeds begin to sprout. Then remove the plastic and move to a sunny window, or put it under fluorescent light for about 14 hours each day. Water regularly, don't allow the soil to become dry, fertilize often, particularly if you use a growing medium other than soil. Use an all-round fertilizer for houseplants following package directions.

When you are ready to plant them outdoors, give the young plants first a chance to get used to the outdoors gradually by putting them outside for a few hours each day for a while.

This procedure works well with snapdragons, asters, marigold, zinnias, tomatoes, in short, with all annual plants that are sensitive to frost damage.

Body identified Wynkoop charged

Heather Kleiber disappeared last August. A nine-month search concluded when a man accidentally found the 13-year-old's body in a wooded area May 4. Kleiber's funeral took place this past Saturday. Andrew Wynkoop, a 19-year-old Charlevoix man, is in jail and charged with murdering Kleiber.

Those are the simplest of the facts in a strange and complex case. Charlevoix County Prosecutor Krage Lieberman, Sheriff George Lasater, City Police Chief Dennis Halverson and Probate Court Judge Fred Mulhauser spoke at a May 8 press conference in the Charlevoix District Court Room. They confirmed that the body found off the end of Lakeshore Drive May 4 was Kleiber and announced that following a grand jury indictment Wynkoop has been arraigned on a charge of open murder in the Kleiber case.

Wynkoop is also charged with kidnap, rape and murder in the death of Katherine McCleese. The 28-year-old McCleese disappeared from a party in March and her body was found approximately two weeks later in a wooded area near the entrance to Fisherman's Island State Park. Wynkoop was arrested April 9 and has been in jail without bond since that time.

Wynkoop is now awaiting psychiatric examination to determine if he is competent to stand trial. He is being represented by court-appointed attorney Edwin Gregory. Prior to arraignment on the Kleiber charge, he was represented by court-appointed attorney Bryan Graham. Graham withdrew from the case due to a conflict of interest. Graham works with attorney Jim Young. Young is the attorney for the city of Charlevoix. Charlevoix City Police were the first agency to investigate Kleiber's disappearance.

Although the body was discovered May 4, it was not positively identified as Kleiber's until May 8. Pathologists in Grand Rapids used dental records to identify the body while a friend of Kleiber's identified a watch found on the body as belonging to Kleiber.

At the press conference, Lasater said that evidence and testimony collected during the nine and a half month investigation have led police to classify Wynkoop as a suspect. In the time since Kleiber's body was found, witnesses came forward and testified that Wynkoop was at Lakeshore Drive turn-around on the morning after Kleiber was last seen. Lieberman said that apparently Wynkoop's car was stuck near the turn-around and he walked into town and recruited someone to help him get it unstuck. Another

City moves ahead on bonding for new electrical substation

City electric service customers can expect a rate increase soon as a result of a council decision to borrow $3.3 million to construct a new electrical substation.

At the May 6 council meeting, council members approved a proposal calling for a 15-year payback. Although the payback is scheduled to take 15 years, there is a provision which would allow the city to complete the payback in 10 years if money is available to do that.

If the city does not pay the bond off early and takes the entire 15 years, the total cost of the bond, including interest, is estimated to be $5,732,000.

The bond will be paid off through increased rates to city electric customers. The net increase will be 4.03 to 8.39 percent. That rate could vary from customer to customer because city electric rates are broken down into approximately 10 different categories. The city council will have to decide how to spread the increased costs.

If the city takes the entire 15 years to pay off the bond, then the net rate increase can be 4.03 percent. However, if the city chooses to pay off the bonds in 10 years, then the net increase would have to be 8.39 percent.

City manager Mike Wiesner said that regardless of which increase the council chooses to adopt, Charlevoix City electric service rates will still be comparable to those charged by other northern Michigan utilities.

Another factor in the decision is that according to electric service projections, another substation will be needed in 10 years for the north side. If rates are increased at 8.39 percent, in 10 years the city could find itself with a choice of using the money to pay off the bond or finance the north side substation will less or no borrowing through bonding.

Council member Bill Hagbard has consistently spoken in favor of reducing the payback period to reduce interest costs. He reiterated that view May 6.

Other council members said they like the flexibility of the 15 year payback schedule with the provision to Voters decide pool question And the answer is No!

Yes - 717
No - 1,163

Charlevoix School District voters lined up in the hallway of the Charlevoix Elementary School Monday to vote on a $2.29 million bond issue which would have funded construction of an indoor swimming pool on school property. More than 1,900 voters cast ballots. It was the largest voter turnout at any school election in recent years.

When the votes were counted late Monday evening, the results were 717 in favor of building a pool and 1,163 opposed to building a pool at the school. There were 30 spoiled ballots.

er person witnessed Wynkoop and the witness pushing the car out. The wooded area where the body was discovered is near a boat launching ramp and fishing weir. The area had been searched and was on a list of places to be searched again. Lasater said the body may have been hidden beneath a large mound of cedar boughs. Police don't feel the body was moved prior to being discovered. Police also don't feel there were any accomplices in the murder or that the murder is related to any kind of cult activity. Lasater said that the pathologist could not give a specific cause of death, but is classifying the death as "by homicidal means." A bicycle Kleiber was riding the night she disappeared still has not been found. Lasater said numerous places have been searched for the bike. Despite a shortage of physical evidence, Lieberman said he feels a case can be made to substantiate the murder charge. Mulhauser, who served as a one-man grand jury in the case, said he feels evidence gathered in the case will "withstand the test of the criminal process." Halverson said that during the investigation, information was collected from 35 states and three foreign countries. Up until the body was found and identified, officers couldn't be certain if the case was a murder, abduction or run-away. Halverson said there were times when officers felt like they were close to finding the girl. He said the case was an emotional roller-coaster. Halverson said that for the past several months, whenever the police department made an arrest, they would ask about Kleiber just on the off chance it might lead to something. The case drew so much attention that the Charlevoix Police Department would periodically get calls from other police departments wanting to know how the investigation was going. City police have a file drawer which contains folders filled with tips. The folders of tips are literally a foot thick. Lasater said police have spent thousands of hours on the case. "I can not overemphasize the amount of cooperation," the sheriff said. He added that not only law enforcement officers, but members from many facets of the community took a deep interest in the case and tried to be of assistance. Lasater also praised Kleiber's family. He said that despite the pressure and grief they were very gracious, cooperative and appreciative of the efforts made to resolve the case. Lasater expressed relief at the discovery of the body. He said officers had been diligently trying to give the family an answer and that, as tragic as the answer may be, it is a relief to have an answer. Kleiber's funeral took place Saturday afternoon in Charlevoix. In a statement released prior to the funeral, her mother, Nancy Ellis said she hopes that through this tragedy, area youths will benefit from a greater emphasis being placed on their needs.

pay off the bonds early. The downside of the provision is that in order to get it, the city will have to pay a slightly higher interest rate on the bonds. The interest rate for the 15 year bonds is anticipated to be 8 percent. The city is being advised by a financial advisor in seeking the electric substation bonds. The new substation is to be built near the corner of M-66 and Stover Road. That location was chosen after people living near other prospective sites raised objections at city council meetings. Power comes into Charlevoix at the substation and then is distributed throughout the community.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

A summer without softball

In the spring of 1984, I played for a softball team which won the men's intramural championship at Ferris State College. I have an old picture somewhere around my house to verify this claim. This championship was the highlight of my softball career.

During the evenings of the past couple of weeks, the softball field on Carpenter Street has been lit up as local teams practice for the upcoming season. Once again this year, I won't be playing. I just can't seem to find the time for softball anymore. Summers are too busy.

When I was a kid, I would have been aghast at the thought of a summer passing without playing on a softball team. As an eight-year-old, I began playing organized softball - that is if you consider tee-ball organized softball.

Prior to that, I had played a bit of disorganized softball in the back yard of my family's home at 306 Clinton Street. And disorganized it was. At age seven, I was a veteran of the back yard league. It was not uncommon for each team to have but a single player. The neighbor girl played on one team and I played on the other. Playing with one-person teams had its advantages. There was never a problem with people batting out of order.

The biggest problem of one-person softball teams was baserunners. It's physically impossible to be a baserunner on second base and a batter at home plate at the same time. We had to delve into the supernatural to solve this difficulty. We invented "ghostmen."

Each team got one ghostman. When you were batting, you would hit the ball and run as far as you could while the fielder retrieved the ball. If you got to second base, you would say, "Ghostman on second base," and then go back to hit. On your next hit, the ghostman would move up one base for every base you ran to. If you didn't make it far enough to get your ghostman to home, then you were out. If your ghostman was on second, you had to get at least to second with your next hit. If your ghostman was on first base, you were hurting because that meant you had to have at least a triple to drive him home. To get a triple, you had the ball through the cedar trees and clear to the alley.

Tee-ball was organized ball. That means there were coaches and an umpire. In tee-ball, the ball is placed on a tee and batted with a bat. The pronoun "it" is left purposely vague here. "It" could mean either the ball or the tee. In tee ball, the ball and tee each get hit with about the same degree of regularity.

The ball is hit off a tee for two reasons: 1. Scant few kids that age can pitch a ball accurately enough to get it over a plate. 2. On those rare occasions when you find a kid who can pitch accurately, you find that none of the other kids can hit it.

I still walk up to the ball field once or twice each summer to watch the tee-ball games. All of the teams are after one of various colors and share the same last name, the "Sox."

With heartfelt disappointment, I must confess that the team I used to play for has gone the way of the Washington Senators and no longer exists. I played for the Black Sox, but the Black Sox are no more. They were apparently replaced by one of those expansion teams; the Light Blue Sox or the Aqua Sox or one of those other more colorful teams.

After a couple of years of tee-ball, I advanced to the Peanut League and joined the other peanuts. With the way my birthday fell, I could have played another year of tee-ball, but I chose to move up. I wanted to play against 11, 12 and 13-year-olds; the "big kids."

In the Peanut League, pitchers were allowed to throw windmill. Not many did, because not many could throw windmill with any degree of accuracy. As I recall, the only kids who threw windmill pitches with any degree of regularity were Brian Warner, Dahny Oliver and sometimes Pat Schmidt. Most of the pitchers just threw underhand.

One year I played on a particularly desperate team and had to do the pitching myself. I then found out why so few people threw windmill. I tried learning to pitch windmill by throwing a rubber ball up against the side of the barn, but after missing the barn several times, I concluded the windmill pitching just wasn't for me.

Now, I can't find time for softball. I'm old. I have a garden to tend. But sometimes when I'm hoeing in the garden, I hear the people up at the ball field. I put down my hoe. And I walk up there and watch a game. It brings back memories.

What's really going on in Hayes Township?

Before we discuss the classical conflict of zoning battles between developers and the local power structure, let's first define this unique area. Hayes Township includes the recent new development, Dunmaglas Barn, Inn and Golf Course, and the established Argonne Restaurant, Lexington, and Big Rock Nuclear Plant, as well as half of Bay Shore.

Hayes Township also borders on approximately ten miles of scenic shoreline property on Lake Charlevoix and eight miles on Lake Michigan. Because of the numerous lakes, streams and rivers, the usual surveyors township concept of six miles by six miles doesn't apply here.

In addition to such valuable, scalloped shorelines, Hayes Township is blessed with desirable three tier view property due to geological shifts in former lake levels that have receded over the past 10,000 years.

Lakefront property - view property. This is pretty heady stuff, especially when it's located near a popular resort such as the city of Charlevoix, that is growing as fast as a puppy out of its collar.

Last summer, I realized it took me only eight minutes to drive from my home in Charlevoix to the Barn at Dunmaglas on the Boyne City Road in Hayes Township. The Barn is one of the lovely pastoral sites of the Northwood Symphony Orchestra's summer concert series. Adjacent to the Barn is the newly remodeled restaurant, The Inn, which serves delicious meals. It's the proposed housing development surrounding the new world class Dunmaglas golf course, that's causing all the furor in Hayes Township now. Scott Ventures is the name of the company in charge of the project. It is owned by Kenneth MacGillivray, Jr., better known as Chuck.

MacGillivray is not the ordinary nit and run, guzzy, clutter developer. On the contrary, one may almost consider him, to coin a new phrase - a summer native. His Flint family spent every summer in the area and he has made Charlevoix his second home these last ten years. With a passion for golf, his dream of building a world class golf course is now a reality. The name Dunmaglas came from his families' Scotch/ancestral site. A convenient clubhouse will be located at the highest point of the golf course property overlooking a magnificent view of both Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan. Along with the world class golf course, MacGillivray envisions a first class housing development for vacation or year 'round living; single family homes and clustered housing depending on the market demand.

Scott Ventures hired Bill Johnson, a world renowned planner, to design these single family homes and condos so that from the highway, the complex would look like a farmstead with barns and silos. These cluster buildings would house five families and would be scattered throughout the hills, woods and streams of the property.

The present zoning in Hayes Township is A-1 agricultural which permits golf courses as well as "junk yards, dog kennels and housing for transient labor." According to this A-1 agricultural zoning Scott Ventures would be allowed to build one house on every 10 acres, or 70 homes on the 726 acres - 100 of which are occupied by the golf course. This limitation makes the project financially and physically unfeasible. The problem with 10 acres lots is that it does not take into consideration the irregular space and lot lines that are necessary because of the golf course. Scott Venture, therefore has requested that the township board develop a new zoning district known as RR-1, which would allow one unit for every five acres.

So far so good. The hitch comes when we start discussing Plan Unit Development, or PUD, a most-misunderstood and controversial form of zoning.

ing. PUD has a provision called bonuses, whereby for every 5 acres the developer leaves in a natural state he is allowed one extra housing unit as a bonus. The problem arising is that few people, if anyone, understand the PUD zoning and much of the interpretation is left up to the township board. Currently this matter is very much up in the air. There is talk of changing it to allow for flexibility for "good" development.

One of the matters that could be renegotiated is the question of landscaped golf course. Technically it is not considered land that is left in its natural state. Some people, however, would say it should be considered for inclusion.

Were the Township to rezone the property and allow one home for every five acres on the total 726 acres, including the 100 acres for the golf course, that would equal 144 homes. With additional PUD bonuses somewhere between 30 and 50 homes, or a total of close to 200 homes could be built on the property. Interestingly enough there is no limit to the size of the homes or clustered housing in the discussion.

The township board passed the resolution that the one house to every five acres is approved with the present PUD additions. However, some local residents were able to put a proposal on last November 6 ballot asking for a citizen's vote on the resolution. It read as follows:

"Shall the Resolution of Hayes Township Board of Trustees to rezone approximately 600 acres surrounding the Dunmaglas Golf Course and running North from Boyne City Road to Quarterline Road and East and West of Burgess Road from A-1 agricultural (one dwelling per ten acres) to RR-1, Rural Residential (one unit per five acres) be upheld?"

A vote "no" fight was led by Edith Beck, who figured that a "yes" vote would result in one unit for every 2.5 acres, if you include the slippery PUD zoning interpretation. Still, there are no figures available to substantiate this. Edith Beck herself lives on a three acre farm and is fighting to maintain the rural character of Hayes, as well as the low tax base. There is fear that some residents may be forced to sell their land and move - and others will have to find new places to go hunting.

Advocates for the development point out that the rural character of Hayes includes land that is useless for farming. It also includes unsightly landmarks. This land, they say, will only increase in value, and be a boon to local businesses.

Be that as it may, the proposal was narrowly defeated. Now Scott Ventures threatens to go to court unless they can get zoning for 200 units or they may file for a re-zoning to R-1, which is full residential. This means one unit for every 2 acres. Fortunately there is no PUD to contend with under R-1.

After talking to numerous people, including lawyers, township supervisors, adjacent developers, concerned citizens and planners, a lengthy, costly court battle seems the least desirable solution.

Ideally a reasonable compromise might be found between the 1) present rural residents, who fear any development will affect their property values, and 2) those in favor of "good" desirable development. Finally there are voices within Hayes that remind the no-change, no growth, no development residents that there are also no guarantees in life. These are the issues Hayes Township and sooner or later all of us in the north will have to deal with.

Cool weather flowers are ready for planting

There are a number of annual flowers which prefer cool weather and some actually need quite cool weather to get started. As early as possible, as soon as the soil is dry enough to be worked, their seeds should be sown, even if frost is still possible, so that the seedlings are past their early growing stage before the weather gets really hot.

Sweet peas and pansies grow will only when their seeds have been planted in early spring and have been exposed to very cold weather, they should reach the blooming stage before the weather gets hot.

Some other flowers that benefit from cold spring weather and should be sown as early as possible are: annual pinks, poppies, baby's breath, dandybuds, calendulas, corn flowers (bachelor's buttons), larkspur, lobelias, stocks and strawflowers. All of these need good garden soil and a fair amount of sunshine. Lobelias and corn flowers will tolerate some shade.

The seeds should be sown thinly in the place where the flowers are to bloom, then covered with a thin layer of soil, firmed down gently and watered lightly. The area should be covered with burlap, old curtains or pieces of cloth, newspaper, etc., anything that will keep the soil from drying out and prevent the birds from getting at the seeds.

As soon as the seeds have begun to sprout, remove the cover and keep the seedlings moist. Thin them out to give the remaining plants a chance to develop properly since plants that are too close together waste their energy fighting for space, get spindly and provide good hiding places for pests.

VFW to sell poppies

Members of the local Veterans of Foreign War post will be selling poppies May 16, 17 and 18 in front of shopping centers and businesses throughout the community.

The price of the poppies is a donation, whatever people can afford to give. Money raised through the poppy sale goes into the VFW Relief Fund and helps hospitalized veterans, needy families and assists with local charitable causes.

The poppies are assembled by disabled veterans in Veterans' Homes and Veterans Administration Hospitals.

Children from the Cooperative Nursery School program toured the fire hall recently and got to meet the Jordan, the fire dog.

Coop Nursery awards prizes

The Charlevoix Coop Nursery awarded prizes from their annual raffle at their April 16 meeting. Laurie Heneveld of Charlevoix won the grand prize, a $100 gift certificate from Oleson's Market.

Other winners were: Ken Whitmore, Jean Faling, Fran Lavinsky, Virginia Beer, Naomi Gonzales, Mary Mosoryak, Linda Hall, Heidi Jones, Sabrina Perry, Richard Lynch, Mary Schaffel, Nancy Elbridge and Ray Klooster.

The Nicholas Tricklehorn family won the prize for selling the most tickets, 144. The raffle and other activities such as the nursery school plate night and puppet sale help fund nursery school activities and field trips.

Another suit filed over Hayes Township development

By Peg Oble

Once again, Hayes Township is being taken to court for actions based on its zoning ordinance.

Scots Ventures, a Florida-based development company which owns more than 700 acres in the township, has filed suit in Circuit Court asking that the township's referendum vote of last November in which voters overruled the township board's earlier rezoning of part of the property from Agricultural to Rural Residential be "set aside."

Scots Ventures has readied a large part of the land for an 18-hole golf course, which could be done without rezoning because golf courses are permitted in an Agricultural Zone. However, Scots Ventures proposes to build an unspecified number of houses around the golf course.

Under the Agricultural zoning, each house would have to be situated on 10 acres of land (except Planned Unit Development), but under Rural Residential zoning each house could be placed on only five acres of land. The latter zoning, therefore, makes the property more affordable for development, according to the owner, or, as stated in the complaint, "The rejection of the rezoning by voters denies plaintiff use of its land for the purposes for which it is best suited and is unconstitutional taking of private property without compensation."

The complaint further states,

"The A-1 (Agricultural) requirement of a 10-acre minimum lot size does not advance any justifiable government interest and has no substantial relationship to public health, safety, and welfare."

Many people of the township, especially those near the Dunmaglas property, think otherwise. They based their campaign last fall on the premise that a five-acre minimum lot size would result in overcrowding and "cityfying" the township.

The present conflict between the people of Hayes Township and a new neighbor sounds much like another conflict that resulted in a lawsuit back in 1985. At that time, Fox Associates, owners of 338 acres of land and 2,800 feet of frontage on Oyster Bay in Lake Charlevoix, proposed building a large condominium complex. They were stymied by a provision in the Hayes Township zoning ordinance which provided for "not more than one slip or dock space for each 100 feet of lake frontage or lake access of more than one single family living unit for each 100 feet of lake frontage." This meant that only 28 families who owned property in the development could use the lake frontage or have access to the waters of the lake from their property.

Many of the same issues were raised by Fox as are now being raised by Scots Ventures, namely, that they are being deprived of using their property in the way for which it is best suited, and in effect, the property is being taken from them without compensation.

After several years of litigation, the Michigan Court of Appeals concluded that Hayes Township did not have the power to regulate use of the water by ordinance. This gave a positive answer to the question of whether "back lot" property owners could be afforded use of the lake by "funneling," which has been the practice in Charlevoix for more than 100 years. (Examples: the Belvedere and Chicago Clubs.)

The Fox property ended up being a 16-single family home and marina development, much like these clubs in Charlevoix.

The Scots Ventures lawsuit differs from the Fox litigation in that no lake frontage is involved. The property in question is classified as "view property," which real estate people believe will become more and more in demand as fewer parcels of lake frontage are left for development.

Objections to the density of Rural Residential parcels in Hayes Township is being added to the concern of some residents about the erosion on the Dunmaglas property which some local residents believe is being caused by cutting down several hundred trees for the golf course.

As of last Friday, members of the Hayes Township Board who could be contacted said they had not been served with papers about the lawsuit and therefore could not comment on it.
